THE VARSITY TRACK TEAM
which this year has made the best showing in the history of this branch of sport at Cornell

CORNELL THIRD.

Varsity Track Team Makes Best Showing in Its History at the Intercollegiate Meet.

The Cornell track team made a better showing at Berkeley Oval Friday and Saturday than in any previous Intercollegiate meet. Our men secured third place, following Yale and Harvard, and preceding Princeton, Syracuse, Amherst, Georgetown, Pennsylvania and Williams, scoring a total of 16 points.

The work of the team was superior to that of any previous Cornell team, and also surpassed any previous work of the present team. The men were in first-class condition and most of them broke their own records.

The meet was held on what is practically an abandoned track. The conditions were poor for fast time in anything. There was much protesting, both from the spectators and the participants, against the poor condition of the course.

Worried Them.

Almost as much interest was manifested in the work of the Cornell men as in the leaders, inasmuch as our men were generally regarded as a dark horse. Not a little worry was caused both Yale and Harvard when Cornell men qualified in almost every event on Friday. Almost without exception the team performed consistently, almost brilliantly, and consequently they received fully as much attention and applause as the wearers of the Crimson or the Blue.

Harvard brought 55 men to the meet; Yale 52; Cornell only 17. These figures make the showing of Cornell surprising.

Yale was afraid of Warren in the 440, and sent in Hyatt, a red-haired six footer, to rough it with the Ithaca captain. The experts were picking Warren to repeat his defeat of Long, the Yale crack, whom Warren vanquished in the preliminary. Hyatt did his work well and put Warren out, thus depriving Cornell of first or second, and giving Yale the meet.

Close Second.

The high hurdles were covered in the phenomenal time of 15 3-5. There was not a yard between Ketchum and the winner. Ketchum was thus well within the Cornell record.

Clapp beat Cairns by a scant foot. Had Cairns been sent in to try to defeat Clapp he might have succeeded, but Trainer Moakley did not think it wise for the youngster to exert himself too severely until he has attained his full strength. He is a sure winner for next year.

Schutt's work in the two mile was, of course, the feature of the meet. There was more in it than Schutt, for the race was admirably planned from the Cornell viewpoint. Too much praise cannot be given Poate who paced the first three-quarters and Camp who led the bunch to the mile and a quarter mark. Their duty was to set the pace and make it fast, also to keep Bowen from gaining any advantage. They succeeded and kept the aggressive Pennsylvanian fighting every inch of the way.

Schutt meanwhile was 15 yards behind the bunch, keeping the pace and watching Bowen. When a mile and a half had been covered he dashed ahead and went out for the record, finishing in the lead by fully 60 yards, and lowering the intercollegiate mark 10 seconds. He ran in splendid form all the way and it was the opinion of experts that had the track been in good shape he would have done at least ten seconds better. He was so far from exhausted when he finished the race that he ran on to the club louse.

In the fast mile Poate was beaten by six inches for second place. McMeekan was a yard behind Poate. Both ran a creditable race.

Overman showed up formidably in the trials, and was barely beaten for fourth in the finals. He was two and one-half feet behind the winner.

Quarter Mile.

The quarter mile was a rough affair in which the fact that Riley had a much better position than Rogers, enabled the former to win.

The disappointment of the day was the failure of the Cornell men to score in the pole vault and the weight events. Through lack of proper foresight on the part of someone, the poles and the trunk containing the shot and hammer, were not on the field. In the pole vault the Cornell men had not entered until the bar was at 10 feet. Then Assistant Manager Berry procured the consent of the Princeton men to use their poles. Carroll did 11 feet 1 inch and Fredericks did 11 feet, but did not do better, because of their unfamiliarity with the poles. In the hammer throw, 136 feet enabled men to qualify. The Cornell men have done better than 137 feet and doubtless would have scored had they had their own hammers. In the shot put, Porter did 43 feet in the trials.

The result of the meet was on the whole encouraging and showed that Cornell has unquestionably the third best track team in the country. The western intercollegiate results on Saturday left no doubt that Cornell could defeat handily any team in the West.

Great credit is due to Trainer Moakley for his tireless efforts during a discouraging year and the results are a fine tribute to his skill.

WESTERN TRIP.

Baseball Team will Leave Next Week for Games with Michigan Nine.

The approach of examinations has interrupted baseball practice not a little, and it is not likely that regular practice will be held on Percy field more than once again this year. The team leaves a week from Thursday for its Western trip. It will go directly to Ann Arbor and on Friday will play the University of Michigan on its home grounds. They expect to reverse the result of the contest recently played at Ithaca. On the following day the teams meet for the third time this season. It is likely that this game will also be played at Ann Arbor. The schedule was originally made that it be played at Toledo. The American Association, however, refuses to permit the collegians to use its grounds on that day.

CORNELL WINS.

Baseball Team Makes Good Showing In Game with Pennsy—Chase Does Marvellous Work.

In the presence of one of the largest crowds that has ever witnessed a baseball game on Percy Field, Cornell won decisively from Pennsylvania Saturday afternoon, in the last game of the season on the home grounds. By this victory, Cornell took the series with Pennsylvania in decisive fashion, an achievement which is highly creditable, in view of the good record made by the Quakers this year.

It was Chase's last appearance in the box on Percy Field, and he signaled the occasion by twirling one of the most effective games in his long record. Only four scattered hits were made off his delivery, and four men "fanned." His fielding was a feature, while his timely batting contributed two runs to the result.

The honors were shared by Lewis at shortstop, who accepted nine difficult chances without an error and infused ginger into the work of the whole team. The nine played in much better form than it has done since the first Princeton game, although the old tendency to unpardonable errors was still apparent.

Chase's work in the first and second innings was of exceptional character. In the first, the bases were filled with none out, yet Cornell came out of this crisis without a run tallied against her. The situation in the second was similar, but the result was the same. Not until the seventh did Pennsylvania get a man across the plate. In that round, Stites drew four balls, reached third on Chase's low throw to Ferguson, and came home on a fielder's choice which was warranted by the situation.

Cornell's first tally came in the fourth, after both sides had been blanked up to that time. Lewis smashed a good single over second; Ferguson sacrificed neatly; a daring bit of base-running took Lewis to third; and then he stood crouched for a sprinter's start while Chase pounded a long fly to deep center. He beat the ball in by a slight margin after a sensational sprint home.

In the sixth Brewster singled, stole second and came home on Chase's hit over Swain. In the following inning, G. Costello singled, went to third on a passed ball, and came home on a fielder's choice. In the eighth, Ferguson rapped the ball over Howe's head for two bases, went to third on a fielder's choice, and came home on a long fly.

Niagara Defeated.

Cornell defeated Niagara at baseball last Wednesday scoring a total of 16 runs against 4 for the visitors, in a contest marked by heavy hitting and numerous errors by both teams.

Niagara began the scoring in the first inning, getting two runs on hits and errors. Any doubt, however, as to the outcome of the game, was speedily removed when Cornell came to bat. Hits by Brewster, Lewis, Ferguson, and A. A. Costello, combed with a base on balls and several errors, resulted in seven runs.

With the exception of the third inning when with the aid of a number of errors, Niagara scored two more runs, the remainder of the game consisted merely in good batting practice for the home team, which ran up a total of eighteen hits in eight innings.

Brewster and Lewis each made timely home runs while A. A. Costello was credited with three two-baggers.

Merrill pitched a steady game and kept the hits well scattered.

Trainer John Moakley of the athletic team deserves special praise for the fine showing our men made in the Intercollegiate meet. Only a few years ago we were unable to win a point in the big event. Today we stand in third place, not as a result of one star's work, but as a result of consistent team development. Next year we hope to do even better for Trainer Moakley has now popularized this branch of sport; he has developed more material and there is more interest in the work.

Cornell is not as fortunate as other universities in being able to draw from large preparatory schools where athletes are nourished before entering college. Mr. Moakley has been forced to take green material and work it up. What he has done speaks for itself, and augurs well for the future. His ability as a coach must be recognized, and should attract to Cornell more men who like athletics.

Alumni should begin to lay their plans for attending the reunions which will be held here on Wednesday of Senior week. There is a special reason this year why more graduates should return, for then, perhaps, some action may be taken to make class reunions more popular. It is a pity that this feature of Commencement week has been much neglected. If there are reasons for it, let us remedy them. Good class reunions should be one of the most enjoyable and popular events of the year. Come back and help make them so.

The Alumni News takes pleasure in announcing the election of the following new members to the editorial board: Clarence Garfield Spencer, '04, Lee, Mass.; Clarence Paul Oberdorf, '04, New York City; William Lynn Ransom, '05, Jamestown, N. Y.; Fred Sharer Crofts, '05, Little Falls, N. Y.; Henry Strong Denison, '05, Denver, Col.

The following members of the present board were reappointed for next year; G. N. Pease, '04; M. R. Garlock, '04; S. J. Flintham, '04.

EXCELLENT WORK.

Alumni have good reason to feel proud of Cornell's showing in the different branches of athletics as recorded in this issue of the News.

By defeating Harvard the lacrosse team ties Columbia for the championship and will likely be awarded the trophy cup. The baseball team redeems itself in good style by again defeating the University of Pennsylvania. The Junior crew wins an easy victory over Pennsylvania and Harvard while the track team makes a remarkably good showing at the Intercollegiate meet and gets third place with more points to its credit than ever before in our history.

Considering the fact that the typhoid epidemic raised havoc with mid-winter training this showing is unusually good. It speaks in loud terms for Cornell spirit. It shows what hard work on the part of the men and the coaches will do in overcoming obstacles, which three months ago were large enough to discourage the most hopeful.

Such work is appreciated.

JUNIOR CREW WINS.

Pennsylvania and Harvard Defeated in Race Rowed in Dark—Two Accidents.

The Junior Varsity Race on Cayuga Lake Memorial Day was little more than a procession, for the superiority of Courtney's men and methods enabled the Cornell shell to draw easily away from Pennsylvania and Harvard, leaving the latter two to wage a stubborn and pretty fight for second place, in which Pennsylvania carried off the honors.

It was a victory which made clear the tireless and faithful effort made by Coach Courtney and the crew men to turn out winning crews for Cornell again this year, against obstacles which at one time seemed insuperable. It was a triumph for the Cornell spirit.

The lake throughout the day had been very rough and as twilight approached, the waves showed no signs of abatement. The throng of people at the lakeside was greater than at any previous regatta on Cayuga Lake, and for them it was a long wait indeed.

Thousands journeyed down the lake road in search of vantage points from which to witness the race. The steep banks on the shore of the lake, particularly near the finish, were lined with a crowd estimated at 6,000 people.

The observation train, composed of 35 cars, left for the race at 5.15 o'clock with 2,975 enthusiastic and good natured mortals aboard. The motley conglomeration of costumes, the waving of varied flags and emblems, formed a picture of constantly moving color hard to describe, but pleasing to look upon.

While the crowd was anxiously waiting for the oarsmen to appear, Coaches Ward, Higginson and Courtney had been having a conference near the lighthouse. The water at that point was rougher even than at the starting place.

Coach Courtney insisted upon leaving everything to the visitors. Coach Ward did not want to row in rough water. His men had not practised among waves, but he was willing to waive any protest. Coach Higginson, however, stated that his men had to be back in Cambridge Monday morning for their examinations, and that unless the race was rowed then they could not participate. None wanted to disappoint the crowd, and so, although the referee at one time had decided to send the crews back to the boathouse, it was decided not to postpone it.

The referee's boat appeared about 7 o'clock and announced the postponement of the preliminary race and gave the hour for the starting of the big event.

Cornell There First.

As usual Cornell was the first to the starting point. It was 7:45 when the crew pulled up close to the observation train. Harvard followed next, and at 7:55 Pennsylvania was also at the start.

Darkness was already coming on when the crews lined up at the stake beats. Cornell had drawn the smoother course near the shore, but there the current which runs back after the wind was strongest. Harvard had the middle path and Pennsylvania the course nearest the middle of the lake.

At the referee's pistol the shells shot forward, Pennsylvania catching the water first. But no sooner had three strokes been taken than Edmonston, No. 7 in the Cornell crew, broke his oar. The sweep snapped in two at the bottom in the lock, and in protest he held the broken end up in the air. Coach Ward of Pennsylvania and Coach Higginson of Harvard both asked the referee to stop the race, and the whistle called the men to a standstill. Coach Courtney with much foresight had brought along four extra oars in the launch Cornell. One of these was passed out to the crew, and in a very short time the three shells were again at the starting buoys.

About 12 strokes had been taken when the very thing that had happened in the Cornell shell befell Lea at No. 7 in the Pennsylvania boat. Although Coach Ward said let them go on, for the limit on accidents had passed, Coach Courtney insisted that the race be stopped. And again the crews jockeyed to the start after the Quakers had been supplied with a new oar.

This Time a Go.

Finally the crews were in line again, this time on even terms, and when the referee's pistol went off they got away practically together. But quicker even than before, the Cornell shell shot to the fore and as a long shout went up from the train Coach Courtney's men seemed to easily pull away from the two rivals.

Harvard for a moment had the lead over Pennsylvania but the Quakers soon worked up and for a while the two were on even terms. Then Ward's men pulled away and gradually increased the lead over the men from Cambridge.

After a few short strokes to get under way, Cornell settled down to 30 to the minute. Harvard was rowing 33 and Pennsylvania 34.

Both the visiting crews seemed to be working hard while Cornell with that same graceful, smooth and easy swing appeared to be making no effort even during the first quarter mile. After the first twenty-five strokes it was evident that the Ithacans would win. They dropped down to 29 strokes a minute and still their shell slid on as if it had been greased. There was no checking between strokes the boat simply kept on going.

Pennsylvania and Harvard, however, seemed to halt every time they rushed their slides back for a new stroke, and thus their rival walked away from them.

At the Mile.

Cornell gradually but easily increased its lead over the others. When the mile mark was passed fully three open lengths of water lay between the Ithacans and Pennsylvania, while a length still further behind came the Harvard men working furiously. For Cornell it was an easy race and Nutting dropped down the stroke to 28. The two visiting crews, however, fought on desperately as if still hopeful of getting the lead.

A big bon fire along the course lit up the surroundings and gave the spectators the best view they had of the work of the three crews. Cornell's form was simply superb. Like a smooth working machine the eight men swung back and forth in rhythm. Their oars went in like one big sweep and they feathered on the recovery without a splash, although the water was still somewhat rough. Pennsylvania rowed a quicker, snappier stroke and came back faster on the recovery. Their oars struck the water at an angle so that they splashed, but the men pulled fairly well together.

Although Pennsy's form was not up to Cornell's standard it was a good example of Ward's stroke. Harvard seemed to row a shorter stroke and kept their bodies more erect than Pennsylvania. They pulled well together and did not splash a great deal, but they rushed their slides so much on the recovery that their boat seemed to stop between strokes.

Pennsy Spurts.

After the mile mark had been passed Pennsy began a series of spurts. In the light of the moon Coxswain Bruner could not see Cornell very well and he thought the Ithacans were only about two lengths in the lead. But spurt after spurt did not bring him any nearer the black streak which pulled on ahead of him in the dark. Pennsy's effort to get the lead took her farther away from Harvard and at one time a boat length and a half of open water stretched out between the two shells.

Approaching the finish the Harvard men seemed to get together and made a desperate effort. Pennsylvania called for another spurt. Cornell in the meantime had settled down to the low figure of 27 strokes a minute, and with five good lengths lead there was no need of hurrying faster. "Ten good ones" were given just before crossing the line and the shell seemed to fly along on top of the water. And when Buchanan called "Let 'er run!" Pennsylvania was struggling on five lengths and a half behind. Harvard by desperate work had pulled up till only a boat length of open water lay between them and Pennsy, and thus the race was ended.

All Finish Well.

Number 2 and No. 3 in the Pennsylvania boat fell forward a bit at the finish merely because they were tired and not because they were exhausted. All of the men were in good condition at the finish and all three crews quickly picked their way between the different boats and headed for the lighthouse.

The official time was:

Cornell	11:14½
Pennsylvania	11:36¾
Harvard	11:46

Will Go Abroad.

Professor W. E. Mott of the College of Civil Engineering will sail for Europe on July 7th, where he will remain for a year. He will land at Liverpool with his family, and in the fall will proceed to Zurich, where he will spend the first half year studying hydraulics at that university.

It is the intention of Professor Mott to become thoroughly acquainted with the different systems of hydraulics in the cities of Continental Europe, and to this end he will spend part of the year in journeying about France and Germany. He will return to the University in the fall of 1905. His work in hydraulics and mechanics in the college will be divided among the several professors and instructors.

A new edition of the Songs of Cornell, containing the new "Smoking Song" and the "Boating Song," has been received at Lent's Music Store. The volume is more valuable with its additions.

CREW SHAKEN UP.

—Heavy Varsity.

The Cornell Varsity crew, after rowing in two fours for about a week, was made up anew Monday afternoon. Captain Frenzel, Hazelwood and Sebring, three members of the 1902 varsity crew, were not included in the new varsity eight.

The varsity is now composed as follows: Lueder, bow; Wadsworth, 2; Brandow, 3; Van Alstyne, 4; G. W. Foote, 5; Nutting, 6; Edmonston, 7; Coffin, stroke.

The announcement that Captain Frenzel and the other two veterans had lost their seats in the first boat caused some surprise at the boathouse and on the hill when the new shake-up was announced. There have been many rumors of startling changes, but no such extensive shake-up in the squad was anticipated.

How long the new combination will continue as it was made up Monday and yesterday is a problem. The men have twice rowed three miles down the lake and return, but thus far have had no racing.

The crew naturally does not yet row very well together but improvement is expected. The combination is very heavy.

Phi Beta Kappa.

At last week Tuesday's meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa the following officers were elected: President, Professor Sterrett, to succeed Professor H. S. White, now of Harvard; vice-president, Professor Willcox, to succeed Professor Sterrett; secretary and treasurer, Professor Bristol, to succeed himself.

Thirteen upperclassmen were at the same meeting elected to Phi Beta Kappa. They are:

Harland Bryant Tibbetts, Ithaca, N. Y.

Miss Louise Electa Watrous, Montrose, Pa.

Now that the race between the freshmen and the preparatory schools crews is over with, the first-year oarsmen will row more regularly on the lake. There will remain after this week only two and one-half weeks of practice, counting the work at Poughkeepsie, and with fewer varsity combinations Coach Courtney will be able to devote considerably more attention to the youngsters.

TIE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Cornell Very Likely To Get the Intercollegiate Lacrosse Trophy.

By defeating Harvard at lacrosse in a fine game last Friday by a score of four to three the University team is tied with Columbia for first place in the Inter-university league and in all probability will be awarded the cup offered each year to the champions. The particular reason for this is the fact that the Columbia game which Cornell lost, has been protested on the ground that four of the Columbia players were ineligible. The protested game will be brought before the executive committee of the League and it is thought that in view of the indisputable evidence, the game will be declared forfeited to Cornell.

After the Harvard game the lacrosse club met and elected C. P. Obendorf, '04, president, W. S. Finlay, '04, manager, and J. E. Curran, '04, captain, for the ensuing year. Curran has only played on the team for one season but is perhaps Cornell's fastest and most aggressive player. His position is first attack.

Dean Willcox Honored.

Dean W. F. Willcox, of the Arts faculty, has again been highly honored by the government on account of his knowledge of statistical work.

Director S. N. D. North, who was recently appointed to take charge of the census bureau, has asked Professor Willcox to prepare for the bureau a report on the census work in other countries, which necessitate a visit to Europe.

The appointment has just been made and Professor Willcox has not arranged the details of the trip. He intends, however, to sail on July 2d, and will visit all leading European countries in which census work is in progress. This will probably mean a visit to St. Petersburg, Berlin, Vienna, Paris and London.

At the request of the department, Dean Willcox will also probably attend the meeting of the International Statistical Institute at Berlin in September or August. This in an association composed mainly of official statisticians of leading countries.

Professor Willcox will return to Ithaca in time for the reopening of the University.

Charles Jesse Bullock, formerly instructor in political science at Cornell, and since 1899 assistant professor in Williams College, has received a call to an assistant professorship of political economy in Harvard University. He will complete the year at Williams, going to Harvard in the fall. Professor Bullock graduated from Boston University in 1899 and received the degree of Ph. D. from the University of Wisconsin in 1895, in which year he came to Cornell.

James A. Winans arrived in Ithaca last week from Berkley, Cal., where he has been assistant professor in charge of the newly organized department of oratory during the past year. The previous year he was temporarily in charge of the Cornell Department of Oratory during Professor D. C. Lee's absence in Europe. Professor Winans has resigned his position at Berkley and he has been appointed instructor in the Cornell Department of Oratory.

George W. T. Whitney, a graduate student at Cornell for the past three years, and last year a fellow in the Sage School of Philosophy, has just been appointed instructor in philosophy at Bryn Mawr College. The department is in charge of David Irons, Ph. D., '94, who for several years was an instructor in philosophy in Cornell.

A dispatch from Albany says: "The vacancy in the state civil service commission caused by the resignation of Commissioner W.M. Collier, who was president of the board, will be filled by the governor, and Commissioner Cuthbert W. Pound of the Cornell College of Law will be made president of the reorganized board.

HOLD MEETING HERE.

So-called Brown Conference has Session at University—No Statement.

The so-called Brown Eligibility Conference on intercollegiate athletics met in this city Saturday at 10 o'clock in the office of Dean Crane for its most important session. Brown University was represented by Dean Meiklejohn; Columbia by Dean Kirchway; Harvard by Professor H. S. White, formerly of Cornell; Pennsylvania, by Mr. Reath, and Cornell by the members of the committee of the University faculty on student organizations, headed by Dean Crane. Princeton is a member of the conference, but was not represented at the session. Yale, it will be remembered, declined to participate.

The gathering discussed various matters relating to the eligibility rules and considerable progress was made. Although no final decision was reached, certain tentative recommendations were made to the next meeting of the conference, which is to be held in the fall.

The members of the conference were unwilling to make any statement as to the nature of these recommendations, but it was learned that the point regarded as of most importance and on which the most time was spent, is the definition of the words "amateur" and "professional." A more just and enforceable definition has been formulated and may be adopted.

An invitation from the president and the athletic committee of Princeton University that the conference hold its fall meeting at Princeton was accepted.

The conference adjourned at 2.30 and the members were entertained at luncheon by President Schurman. Afterwards the delegates were the guests of the Cornell Athletic Management at the baseball game and the regatta.

Regatta Concert.

A highly successful Regatta concert of the Glee and Mandolin Clubs was held in the Lyceum on Friday night. An audience that filled the house gave the clubs many encores. Every number on the program was enthusiastically received. "Alma Mater," "Fair Harvard" and "The Red and Blue" were sung by the Glee club.

The three crews attended. Harvard was in the upper box to the left of the stage and Pennsylvania in the same position on the other side. Both boxes were appropriately decorated. Around the walls of the stage were hung Cornell banners.

Those numbers which had already been heard at the Junior Week concert seemed to have lost none of their popularity. The "Mr. Dooley," sung on Spring Day by Sommer and Burns made the biggest hit of the evening. The Mandolin club likewise received many encores.

—Examinations are now in progress in most of the departments of the University, although "Block Week" does not begin until Thursday. The exodus of students will begin on Saturday of this week, when some of the first year men in engineering will be able to leave, but the greater portion will remain until the middle of next week. Examinations close on Friday. The examinations this term will probably not be as hard as usual, owing to the effect upon work of the typhoid epidemic earlier in the term.

—Miss Martha Van Rensselaer has in the current issue of Home and Flowers an interesting article on "The Home in Relation to the Schools."

—The June number of the American Hebrew publishes in full, with commendatory comment, the recent address of President Schurman at the mass meeting in New York.

—Cards have been received on the Campus for the fifth annual commencement of the Cornell Medical College in New York, in Carnegie Institute, June 3d.

—Dr. Thurston has received an invitation to attend the annual commencement of the Case School of Applied Science, to be held June 11, followed by a reception that evening.

OBITUARY

Miss Lillian B. Tucker, '05.

Miss Lillian Blanche Tucker, a student in the University, died Thursday, May 28, at 5 o'clock in the Infirmary of paralysis of the intestines, following an operation for appendicitis. She was a sophomore in the Arts course.

Miss Tucker entered the Infirmary Thursday, May 21, having been taken ill without warning the night before. An operation was deemed necessary at once. For several days the patient seemed to be gaining, but Wednesday there was a change for the worse and all hope was abandoned. She was conscious to the end and in her last moments showed a thoughtful consideration for all those gathered about her bedside.

A service was held in the University chapel Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The woman of Sage College attended in a body. The remains were removed to North Collins for interment.

Sage Dramatics.

The Sophomore Class of Sage College entertained and edified a good-sized audience in Barnes Hall Friday May 22, with "The Story of Orpheus and Eurydice," an operatic extravaganza, otherwise known as a "stunt." The two upper classes gave their annual stunts earlier in the season, and the "sophs" made an effort to beat them out, which, at least according to the members of the cast, was done with a vengeance.

The play was a three-act opera written by a committee of the class, chief credit being due to Miss Charlotte Faust. The part of Orpheus was taken by Miss Hornbrook, and Eurydice by Miss Stolte. The first two scenes were at Athens, and the last in an unmentionable place. The Grecian costumes, the product of the young women's skill, were said to be especially fetching.

Tennis Plans.

The Tennis club has decided to send a team to the intercollegiate tournament next fall. A tournament will be held as soon as college opens in September at which time the team will be picked.

—The state department of agriculture is now putting through the press a report by Dr. V. A. Moore on "Bovine Tuberculosis." This discussion is the result of experiments made in the college laboratories last year.

Women Give Play.

"Love's Labor Lost" Shakespeare's pretty comedy as presented by the Sage Dramatic Club Monday afternoon at the Oaks was a very creditable performance. Only women took part and their capable acting won the hearty praise of all who saw the play. Everyone entered into the spirit of the play with sympathy and appreciation.

The acting was of a high amateur order, showing not only careful preparation but also in many cases genuine dramatic talent. Miss Charlotte Faust as Lord Biron by general consent carried off the honors of the day.

The play may be repeated on Friday before Commencement.

The Cornell Medical Society Saturday elected as president John Tinkler, jr., '05; vice-president, Miss M. M. Crawford, '04; secretary, Frank Goodwin, '06; treasurer, N. C. Goodwin, '05; executive committee, Harry L. Rockwood, '04; Miss Marion Eliot, '05.

—The Class Book for 1903 appeared on Monday and met with a large sale. The book is put out in style similar to this year's Cornellian, and is complete in data and neat in typography.

—The annual of the College of Architecture has at last been received from the publishers, Bates & Guild, of Boston. Without doubt it is the most portentous and artistic work of the sort ever put forth by any architectural college in the country.

—A memorial school will be held at Concord and Boston, July 13th to 31st, to study the life and teachings of Ralph Waldo Emerson. President Schurman will speak upon "The Philosophy of Emerson," and Professor Nathaniel Schmidt on "Emerson and Oriental Thought."

Dr. G. W. Stewart, instructor in the physics department, has accepted an appointment as professor of physics at the University of North Dakota, and will leave for his new post some time after Commencement. His successor has not yet been appointed.

—G. R. Grant, '04, of Cape Vincent, N. Y., after suffering for eleven weeks from fever, is still unable to be up, although he is slowly recovering from a relapse which occurred four weeks ago.

—W. G. Frank, '06, who had typhoid fever, has returned to the University for the remainder of the year. E. Bagg, jr., who also had a long term of illness with typhoid, has returned for a few days to make plans for his work next fall.
