The campus never looked better than it does now. The early weeks of June were rainy. Foliage is heavy, lawns are green and the ivy is at its best. There has been some talk of holding the Commencement exercises out of doors if Thursday's weather is good. The quadrangle would certainly make a better setting for them than the Armory does.

To make room for the foundations of Rand Hall, the new building for the Sibley shops, men and teams are now at work excavating a new route for the northern end of East avenue. They are making a deep cut in the face of the knoll on which Professor Comstock's house stands. The avenue will bend to the east about in front of the President's house, will cross the site of the late lamented Sibley Dog, and will approach the Triphammer Falls bridge directly instead of by a 300-degree curve. The street railway line will take the same route, and the change will be an improvement in more ways than one.

The soil that is removed is taken across the bridge to Cornell Heights and is used for grading the grounds which will, in the course of time, surround Prudence Risley Hall, the new women's dormitory. Last Saturday afternoon President Schurman, Dr. White and other members of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees visited the site to determine just where that building should be placed. When the contractors begin work on the five or six new buildings that the architects are now busy on, some dirt will fly. The walls of one new University building, the addition to the Infirmary, are already going up.

If the plans of the committee are carried out, a great part of the grading of the new varsity section of Alumni Field will be completed by the middle of November.

During the past few weeks several large contracting firms have had representatives in Ithaca to look the ground over with a view to submitting bids. There is about 100,000 cubic yards of dirt to be moved, so that the work will have to be rushed if it is to be completed by fall. Matters will be definitely decided before the week is over. The University is to pay the additional expense of grading caused by the transfer of property formerly in Alumni Field to the University for the College of Agriculture.

Thirty-six fraternities have subscribed to the "rushing agreement" for 1911, with even stronger provisions than before to prevent the hasty "bidding" of freshmen. The rule forbidding any rushing until the Friday after registration is retained, and this further rule regarding invitations to the fraternity house has been adopted: "Invitations are to be extended on uniform cards, furnished by the Association, in a sealed envelope containing a self-addressed envelope for the return of the cards. There shall be no communication with the freshman whatever. The freshman is to be allowed to choose the dates which he wishes to have and then is to return the card by mail, in the envelope supplied, Saturday morning not later than 12 noon." The association referred to in the rule is composed of delegates, one from each fraternity.

The House Committee of the Cornell University Club of New York has invited Professor O. M. Brauner, professor of drawing and painting in the college of architecture, to exhibit some of his pictures in the clubhouse, 65 Park Avenue, during the summer months. These pictures are now on exhibition and are well worth a visit of inspection. Especially interesting is "Thor's Portal," a large sea picture showing a magnificent gathering of thunder clouds full of a splendidly sombre color. "Triphammer Falls in Winter" will appeal particularly to Cornellians. The Committee suggests that here is an excellent opportunity for some one to present a work of art to the Cornell Club as a nucleus of a permanent collection of pictures.

It has been decided to continue the Cornell Art Association's exhibition of paintings through the summer, and Professor Brauner has made arrangements with the artists so that the pictures may be kept in Ithaca till the close of the University's summer session. The paintings are shown in the exhibition rooms of the college of architecture on the third floor of White Hall. Several additional canvases are expected to arrive soon from the Albright Art Gallery in Buffalo. The collection is very interesting and the art association would have been sorry to send the pictures back after only a month's exhibition.

The Cornell Club of St. Louis will meet on June 27 to hear the news from Poughkeepsie.

George M. Schurman, the President's son, has been elected assistant manager of the Musical Clubs. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

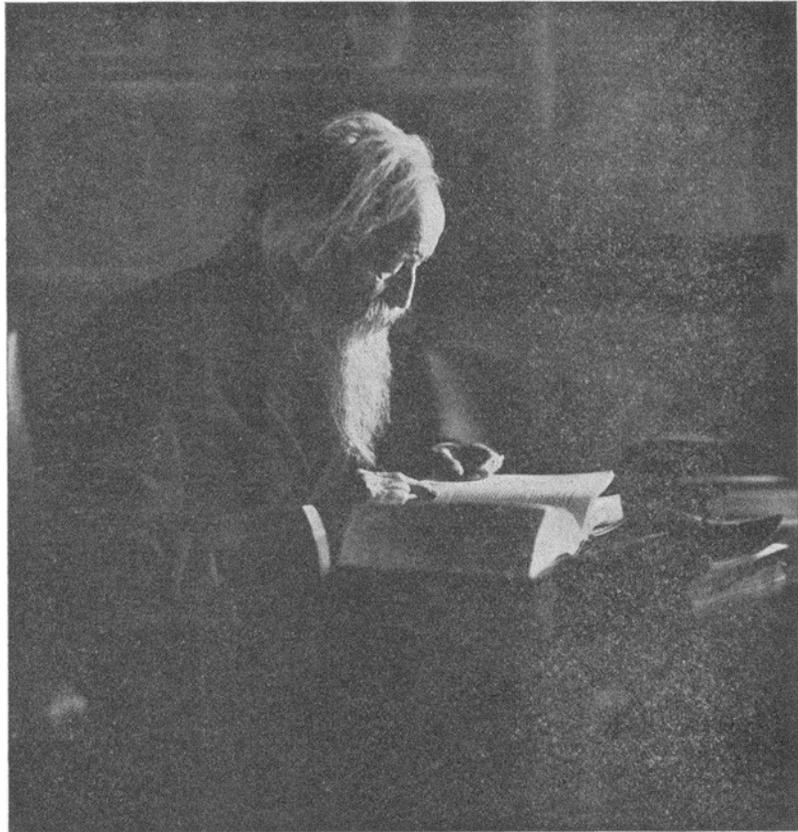

After a long delay caused by the fact that its make-up is entirely new, the Catalogue Number of the official publications—all that is left of the old University Register—has appeared. It is a book of only 128 pages, as contrasted with the Register's 777, and is scarcely more than a catalogue of the trustees, faculty and students. All the descriptive part which made the old book so bulky is now published in the announcements of the several colleges. In the new Catalogue the names of professors and instructors are arranged alphabetically instead of by seniority, making reference easier. No less than 82 pages are taken up by the list of students.

DEATH OF HIRAM CORSON.

Venerable Professor of English Literature Passes Away.

Hiram Corson, emeritus professor of English literature in Cornell University, died at his home, Cascadilla Cottage, a little after noon on Thursday, June 15. He was in his 83d year. His death was not unexpected, although he had recovered from a severe illness in the winter. His son, Eugene Rollin Corson '75, of Savannah, Georgia, was with him when he died.

Professor Corson was born in Philadelphia on November 6, 1828. His earliest instruction was received in his own home, from his father, a mathematician of exceptional ability, and it was not till he was fifteen years old that he was sent to school. For five years he studied in private schools near Philadelphia, distinguishing himself in mathematics and in Latin and Greek. He had studied stenography and in 1849 he became an official reporter of the United States Senate, for a time serving also as secretary to Senator Lewis Cass. But he showed his bent for books a year afterward when he became connected with the library of the Smithsonian Institution. There, during six or seven years, aided by his connection with the library, he gave his leisure time to indulging what was becoming his strongest interest, the study of the English, French and German literatures. In 1854 he married Miss Caroline Rollin, a lady of French birth and European education, and in 1859 he returned with his family to Philadelphia. There seems to have been in that city at that time a group of persons whose bookish tastes attracted the young Corson. He was a leading member of the Philadelphia Shakespeare Society, in which Dr. Horace Howard Furness received his first great impulse to the study of Shakespeare, and for several years he was a public lecturer on English literature and kindred themes. His fame extended beyond his own circle of friends, and in 1864 Princeton University conferred upon him its degree of Master of Arts. In the following year Girard College elected him to its chair of moral science, history and rhetoric. This chair carried with it the office of vice-president of the college, and Professor Corson, finding the duties too burdensome, resigned it after a single year to accept the more congenial professorship of rhetoric and English literature in St. John's College at Annapolis. It was while there, in 1870, a scholar in his prime, that he accepted the invitation of Cornell University to its chair of rhetoric and oratory, succeeding Professor Homer Baxter Sprague, who had accepted the presidency of Adelphi Academy. Professor Corson found that at Cornell, with no assistant, the whole burden of instruction in English composition, oratory and literature was too much for him, and after a year, on the recommendation of President White, an additional professorship was created, and Charles Chauncy Shackford was appointed professor of rhetoric and general literature, Professor Corson taking in 1872 the professorship of Anglo-Saxon, English literature and oratory. Before long he was relieved, at his own wish, of the elementary instruction in Anglo-Saxon, and the instruction in oratory was made a separate department, leaving him free to give all his time to the work he liked best and for which he was nobly fitted—the reading and interpretation of the great works of English literature. For a brief time after the retirement of Professor Shackford in 1886 he assumed supervision of the department of rhetoric, but the coming of Professor James Morgan Hart in 1890 freed him finally from that part of the instruction in English which was less to his taste. St. John's College conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws upon him in 1878, and in 1903 Princeton gave him the degree of Doctor of Letters. Mrs. Corson died in 1901. In 1903 Professor Corson, having reached the age of seventy-five years, retired from active teaching. He was appointed professor emeritus and lecturer on English literature, and until he was more than eighty years old he gave an occasional public reading. His last public appearance on the campus was at the Milton tercentenary celebration in December, 1908.

On Dr. Corson's eightieth birthday his colleagues of the Faculty gave him a loving cup, and Dr. Andrew D. White made the address of presentation. He said:

"For forty years your professor's chair has been a center of ennobling ideas, and for more than thirty years of this period there have radiated from your lecture room at Cornell University influences which have bettered and strengthened your students, your colleagues and the community at large.

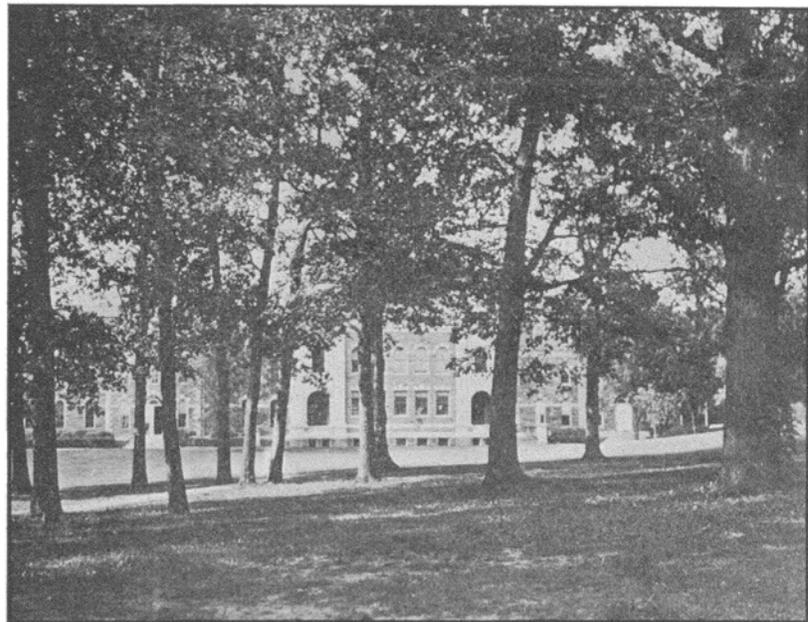

"Nor has your work been merely academic. Your teachings have wrought profoundly at other centers of thought: wherever earnest men and women have gathered to study the most precious treasures of our literature, whether in the mother country or our own, you, by your voice or your writings, have been a power for good.

"Especially happy has been your teaching, both in itself and as an example. Having watched its development in this university, from its beginning until now, I cannot forbear expressing my joy as I reflect upon your influence as a scholar, a teacher a public reader, and as exercising the subtle charm of illuminating and inspiring conversation. You have never favored pedantry. Your interpretations of the great masters of our literature have made them not mere dried specimens to be buried in note books, but vitalizing forces ministering to what is best in the building of character. Your commentaries have resulted not merely from minute studies of verbal niceties, but far more from broad surveys of general literature, ancient and modern: living studies for living men and women."

Among the books Professor Corson wrote were Chaucer's Legende of Goode Women, with introduction and notes, 1863; An Elocutionary Manual, 1864; Address on Occasion of Induction as Professor of Moral Science, History and Rhetoric in Girard College, March 29, 1865; The Satires of Juvenal, with a literal translation, 1868; Hand-Book of Anglo-Saxon and Early English, 1871; Syllabus of a Course of Lectures on the English Language and Literature, 1873-1876; Jottings on the Text of Hamlet, 1874; The University of the Future, 1875; The Claims of Literary Culture, 1875; The Idea of Personality and of Art as an Agency of Personality, as embodied in Browning's Poetry, 1882; The Two Voices and A Dream of Fair Women, by Lord Tennyson, with biography and a general introduction and notes, 1882; An Introduction to the Study of Robert Browning's Poetry, 1886; An Introduction to the Study of Shakespeare, 1889; A Primer of English Verse, chiefly in its aesthetic and organic character, 1892; The Aims of Literary Study, 1895; The Voice and Spiritual Education, 1896; Selections from Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, with introduction, notes and glossary, 1896; An Introduction to the Prose and Poetical Works of John Milton, 1899. he edited Mrs. Corson's translation of Pierre Janet's The Mental State of Hystericals. He was a spiritualist and a mystic, and believed firmly that he held communication with the spirits of his dead friends. His last book, now on the press, was a collection of such messages.

Dr. Corson was recognized not only at Cornell as a great interpreter of literature. His books on Shakespeare and Browning were widely read and received high recognition abroad. His writings won him the friendship of Tennyson and of Browning.

He founded two prizes at Cornell—one for the best competitive essay on Robert Browning and the other, established in memory of his wife, for the best competitive essay on a subject in French literature or philology.

Professor Corson's funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon of this week in Sage Chapel, and the burial was in the city cemetery.

In the main drawing room of the college of architecture, filling all the available space, is the annual exhibition of drawings and sketches by students of the college. Some unusually good work is shown.

THE MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Thirteenth Annual Commencement—Women Head the Honor Roll.

The thirteenth annual commencement of the Cornell University Medical College was held at the college in New York City last Wednesday, June 14. Fifty-five persons received the degree of M. D. President Schurman conferred the degrees, and delivered an address to the graduating class.

Following is the honor roll:

1. Helen Dudley.
2. Elvira Dudley Dean, A. B. '07.
3. Wesley Manning Baldwin, A. B. '07.
4. Walter Lester Mattick, A. B. '08.
5. Margarete Darvas.
6. Charles Fleet Scudder.
7. Albert Vergil Franklin, A. B. '08.
8. Frances Shostac.
9. Arthur William Justin.
10. Henry Robert Kutil, B. S. (New York University) '07.

The John Metcalfe Polk Memorial Prizes for general efficiency (founded in commemoration of John Metcalfe Polk, M. D. '99, an instructor in the college, who died on March 29, 1904) were awarded as follows: First prize, $300, to Helen Dudley, of Brooklyn, the student having the highest standing; second prize, $125, to Elvira Dudley Dean, of Mineola; third prize, $75, to Wesley Manning Baldwin, of Brooklyn. Professor Whitney's prizes for the best work in otology were awarded, the first, $50, to Arthur William Justin, Union Hill, N. J., and the second, $25, to James Edward McCormick, Newark, N. J. No essay was received for the prize offered in neurology, and no prize was awarded.

More than 95 per cent. of the members of the class have received hospital appointments. Six of them go to Bellevue Hospital, including Mattick and William Forrest Lee, A. B. '06, of North Tonawanda. Franklin goes to the Presbyterian Hospital, which will give its appointments after this year solely to graduates of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Miss Dean goes to St. Vincent's Hospital and Baldwin to the Red Cross Hospital. The Class of 1911 is the largest that will be graduated from the college for several years, for it is the last class that could enter with only high school preparation. There were seven women in the class and four of them were in the honor roll of ten. Two of the class will not receive their degrees till January, being not yet of age.

Before the conferring of degrees a special meeting of the faculty was held to present an engrossed copy of resolutions to Professor Rudolph A. Witthaus commemorating his years of service in the college and expressing regret at his voluntary retirement from the chair of chemistry, toxicology and medical jurisprudence, which he has held since the establishment of the college. Professor Witthaus is in his sixty-fifth year. He has served as toxicological expert in many celebrated criminal cases. He has been appointed professor emeritus in the college.

In his address President Schurman conceded that earning a living was an important consideration, but added that he supposed the graduates of course knew that in becoming doctors they had to renounce financial reward as the primary object.

"It would be a good thing," he said, "if private citizens took to heart the lessons that the various professions, such as teaching, medicine and preaching, teach. I hope and expect you will make a respectable living, but I do not express the wish that you become rich. You have the chance more than most others to discharge that foremost of all obligations—that of service. Your service is to relieve and prevent pain and suffering, and those who accomplish this stand as ministering angels in the sight of mankind.”

The Cornell State Capitol Association.

The idea of an association to be composed of Cornell men who are members of the New York state legislature or of the state departments was conceived by the Hon. Gottfried H. Wende '72, Member of Assembly from Erie county, and was first publicly suggested by him at the annual dinner of the Cornell Alumni Association of Eastern New York held at Albany on March 22. In order to start the organization Mr. Wende invited the Cornell men eligible to membership to a dinner given by him at Albany on April 25. The following attended: Gottfried H. Wende '72, Charles F. Wheelock '73, Everett O'Neil '77, Edward Hayes '78, Thomas Shannon '88, Frank L. Young '88, Simon L. Adler '89, George A. Blauvelt '90, H. K. Bishop '93, A. H. Perkins '93, R. A. Pearson '94, Frederick D. Colson '97, A. H. Higley '99, John F. Fitzpatrick '00, George R. Van Namee '01, J. C. Finch '02, H. A. Gehring '03, C. R. Vanneman '03, George R. Grant '04, John L. Sullivan '04, G. Norton Frisbie '09, J. G. Wills '06, J. H. Stevens '08, Loring D. Jones '09, Frank H. Macy '10, and Edward H. Leggett '10.

An interesting feature of the menu and song book was the reproduction in facsimile of a note written in Mr. Wende's autograph album in January, 1869. It read as follows:

“Master G. H. Wende:

“I advise you to wholly abstain from the use of tobacco, rum and foul language.

“Be industrious and economical, and you will become wise and rich.

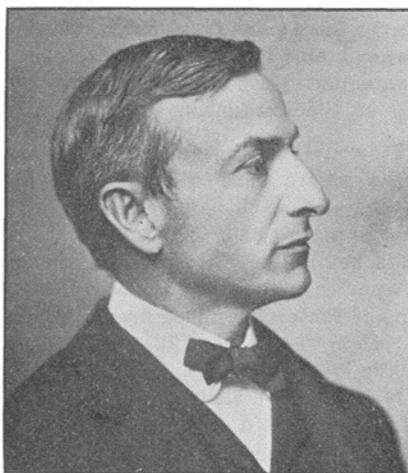

“Your friend,

“EZRA CORNELL.”

Entirely against his wishes and in the face of a strong protest from him Mr. Wende was unanimously elected president of the association.

Frederick D. Colson, state law librarian, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The second meeting of the association held on May 24 was attended by the following: Gottfried H. Wende '72, Charles F. Wheelock '73, M. Stanley Bierce '73, Andrew Spencer '88, Simon L. Adler '89, PROFESSOR FRANK A. FETER, WHO HAS RESIGNED TO ACCEPT A CHAIR AT PRINCETON.

George A. Blauvelt '90, A. W. Abrams '91, Edward J. Mone '95, Lauros G. McConachie '96, John Seeley '96, Frederick D. Colson '97, John T. Fitzpatrick '00, A. S. Merick '01, C. R. Pettis '01, H. L. Field '02, G. Edward Gibson '03, Carlton H. Sears '03, H. A. Gehring '03, J. H. Middleton '03, C. R. McSparren '04, Arnold J. Potter '04, George R. Grant '04, H. C. Hasbrouck '04, J. G. Wills '06, A. M. Snow '06, J. W. Henry '07, W. E. Darrow '07, J. H. Stevens '08, J. L. Bush '08, Joseph Davis '08, L. D. Jones '09, Robert L. Hollingshead '10, H. H. Milks '10, E. G. Griffin '10, F. H. Macy '10, and Samuel B. Dicker '11.

The main purpose of the association is to afford those eligible to membership the opportunity of becoming acquainted with one another, in order that they may co-operate in advancing any meritorious object the University or its alumni may desire to accomplish. Incidentally, the acquaintanceships thus formed cannot fail to be of mutual advantage to the members. The intention is to make the meetings as informal as possible, in order that the possibilities of good fellowship may be realized to the utmost. The details of the organization and plans for definite objects to be striven for will be worked out as the organization develops.

Wanted—A Physical Chemist and a Mechanical Engineer.

There is existing a vacancy in the position of physical chemist in the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, at Washington, D. C. This position requires a high order of scientific training equivalent to that required by the leading American universities for a professorship in physical chemistry. A man is wanted who will be able to organize, to participate in, and to supervise the physical and chemical investigations of problems that serve as a basis for modern metallurgical methods, especially the problems connected with the ores, operations and products of modern smelters. The government is endeavoring to find the best man available for this work and has no particular individual in view. The methods of procedure will be similar to those of an educational institution or business organization, whose board of trustees or governing officers desire to fill professional or technical positions. The qualifications and fitness will be determined by an impartial board of scientific men. The entrance salary for this position is $4,000 per annum.

There is also existing a vacancy in the Bureau of Mines in the position of chief mechanical engineer at an entrance salary of $4,800 per annum. For this position it is desired to secure a man who will be able to participate in and supervise the various mechanical engineering problems appropriate to the work of the Bureau of Mines, including investigations looking to a greater efficiency in the utilization of mineral fuels at the various heating and power plants of the government in different parts of the country, and the mechanical problems connected with various mining operations. Qualified persons who are interested in these positions are invited to communicate with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., at an early date, since the selections will be made about the middle of July.—Science.

CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS

SUBSCRIPTION—$3.00 Per Year.

Published by the Cornell Alumni News Publishing Company, John L. Senior, President, Woodford Patterson, Secretary and Treasurer. Office: 110 North Tioga Street, Ithaca, N. Y.

Published weekly during the college year and monthly in July and August, forty issues annually. Issue No. 1 is published the first Wednesday of the college year, in October, and weekly publication (numbered consecutively) continues through Commencement week. Issue No. 40, the final one of the year, is published the last Wednesday in August and contains a complete index of the entire volume.

Single copies, ten cents each. Foreign postage, 40 cents per year. Subscriptions payable in advance.

Should a subscriber desire to discontinue his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent in before its expiration. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

Checks, drafts and orders should be made payable to the Cornell Alumni News.

This number of the paper appears when Commencement Week is almost over, but it has to go to press before the week has fairly begun. The next number will have a full account of the alumni reunions and the Commencement events.

The proposal to separate "senior week" from "alumni week," as was stated recently, is receiving attention from the Faculty. One plan, as we have indicated, is to hold the class reunions after Commencement, assuming that Commencement will be shifted to Saturday. Another plan is to ask the alumni to come back the last week in May instead of at Commencement time. Under the present University calendar the Saturday nearest May 30 is a University holiday, and there will always be something interesting in the way of athletics on that day. It has been suggested that the class reunions could be held about that time. Whatever may be done about this, there is a strong feeling among faculty and undergraduates in favor of giving Commencement week to the undisputed use of the graduating class.

It would not be surprising if the underwriters were to class fraternity houses at Cornell as "hazardous" and charge a high rate for insuring them. It is not unlikely that the insurance companies will raise the rates before long if fraternity house fires continue to occur as frequently as they have in the last five years. Cornell fraternity houses as a class are in danger of becoming known as "bad risks" and if they do all the fraternities will suffer. "Defective wiring" has been given as the cause of most of these fires, but there is a strong suspicion that in some cases they have been due to carelessness within the house. What is known as the "waste basket blaze" is not an uncommon thing on East Hill. There is no proof that any fraternity house has been destroyed as the result of somebody throwing a cigarette butt into a waste-paper basket, but there have been enough small fires that were known to have started in this way to make this seem a very likely explanation of other fires whose origin was mysterious. Alumni of the fraternities ought to inquire very carefully and find out if sufficient precautions are taken in their houses to prevent fire. There is more danger in matches than there is in electric wires. There ought to be a fire extinguisher on every floor of every fraternity house. There ought to be a fire alarm system in every house, and it should be the duty of some member to inspect the system regularly and frequently, to test every thermostat and to report on the condition of the batteries. It is needless to say that every house should have outside means of escape from the upper floors. The fraternity houses represent a large investment of alumni money, and the investment needs careful watching.

Dr. Wilder's Opinions.

In response to a request, Dr. Burt G. Wilder, who will leave Ithaca this summer to make his home in Brookline, Mass., has written the following as a concise statement of what he regards as the most important educational and scientific outcome of fifty years of study and forty-two of teaching:

- (1) All parts of a given animal should receive one and the same serial number.
- (2) Slips should be used for promptly recording new observations, references, ideas, and all data (e. g., localities, donors, modes of preparation) not ascertainable from specimens themselves.
- (3) Beginners should be taught correct methods by explicit directions.
- (4) Before lecturing upon a species or a group there should be shown a specimen or some representation of one.
- (5) In all composition the following should be sought in the order named: Clearness, Consistency, Correctness, Conciseness, Completeness.
- (6) Published errors should be promptly corrected.
- (7) For the study of the structure, development, succession and relationships of Vertebrates the best group to begin with is the Salachians, the sharks and rays; if several forms can be studied the first should be—and if but one, that one should be—the acanth or "horned dog-fish," Squalus acanthias.
- (8) The objective study of the brain should begin in the primary school; the pupil himself should expose, draw and dissect that of the acanth shark; with successive appropriate changes as to forms and methods the high school graduate should have gained as much real knowledge of the human brain as is now possessed by the average graduate in medicine.

The New York Tribune last week printed the following statement of Dr. Wilder's ideas respecting student conduct:

From the outset in 1868, Dr. Wilder has maintained that, in view of their preparation, intentions and privileges, the sacrifices made for them, and the benefactions which they accept, college students should be regarded as "on probation" from the moment of matriculation, and should be held to account more rigidly than other youths of equal age; that leniency toward transgressors, especially when intoxication is pleaded in extenuation, is seldom really kind to them and never just to their orderly associates. These views, with his uncompromising antagonism toward secret organizations, intercollegiate athletic contests, betting and gambling, class collisions, hazing, campus smoking, the theft of signs and "souvenirs", late festivities, the use of any alcoholic beverage by minors, stamping in classroom,

"spring day," alumni buffoonery and leaves of absence for other than personal or scholastic purposes have rendered him unpopular with certain sets, notably with those whom he denominates "stoodiums"; but the studious and well disposed have always come to him with confidence in his sympathy and his willingness to advise or assist.

Subscribers to the Alumni Fund.

The following subscriptions to the Alumni Fund for the general support of the University were obtained by Mr. George B. Kittinger '85, of Seattle, a member of the Cornelian Council. He hopes to be able to send at least a dozen more, as he says he believes he can get contributions to this fund from at least ninety-five per cent. of the Cornellians in the State of Washington:

Seattle—A. J. Durland '75, George B. Kittinger '85, L. Davies '92, C. L. Johanson '92, Morris M. Green '94, Archibald S. Downey '96, Mark M. Odell '97, E. J. McCaustland '97, H. H. Professor Hebrard Resigns.

Professor Jean Hébrard, who has been with the college of architecture for five years, has resigned and will return to Paris to engage in practice with his brother. His departure is a serious loss to the college. He came here a distinguished young graduate of the École des Beaux Arts and has been held in very general esteem. It is understood that another young Frenchman from the Beaux Arts School, who is strongly recommended by Professor Hébrard himself, will take his place.

PENN 8, CORNELL 6.

Pennsylvania's base running and Cornell's slowness on the bases and poor fielding at critical times enabled Penn to win on Percy Field Monday afternoon of this week. The score was 8 to 6. It was the third game of the series and Penn's first victory over Cornell this season. The fourth game is to be played at Franklin Field today. Isett, who started the game at third, was responsible for two runs by Penn in the first inning. He threw a grounder over Clute's head. In the third inning Cornell scored three runs. Magner singled, Clute and O'Connell beat out bunts, Magner scored on Butler's fly to center and Clute and O'Connell scored on Dauenhauer's hit. Penn scored in the fifth and sixth on squeeze plays. In the seventh Penn made three runs and then Hightower was taken out and Nisbet was sub-

YALE 1, CORNELL 0.

The Yale nine took revenge for its 14-inning defeat earlier in the season when it defeated the Cornell team at New Haven last Saturday by a score of 1 to 0. The winning run was made after two men were out in the latter half of the ninth inning. It was said to have been the closest and best game played at Yale Field this year. It was a pitchers' battle, Nisbet of Cornell allowing but five hits, while Scott of Yale allowed four in the first six innings. Hartwell went in in the seventh and gave no hits. A large crowd saw the game, as Commencement week at Yale was just beginning.

Both teams fielded almost faultlessly, the only error being made by Howard, of Cornell, on a difficult chance. In the third inning Howard doubled to left and reached third on Nisbet's sacrifice. Badger made a fine catch of Magner's short line fly and Howard was held at third, dying there when Clute was thrown out at first. This was the best chance Cornell had to score, although Magner opened the sixth inning with a double to left, fast fielding holding him at second. The next two batters were struck out, and the third was thrown out at first.

In the first and second innings Yale had a man on second base with one out, but could not score. In the seventh Stillwell singled to left, Reilly struck out and McGhie flied to Magner. Merritt smashed one at Howard which went through his legs, Stillwell taking third and Merritt second, but O'Connell caught Burdett's fly and ended the inning. In Cornell's half of the ninth Stevens of Yale made a remarkable catch of a foul fly from Butler's bat. He smashed into the grandstand in far left field, breaking the fence but hanging on to the ball. The spectators were still applauding him when he came to bat in Yale's ninth inning. He drew a base on balls and went to second on Stillwell's sacrifice. Reilly drove the ball at Howard, who jumped off his feet and stopped the line drive, holding Stevens at third and Reilly at first. Tommers flied out. Merritt drove a liner into left field and the game was over. The score:

Our Crews Now on the Hudson.

Cornell is again the favorite at Poughkeepsie for the races next Tuesday, although observers say that Columbia is likely to be heard from. The Columbia crew is reported to be unusually strong this year and its record is a good one. Pennsylvania has been unfortunate, Thomas Reath, jr., the stroke oar, having suffered an injury which will keep him out of the race. The Cornell varsity combination follows: Bow, C. H. Elliott '13, Auburn; No. 2, C. S. Bates '13, Ithaca; No. 3, B. A. Lum '13, Medina; No. 4, W. O. Kruse '12, Davenport, Iowa; No. 5, G. B. Wakeley '12, Omaha, Neb.; No. 6, W. G. Distler '12, Baltimore, Md.; No. 7, C. B. Ferguson '12, Middletown; stroke, E. F. Bowen '12, Bellows Falls, Vt.; coxswain, H. J. Kimball '11, Watertown. The crew is one of the youngest and lightest that Mr. Courtney has ever had. The average weight is 164½ pounds and the average age is 21 years 5 months. The average height of the men is 5 feet 11½ inches. Bowen and Wakeley are the only men who were in the varsity shell last season. Ferguson and Distler rowed in the varsity four at Poughkeepsie a year ago and Elliott, Bates and Lum were in the freshman boat. Kruse was on his freshman crew and last year he rowed in the junior varsity.

There was a small sensation last week when it became known that Mr. Courtney had dismissed three of the freshmen for breaking training rules. MacLachlan, Murfey and Larrowe were told on Monday that their services were no longer needed. Their places were filled by men who had been dropped from the squad, and it was given out that the boat went faster with the new combination. Mr. Courtney was not communicative about the matter. It is said that he had been told that the freshmen were eating ice cream in violation of training rules. Matters took another turn on Tuesday just before the crews started and the three men were taken along to the Hudson. Now they are back at their old positions in the boat. The freshmen are rowing as follows: Bow, Lawrence Eddy, Canaan, Conn.; No. 2, L. W. Murfey, Cleveland, O.; No. 3, H. F. Keyes, Rush; No. 4, H. D. Hyland, Weymouth, Mass.; No. 5, D. M. Larrowe, Cohocton; No. 6, B. C. Spransy, Washington, D. C.; No. 7, Alan MacLachlan, Port Sidney, Ont., Canada; stroke, J. C. Nulsen, St. Louis, Mo.; coxswain, G. B. Thorp, Pittsburg, Pa.

Reports from the Hudson are to the effect that the varsity four, while not showing form equal to that of previous Cornell fours, makes the shell go fast. The men are boated as follows: Bow, C. E. Carpenter '12, Chittenango; No. 2, H. R. Lafferty '11, Davenport, Iowa; No. 3, J. H. Small '13, Washington, D. C.; stroke, E. H. Dole '13, Riverside, Cal. Lafferty was in the four and Dole stroked the freshman shell last season. Carpenter rowed in the junior varsity boat and Small in the freshman boat.

The official starting time for the races has been announced as follows: Four-oared varsity, 3:30 o'clock; freshman, 4:15 o'clock; eight oared varsity, 5:30 o'clock.

Cornell has been allotted cars No. 14 to 18 inclusive and 29 to 33 inclusive on the observation train. There will be thirty-six cars in the train.

Dr. Andrew D. White attended the 86th commencement of Hobart College last week.
