Vol. XXI, No. 36

Ithaca, N. Y., June 12, 1919

Price 12 Cents

A historical exhibition is a feature of the Semi-Centennial Celebration that has been little advertised. In the White Historical Library will be a public display of such available memorabilia—manuscripts, likenesses, views, books, and pamphlets—as may contribute to make real to beholders the life and personality of Ezra Cornell in all its phases; and in the large reading room of the Library an exhibition of such articles, especially photographs or other views, posters, handbills, programs, pamphlets, etc., as may serve to illustrate, on all its sides, the life of the University in the last half century. Here will be shown not only the materials now in the possession of the University but many interesting articles that have been contributed, especially by older residents of Ithaca. Of pictures alone there are now on hand more than a thousand. The arrangement will be such as to illustrate particular features of changing scenery and history—Faculty groups, engineering camps, the chimes, campus bridges, and particularly objects that have long since passed from view. The exhibition is in charge of a committee headed by Willard Austen '91, University librarian.

THE WOMEN OF THE SENIOR CLASS had their banquet at the Ithaca Hotel on Saturday, May 31. The toastmistress was Elizabeth Reigart, of Yonkers, N. Y. Toasts on the dark past, the dim past, the past, the half-past, and the present, by members of the class, were followed by an address on the future by Dr. Georgia L. White '96, adviser of women. Besides Dr. White, Miss Nye and Mrs. Barbour, wardens of Risley and Sage, were guests of honor. After the speaking came dancing until midnight.

THE GUNNER'S MEDAL offered by the Artillery staff officers to the cadet attaining the highest average mark in the gunner's examination has been awarded to Bradley D. Walls, a freshman in Sibley College, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose grade was 94.3. Two other freshmen having the high average of 91.2 are George W. Naylor, Arts, of Stamford, Conn., and Seymour B. Quel, Arts, of New York City. Gunner's chevrons have been issued to a number of cadets who passed the examination with a rating of 75 per cent or more.

ITHACA'S CITY TAX BUDGET for 1919 calls for $238,220. The rate is $14.30 on each thousand dollars of assessed valuation, an increase of $1.60.

COACH MOAKLEY has been elected a director in the new Association of Track Coaches of America, formed at the time of the Intercollegiates in Boston. Mr. Moakley, who drew up the constitution and by-laws for the organization, based the document on the model constitution provided by the Associate Alumni of Cornell University as a standard for Cornell alumni clubs.

STANDARD TAXICAB RATES have been fixed by the Common Council for service in Ithaca. A new ordinance divides the city into zones, specifies the charges for travel by taxi, requires proprietors to pay a license fee, and authorizes the chief of police to designate cab stands throughout the city. The charges permitted by this regulation range from fifty cents to $1.50 a person.

THE TWO SENIOR SOCIETIES, Sphinx Head and Quill and Dagger, and the junior society, Aleph Samach, united on June 4 in a farewell dinner to Dr. A. H. Sharpe. Some of the Ithaca alumni of each society were present. Short talks were given by Prof. W. W. Rowlee, John F. Moakley, and Prof. D. S. Kimball. A loving cup from the societies was presented to Dr. Sharpe by L. A. Corwin '19 and Dr. Sharpe responded recommending certain policies that he believed should be followed by the Athletic Association. The toastmaster was F. P. O'Brien '19. The affair was held in the Dutch Kitchen.

MANAGERS OF MINOR SPORTS for the coming year have been elected by the Council as follows: basketball, Donald E. Leith '20, New York City; wrestling, Thad L. Collum '20, Corsicana, Texas; lacrosse, Paul L. Bleakley '20, Yonkers, N. Y.; soccer, Kenneth C. Esterbrook '20, Newfield, N. Y. The choice of managers of golf and tennis is deferred until fall. Newly elected assistant managers are: basketball, Louis W. Voigt, Pittsburgh, Pa.; wrestling, H. N. Page, Perry, N. Y.; lacrosse, Charles A. Lazo, New York City; soccer, Murrill H. Forster, Buffalo, N. Y.; tennis, Alvin E. West, Washington, D. C.; golf, Michael G. Sullivan, Rochester, N. Y.; all of the class of 1921.

THE WOMEN'S ANNUAL ATHLETIC RALLY was held on Saturday, June 7. In the early afternoon there were crew races on the Inlet, the honors being carried off by the sophomores. Later on the athletic fields baseball, tennis, and archery finals were played off simultaneously. Dinner was served out-of-doors. In the evening came the formal awarding of athletic numerals.

THE CORNELL MASQUE, in anticipation of wider activities next year, has elected a number of new members from all classes in the University. Officers for 1919-20 are: president, Leslie I. Nichols, Architecture, Evanston, Ill.; vice-president, Edward L. Howard, Architecture, Ithaca; manager, John P. Corrigan, Sibley, Pittsburgh; assistant managers, Francis J. Bolan, Arts, Waterbury, Conn., and Randolph P. Rice, Sibley, Pittsburgh.

TWO STUDENTS, a junior and a freshman, have thus early met with injuries at the swimming pool in Fall Creek, near the University power house. Diving from projections part way up the fall, one struck a lower ledge, the other a rock below the surface of the water; both were severely bruised and cut about the head, the freshman so seriously that he was taken to the Infirmary. Both are recovering. The hot weather last week, 98 degrees at two o'clock on June 4, led students to the pool perhaps earlier in the season than usual. The water is already well warmed as it flows over the shallow reaches above the pool.

"MERCI BEAUCOUP," locally interpreted, meant last Tuesday night that the new pavement on North Aurora Street was celebrated, dedicated, perambulated, and supersalted in due form. One block was given over to a street carnival, which might be described as an evening Spring Day. Under colored lights, among fancy booths, besought and beset by numerous salesgirls, citizens in goodly numbers showed their willingness to spend money for the City Hospital and for local charities. Neither a warm night nor a brick pavement nor a jazz orchestra could lessen the ardor of the dancing crowds. Nor could a dry Ithaca prevent a ceremonious christening of the street with a bottle of something that meant no waste. The receipts were about a thousand dollars.

Honor Heroic Dead

Gen. Alexander and Dr. Hillis Speak at Cornell Memorial Services.

Memorial services in honor of the Cornellians who lost their lives in the war were held on Sunday afternoon, June 8. The desire of the University community thus to show appreciation of service and sacrifice brought to Bailey Hall a large and grateful audience. A section of the orchestra was reserved for relatives of the dead soldiers and sailors. The musical program included organ prelude and postlude by Professor Quarles, a funeral march and Sainte-Saens's "Marche Héroïque," and hymns and anthem by the Sage Chapel choir. The invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. Rockwell H. Potter, of Hartford, Conn., the Sage Chapel preacher on Sunday. President Schurman read the Cornell roll of honor, two hundred and six names, arranged by classes.

Commemorative addresses were given by Major General Robert Alexander, commanding officer of the 77th Division, lately returned from France, and the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

General Alexander spoke first of the unexpectedness with which America was precipitated into the struggle. Many American soldiers did not at first speak English, and there were many similar obstacles to efficiency. In spite of these, the American soldiers demonstrated their enthusiasm in the cause of liberty and their readiness to fight and, if there was need, to die for their principles. The war taught us two great lessons. One is that our Americanism, if it is to stand the supreme test, must be of the heart; must be synonymous with justice, equality before the law, and brotherhood. The other is the value of an elementary military training for every young man. The determining factor in any war now-a-days is the platoon leader. On him falls the duty of actually carrying out the commands of the higher officers, and his is one of the greatest responsibilities of a war. Unless he knows his business, the army will incur the risk of defeat and the certainty of undue loss. These platoon leaders in a country like the United States must be developed from young civilians, preferably college men, and those who have had the rudiments of military training make by far the best officers.

Dr. Hillis praised the heroic work of Cornell men in the war and then passed to the larger theme of America's contribution to the great struggle. The American soldiers saved civilization, liberty, religion. Theirs was sublime heroism born of the needs of the moment. It is well, said Dr. Hillis, to consider the odds against which they contended. The Hun had set out to conquer the whole world, and it looked as if he would succeed. France was well nigh exhausted and England, having poured out blood and treasure like water, could not have held out much longer. The moment of the battle of Chateau-Thierry was the most critical one in the most critical year of the world's history.

The speaker dwelt at some length on the German atrocities, on which he possesses expert information. The Germans, he said, had wrecked seventy-three cathedrals, eighteen colleges and universities, and ninety-four art galleries, had devastated thousands of orchards and forests, had carried a hundred thousand girls away from Belgium and Northern France, had wrecked 455,000 houses in France and Belgium, had caused the death of 1,300,000 men, and had ruined the lives of hundreds of thousands of others by maiming and by disease.

This in some measure describes the terrible wave of barbarism against which the Allied forces were pitted, and indicates the significance of the victory which the American soldiery helped to win. Those who died in the terrible struggle could have given their lives for no more glorious cause; and perhaps they could have done no more for the world had they lived to old age. Service is measured not by its length but by its quality and character.

The war has settled some things decisively. Some scores of autocrats have disappeared from the stage. Czar and Emperor and Kaiser have gone, to trouble the world no more. Democratic government has received lasting confirmation and the unmistakable approval of the civilized world. In this settlement the two hundred and six Cornellians who gave their lives have a share which renders their fame immortal. They will live in the affectionate remembrance of the republic they served.

The exercises throughout were a solemn and appropriate tribute to men who nobly did what they could. Impressive occasions such as this give a more living sense to the old yet ever new maxim, "Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori."

The Glee Club Concert

Alumni Returning to Sing on Thursday, June 19. Plans for Next Year.

Arrangements for the Glee Club Concert to be given on Thursday, June 19, in Bailey Hall, are now practically complete. Besides the regular Glee Club of this year, between fifty and one hundred old Glee Club men will take part in the concert. The following classes will be represented in the concert: '71, '73, '77, '78, '81, '82, '86, '88, '89, '90, '91, '92, '93, '94, '95, '98, '99, '01, '04, and all succeeding classes up to '19.

Among the soloists who will be heard in "old favorites" at the concert are Hibby Ayer, Freddy Bissell, Eddy Burns, Louie Fuertes, Eddie Holmes, Jack Knight, Pink Clark, Buddy Fay, Bunny Mott, Ken Norton, Bunny Ramsburg, Cass Whitney, Erskine Wilder, and Sport Ward.

One of the features of the program is the "Big Four Comedy Quartet," Hibby Ayer, Buddy Fay, Jack Knight, and Ken Norton. The quartet will spring several new stunts.

Alumni singers will take notice of the announcement that all performers will appear in white flannel trousers.

Seats may be obtained by writing to the Athletic office, Schoellkopf Memorial Hall, Ithaca.

The Glee Club has already practically completed its plans for the annual joint Cornell-Pennsylvania concert to be given in Philadelphia on the evening of Thanksgiving Day; also for the Christmas trip of the musical clubs in the middle West. As usual, the men will travel in their own Pullmans, with a private diner and baggage car.

THE CLASS OF 1909

Robert E. Treman, secretary of the class of 1909, finds that his class has responded much better than any other class except a few of the very recent ones, and that over 150 will be at the Semi-Centennial Celebration. A reunion tax of $10 has been levied to cover suit, baseball game, banquet, and everything but living expenses and transportation. The 1909 booth will be at the corner of State and Tioga Streets, where tickets, suits, etc., will be given out by the committee, Fay Battey, chairman. Treman offers his services in obtaining reservations, rooms, accommodations, and almost anything for members of the class, and solicits telegrams from them.

THE S. C. C. HEADQUARTERS

The administration headquarters of the Semi-Centennial Celebration will be established in the Old Armory. There will be a booth at which alumni who have not yet obtained accommodations may be directed to suitable rooms. It is hoped that every Cornellian who returns will register in the Old Armory in order that an accurate record may be kept. It is proposed to post a list of all who have registered, for the easier locating of friends during the Celebration. A booth will also be established at which tickets for the various events may be obtained. There will be an information bureau in the Old Armory with postal and telegraph facilities. A representative of the local baggage transfer company will be present to expedite the transfer of baggage. The Railroad Administration will maintain a ticket office in these headquarters at which alumni may purchase the reduced fare return tickets and secure Pullman car reservations. A large parcel checking room will be established in the gymnasium.

It is believed that the plans for the registration of Cornellians will enable a very large number to register within a short period of time. It is hoped that all Cornellians who arrive in Ithaca on Thursday, June 19, will register on that day. Those arriving on Friday are urged to proceed immediately to the Old Armory in order that their registration may be effected before the beginning of the exercises at Schoellkopf Field at ten o'clock.

SPECIAL RAILROAD RATES

The United States Railroad Administration has granted a special railroad rate for the benefit of Cornellians who attend the Semi-Centennial Celebration. It amounts to two-thirds of the regular round trip fare. It will be available on any line controlled by the United States Railroad Administration. It will be necessary to pay full fare for the trip to Ithaca and this ticket will be good upon any train. In purchasing this ticket, a certificate should be requested from the station agent. This certificate is presented to the validating officer of the railroad in Ithaca and will then entitle the holder to a return trip on the same route at one-third of the regular fare. This special rate ticket will not be good on certain extra-fare trains, which in the Eastern District, include the Congressional Limited, the Twentieth Century Limited and the Broadway Limited. In order to secure this rate it is absolutely necessary to obtain a certificate at the time of purchasing the ticket to Ithaca. The special rate does not apply to Pullman tickets.

HONORS FOR KATTE '93

On June 5 Edwin B. Katté '93 was elected president of the New York Electrical Society, the oldest electrical society in the United States, which was formed in 1881. For some years Katté has been chief engineer for electrical traction of the New York Central Railroad, being in charge of the design, construction, and operation of its electric traction system. He is a past vice-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and a fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

DIED IN THE SERVICE*Chester I. Warren '03

Major Chester Ingersoll Warren died at his home in Troy, N. Y., on May 25. He had been ill only four days, and his condition was not regarded as serious.

Warren was born at Troy on February 22, 1880, a son of the late William H. Warren, and Mrs. Warren. He attended the Troy Academy and the Albany Academy, and entered Sibley College in 1899, receiving the degree of M.E. in 1903. He was a member of Kappa Alpha.

After leaving college, he was employed in the warming and ventilating department of the Fuller and Warren Company, engineers and contractors, of Troy, first in the New York office, and later in the home office. At the time of his enlistment he was vice-president and director of the company. On June 15, 1917, he was commissioned a captain in the Ordnance Reserve Corps, and was immediately called into active service at the Watervliet Arsenal. He was assigned to duty as quartermaster and assistant to the commanding officer, but in a short time, when the procurement of materials became a serious problem, he was assigned to the purchase department. He reorganized this department on the basis of its larger duties, superintended its operations throughout the war, closed out its contracts and orders which were rendered excessive by the war's termination, and finally readjusted the department to the routine duties of peace. He was promoted to the rank of major on January 19, 1918.

Warren was married on October 23, 1907, to Miss De Elte Samson, who survives him, with a son, Chester, jr. He leaves also his mother, a sister, and two brothers.

OBITUARY*William S. Wicks '76

William Sidney Wicks, who was a student in the College of Architecture from 1872 to 1874, died at his summer home in Barnevelt, N. Y., on May 30.

Mr. Wicks was born at Trenton (now Barnevelt), N. Y., on July 27, 1854, and received his early education in that place and in Utica, N. Y.; after leaving Cornell, he entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in the course in architecture, graduating in 1877.

Following his graduation, he was associated with prominent architects in Syracuse, N. Y., and later went to Auburn, where he entered into partnership with Edward B. Green, B. Arch. '78, under the firm name of Green and Wicks. The partners remained in Auburn for about a year, and then opened offices in Buffalo. They designed many buildings in Buffalo, notably the Marine Trust Company Building, the Fidelity Trust Company Building, the Chamber of Commerce Building, the South Park High School, and the Albright Art Gallery; Bailey Hall, at Cornell, and many of the State Fair buildings, at Syracuse, were also designed by this firm. The partnership was dissolved about two years ago, and the firm became Wicks, Kidd and Hopkins; later the name was changed to Wicks and Hopkins, as it now remains.

Mr. Wicks was considered one of the foremost authorities on modern building design; he was a writer of architectural subjects, and had published papers of international note. He was a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and served as president of the Buffalo chapter of that organization, and as vice-president of the state branch of the Institute. He was a thirty-third degree Mason, and a Knight Templar.

He was married on November 15, 1882, to Miss Emma E. Griffith, who died about three years ago. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Frederick R. Hopkins, of Buffalo, and Mrs. S. McCartney, of Little Neck, L. I.

Dr. Albert F. Coutant '13

Albert Francis Coutant died on April 18 at Manila, P. I.

Coutant was born on July 7, 1891, and entered Cornell from the Manual Training High School, Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1909, in the course of agriculture, receiving the degree of B. S. in 1913. He was a member of Janus, the Cosmopolitan Club, the Dramatic Club, and the Deutscher Verein, and in his sophomore year rowed on his college crew. He returned to Cornell as a graduate student in the fall of 1913, and was made general secretary of the Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs of America. He received the degree of A. M. in 1914, and later entered the Cornell Medical College in New York, where he received his M. D. in 1917.

After his graduation from the Medical College, Dr. Coutant was made house surgeon of the Memorial Hospital for the Treatment of Cancer, in New York. On September 5, 1917, he sailed for the Philippines, under the Rockefeller Foundation, to take charge, as chief surgeon, of the Hospital Ship Busuanga, working among the Moros. For six months, he was in charge of St. Luke's Hospital, Manila; on a recent trip to that place, he contracted a severe infection, and died within a few days of general septicemia.

On June 12, 1917, Coutant married Miss Mary W. Stewart (Barnard College '13); she has returned from the Philippines, and is living at 1058 A Sterling Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Bertha F. Yerke '16

Miss Bertha Frieda Yerke died at her home in Amsterdam, N. Y., on May 25. She had suffered a nervous breakdown, due to over-exertion in war work, and contracted influenza, which developed into acute tuberculosis.

Miss Yerke was born on January 11, 1895, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Yerke, of Amsterdam, N. Y. She prepared for college at the Amsterdam High School, and entered Cornell in 1912, in the course in agriculture, receiving the degree of B. S. in 1916. She was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi, and sang in the advanced choir during her entire course. In her senior year she was a member of the Risley house committee.

After leaving college she served for some time as food conservation agent of the New York State Food Supply Commission for Niagara County.

John R. Chadwick '21

John Rappleye Chadwick, a member of the class of 1921 in the College of Agriculture, died at the Cornell Infirmary on June 6, after having lain unconscious for a week. The case had been a puzzle to the physicians, but the certificate gives "meningitis of unknown origin" as the cause of his death.

Chadwick was born at Interlaken, N. Y., on March 30, 1899, and prepared at the Interlaken High School, entering Cornell in 1917. He was a member of Phi Delta Sigma.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Chadwick, and a sister, Louise, all of Ithaca.

RED CROSS RURAL SERVICE

The first rural home service institute in the Atlantic division of the Red Cross has been organized in cooperation with the College of Agriculture at Cornell University, and will hold its sessions during the period of the Cornell Summer School from July 5 to August 19. It is intended for the training of those who desire to continue in home service work as a peace-time activity of Red Cross chapters.

CLASS SECRETARIES TO MEET

The annual meeting of the Association of Class Secretaries for the election of officers and the transaction of business will be held in Goldwin Smith Hall, Room 224, Friday, June 20, at 8.30 o'clock. Vacancies in the list of secretaries to be filled are class of 1890, secretary for men; class of 1912, secretary for women.

Action will be taken on the motion to amend the by-laws made by W. J. Norton at the mid-winter meeting in New York City, December 28. Mr. Norton's motion was, to reduce the dues of all classes to two dollars a year.

Secretaries, who find it impossible to attend the meeting, should see that the class is represented and send a notification of who the representative will be, to Ross W. Kellogg, secretary, Board of Commerce, Ithaca.

CREW MEN TO MEET

There is to be a meeting of all crew men who won their varsity C while at the University, at 11 a. m. on June 19, in the assembly room of Schoellkopf Memorial Hall. It is hoped that all former varsity crew men will make an effort to be present at this crew reunion.

A letter has been sent to all whose address could be obtained, but this list is doubtless incomplete. It is expected that all those who hear of this meeting will do their best to be present.

THE OLD CORNELL

The Semi-Centennial Celebration Committee has recently received the following letter:

"It would be a keen pleasure to join in the glad time at Ithaca the coming June, but circumstances beyond my control prevent my coming on, to my regret. You, and your associates, will have a splendid time in the welcome you give the old boys of earlier days of Cornell; may you have all the success you expect!

"In '69 when I went there, South University was finished. The chimneys in a low wooden tower near by. North University was finished while I was there. The McGraw Building, between them, up to the second story, and a low one-story building about one hundred feet east was all we had. Not a building south, until you reached Cascadilla. But the view to the north, over the lake, the hills to the west, the valley to the south, all the walks within six to eight miles of Ithaca, each and every one of these have ever been delightful remembrances. I recall my associations there with a grateful memory. My lectures under President White, those of Goldwin Smith, history and French with Professors Russel and Crane, physiology under Professor Wilder, literature, Professor Sprague, chemistry and physics under Professor Crafts and Professor Blake. Professor Wilson, our genial registrar, the Baptist Church I attended, located in the park in Ithaca, the house where I roomed, opposite the then Methodist Church location, the earnest men there as students, all have ever had since that time a lasting influence on me and mine. That we had little to do with in the way of buildings was of little consequence; we never gave a thought to it.

"It was the men, their character, and their determination to make Mr. Cornell's plans a success, that drew out from the men of those days the best they had in them, and to secure while there, which they easily did, the inspiration that never leaves me. My debt to Cornell has never been forgotten. Excuse these reminiscences.

"With kind regards,

"Truly yours,

WILFRED BARNES '73"

Boston, May 22, 1919.

IN PRAISE OF THE "Y"

With the general statement that in spite of all criticisms which have been made of the Y. M. C. A., Professor S. N. Spring, who has just returned from service in that organization in France, says that it did a tremendous lot of good work, and that it should not be judged on the basis of individual failures at isolated points, but that its work should be measured by a comparison of what would have happened had the "Y" not been with the American Army.

Professor Spring left the United States early last October, going almost directly to Paris, and from there to a remount depot on the River Loire about 140 miles south of Paris. Here he was hut secretary, and organized the work in the midst of a supply depot, spending two months in this branch of the service.

After two months here Professor Spring was put in charge of educational work for a large district, and became practically a supervisor of education for a group of men which included practically every grade from those who were wholly illiterate and could neither read nor write to those who had the equivalent of the sophomore year in an American university.

Professor Spring found the work here exceedingly interesting, though somewhat difficult because there was not only the problem of instruction for those who ranged all the way from the primary grade to college, but also the difficulty of adjusting the time of instruction so that it would fit the periods when the men were not actually on duty. He worked in these general educational activities of the Y. M. C. A. until the duties connected with the post schools were taken over by the educational corps of the United States Army. He was asked to join the Army in order to engage in this service, but had to decide not to do so in order that he might get back to Cornell in time to take up his work with the summer term in the Forestry Department.

He arrived in New York on the 24th of May on the U. S. S. Kadnor, and got to Ithaca on June 2.

Professor Spring enters immediately into his duties at the College, and will go with the forestry students to their summer work in connection with actual lumbering in the woods.

CALIFORNIA WOMEN MEET

A particularly interesting meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of the bay cities of California was held in May at the home of Mrs. Walter Mulford, of Berkeley. It was a luncheon meeting with Dr. Eva C. Reid as guest of honor. Dr. Reid has just returned from France, where she was decorated by the French Government.

Toward the end of the luncheon there appeared a huge cake with fifty red and white candles in honor of Cornell's coming birthday and as a reminder that plans must be started by those who expect to be present at the Semi-Centennial Celebration.

During the business meeting the club voted an endorsement of the League of Nations and instructed the secretary to advise our Senators of the action.

DO IT NOW

Some Cornellians undoubtedly expect to come to the Semi-Centennial Celebration who have not sent in a record of their intentions or made application for tickets to the various events for which a charge is made.

A card is enclosed which should be returned to the Secretary of the University by those who intend to be present but have not yet sent in notification of the fact. A coupon also appears on the lower half of the back cover. The purpose of this coupon is somewhat different from that of the card. It is to enable one to remit in advance for events for which a charge is made.

Mr. Bostwick has a big job on his hands, to purchase enough supplies to care for all and not to waste. He and Mr. Treman must endeavor to fill, without crowding, the halls, rooming houses, stands, and other space available for the events of the Celebration. Each celebrant should assist by at least this much, sending in either or both cards if he has not done so already.

GENERAL EXAMINATIONS

The recent announcement that Harvard will establish general examinations for the degree of Bachelor of Arts will not cause surprise to those who have been familiar with President Lowell's views. He has repeatedly urged the point that no person should be entitled by a mere aggregation of credits to claim a diploma, but should somehow demonstrate that he knows some one thing well. Some four or five years ago the Harvard Division of History, Government, and Economics began an experiment with such examinations and it proved most successful. Of this plan The Harvard Alumni Bulletin says:

"The distinguishing feature of the 'general' examination is that it comes just before the student's graduation and thus enables the examiners to obtain a survey of his entire work in the field of study to which he has devoted special attention. It is an examination on subjects, not on courses, and hence is not directly related to the things which the undergraduate has been taught in the classroom. It is designed not only to find out what a student has learned during his four years in college, but to ascertain whether he can apply his knowledge to new problems and thus demonstrate the real measure of his education."

"The general examination, it may be further explained, covers the student's field of 'concentration,' in other words that branch of college work in which he is required by the rules to take four or more full courses. It tests him in the field which he has studied most thoroughly and in which he may be assumed, therefore, to make the best showing. The examiners take it for granted that the student who cannot display some intellectual resourcefulness at the close of his college career, even in that subject to which he has given the major share of his interest, ought not to be turned out into the community as an educated man. The degree of A.B. is accordingly withheld from those who fail to make a reasonably satisfactory showing at this general examination although the requirements for the degree may have been fully met in other respects."

Whitman College, we believe, sets a similar test for its seniors. The example of these progressive institutions will doubtless be followed by other colleges and universities which are not afraid of subjecting their candidates for graduation to a searching test, not of memory but of judgment, discrimination, and "resourcefulness," and which insist on a high standard for their degree. It can hardly be doubted that the men who pass this examination, if it is of the right sort, will be better equipped for their future career than the students of to-day who smatter through many courses and get nowhere in any one line.

WILMINGTONIANS SUP

The Cornellians of Wilmington, Delaware, held a supper and Semi-Centennial rally at the Nobis Hotel on June 6. As special attractions the committee announced a jazz orchestra, varsity motion pictures, a legerdemain show, and four-minute talks by service men and others. The tickets were $4. The secretary for the committee of ten was Alexander Laird, I. O. O. F. Building.

'12 RUNNING STRONG

The On-to-Ithaca Gazette for May 15 has lately appeared. This enterprising organ of the class of '12 announces that about two hundred '12 men are expected for the Semi-Centennial. As only about seventy have signed up with Andy Whinery so far, the difference will have to be made good by somebody. There are about 880 members of the class. Nine members died in the service.

DETROIT OUTING

The annual outing of the Detroit club is to take place at Put-in Bay on June 14. It will be an all-day affair.

The secretary of the club announces that the Chicago special train to the Semi-Centennial will take on any Detroiters who desire through connections, and these should communicate with M. A. Beltaire, jr., 'phone Cadillac 7680, line 71, Detroit.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

THE HARVARD UNION will endeavor to increase its membership by reducing the annual dues to five dollars, providing regular lectures and entertainments, and placing in charge a salaried manager who will try to make it a real club in every sense of the term.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA regents have recently adopted a budget providing an increase in salaries amounting altogether to $105,000 for the faculty of three hundred and eighteen members.

THE SMITH COLLEGE Training School

for Social Work has just completed the first course ever given in psychiatric social work. The school is a graduate professional school offering not only psychiatric social work but also other related courses, in two summer periods of study and clinical observation, with nine months of practical work in between. There is a serious shortage of trained workers in this field, which is both interesting and attractive.

THE TRUSTEES of the University of Pennsylvania have taken the following action regarding the increase of salaries: All full-time instructors, assistant professors, and professors whose regular salaries do not exceed $4,000 will receive an increase of twenty-five per cent. All whose salaries are between $4,000 and $6,000 will receive an increase of twenty per cent. Those whose salaries are $6,000 and over will receive an increase of ten per cent. The endowment of the University is only about $6,000,000 and the annual income $1,900,000.

PRESIDENT GUY POTTER BENTON, of the University of Vermont, has resigned his office as president, held since 1911, to take effect on July 1. He is now educational director of the American (Third) Army of Occupation in Germany, with headquarters at Coblenz.

BRIGADIER GENERAL CHARLES HAMILTON MITCHELL, Toronto '92, has been appointed dean of the Toronto Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

DR. LIBERTY HYDE BAILEY will deliver the commencement address at the Kansas State Agricultural College.

N. Y. DOWNTOWN LUNCHEONS

During the summer months, the usual gatherings of Cornell men working downtown in New York City will be continued. The meeting place is the Machinery Club, 50 Church Street. A large table is reserved through the courtesy of several Cornellians who are members of the club. Lunches are held every Wednesday, starting about 12.30 o'clock. All Cornell men are invited. Service à la carte.

A CORRECTION

Through an error for which the ALUMNI NEWS is not responsible, it was stated in our issue of last week, page 426, that Miss Annette J. Warner and Miss Blanche E. Hazard had been appointed assistant professors of home economics in the College of Agriculture. The fact is that they were made acting professors.

ATHLETICS

The Week in Baseball
Cornell 2, Yale 1

The Cornell baseball team defeated Yale at New Haven last Saturday by the score of 2 to 1. Ensworth's home run drive in the first inning, bringing Spiers in too, gave Cornell her only scores, but they were enough to win. Olsen pitched a fine game for Cornell.

Spiers started the game with a single past first base and went to second on a passed ball. Quinlan went out on a fly and Corwin struck out. Ensworth then came to bat. He allowed three balls to go by, but when Robinson grooved one over the plate Cornell's hard hitting right fielder drove out a hit well past Holden in center field, bringing Spiers home and completing the circuit himself.

Yale scored in the seventh inning. With two men out Thorne Murphy singled to left field, and reached second on Harden's wild throw. He scored on Robinson's hit. The summary:

Brown 4, Cornell 1

The baseball team lost to Brown at Providence on Friday by a score of 4 to 1. A three-base hit by Erickson of Brown with the bases full in the eighth inning clinched the game for the home team. Cornell made her only run in the second inning when Ensworth drove out a two-base hit to Hall, who let the ball roll by him allowing Cornell's right fielder to cross the plate. The score:

Brown	---	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	3	0	4	7	2

Cornell 12, Rochester 3

The team won an easy victory over Rochester on Percy Feld last Wednesday, the score being 12 to 3. The game was loosely played on both sides. Hard hitting won for the home team.

Ortner Basketball Coach

The Minor Sports Athletic Council announces the appointment of Howard B. Ortner '19, of Buffalo, N. Y., as coach of the basketball team for next year. He succeeds Dr. Albert H. Sharpe as director of the varsity basketball, the latter having been head coach of this sport as well as of football and baseball, for the past six years. Ortner has been one of the leading figures in collegiate basket ball circles in recent years. He played on the 1915-16, 1916-17, and 1918-19

Cornell teams. During the 1917-18 season he was in military service.

In the 1916-17 season Ortner was second highest point scorer in the Inter-collegiate League. Last season he captained the team and was its most successful point-getter.

LITERARY REVIEW

Books and Magazine Articles

Professor Wilbur C. Abbott, '92-5 Grad., of Yale University, is the author of a monograph on "Col. John Scott, of Long Island, 1634(?) - 1696," which the Yale University Press has just published. It contains 93 pages, and the price is $1.25. Professor Abbott is also one of the writers on "The Greater Adventure" [a League of Nations], in The Unpopular Review for April-June, treating the special topic "After Napoleon and After Wilhelm II." His attitude is indicated by the following quotation: "Whatever happens to the present plan, the idea of a League of Nations must not fail. Like the Holy Alliance it will unquestionably in its present form be subject to attack of the most virulent character, mocked at, and distorted out of all resemblance to its real nature. It will, like the preliminary fourteen points—like our own Constitution—be greatly modified. But it must be mended, not ended."

Besides Professor Abbott, two other Cornellians are represented in The Unpopular Review for April-June. Dr. Violet Barbour '06, of Vassar, writes on "Ladies of Labor and Leisure," discussing reform in women's clothes. Frank H. Fayant '98, now assistant to the chairman of the Railways Executives Advisory Committee, discusses "The Government and the Railroads." He looks with favor upon the return of the railroads to private control. "While before the war," he says, "our system of public control had its obvious faults, under it was developed the most perfect transportation machine in the world. The best railroads of Europe are many years behind ours in engineering development and operating efficiency. With this achievement before us, should we not attempt to correct the recognized faults in our system of regulation, and build on the sure foundation of the past, rather than enter on an era of political experimenting with new and untried policies? If we are to have a more definite guarantee that capital and brains devoted to the production of transport shall be fairly rewarded, let us find a formula that will not admit of too easy translation into Government ownership."

George F. Zook, Ph.D. '14, in The Journal of Negro History for April discusses "The Company of Royal Adventurers Trading into Africa." His monograph fills ninety-eight pages. It formed his doctoral thesis at Cornell written under the direction of the late Professor Catterall.

Professor Ernest G. Lorenzen '98, of the Yale Law School, has lately published three articles: "Huber's De Conflictu Legum," in The Illinois Law Review for December and January last, being one of the Celebration Legal Essays in honor of Professor John H. Wigmore; "Moratory Legislation Relating to Bills and Notes and the Conflict of Laws," in The Yale Law Journal for February; and "Mariage by Proxy and the Conflict of Laws," in The Harvard Law Review for March.

Dr. Leland O. Howard '77 publishes in Science for May 16 a paper on "Methods of Securing Better Cooperation Between Government and Laboratory Zoologists in the Solution of Problems of General or National Importance," which he read before the American Society of Zoologists at Baltimore on December 26 last. It is followed by a discussion of the paper and the problem by Professor J. G. Needham.

Louise Fargo Brown '03 is the author of a timely volume on "The Freedom of the Seas," a history of rights on the high seas and the controversies regarding those rights in time of war throughout the Christian era; showing also the position taken by various nations, parties to maritime disputes. The book embodies the extensive investigations carried on by Miss Brown as holder of the Alice Freeman Palmer Fellowship awarded by the Association of Collegiate Alumnae. The publishers are E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

The first number of The Cornell Law Quarterly for the current year is the number for April, which has just appeared. The leading article is a lecture by the late Dean Francis M. Finch on "Seisin." From the prefatory note we infer that in accordance with the wishes of many alumni other lectures by Dean Finch will be printed later. William L. Ransom '05 writes on "The Legislative Power, the Public Utility Rate, and the Local Franchise." As chief counsel for the New York State Public Service Commission for the First District, and member of the Valuation Committee of the National Association of State Railway and Public Utility Commissioners he himself participated in the leading cases discussed in the article. Dean Edwin H. Woodruff '88 reviews "Lemuel Shaw, Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, 1830-1860," by Frederic Hathaway Chase (Houghton Mifflin Company). Professor Rasmus S. Saby, '08-9 Grad., briefly reviews "American City Progress and the Law," by Howard Lee McBain (Columbia University Press).

In The New York Tribune for May 11 Professor H. J. Davenport writes on "What Basis of Value for Public Utilities?" His conclusions are these: "(1) Valuable private franchises for the performance of public functions are relics of barbarism. (2) The fact, if fact it be, that any present railroad property has been in the main constructed out of past gains of operation is not to the point in the fixation of present rates. The properties are there as powers both of service and of earnings. (3) The railroads are right in their demand that the rates cover the present traffic costs, inclusive of returns on that investment now actually incorporated in the present properties. (4) The claim of the companies to compute as among their present costs of service an interest charge on either the present market value or the present replacement costs of their rights of way, terminals, street installations and the like, must be pronounced untenable."

In the May issue of The Lamp appears an article on "Changing Aspects of Industry" by Walter C. Teagle '99. Of another article on "Engineering and Chemical Research Laboratory at Bayway" Clarence J. Robinson '84 is joint author. The Lamp is a magazine published from time to time in the interest of the employees of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, of which Teagle is president and Robinson chief chemist.

"An Episode in France," a war play based on an actual incident, written by Professor H. Wade Hibbard '91, was read in April before the Play Reading Club of the University of Missouri. The play is in four scenes and includes ten characters.

Professor Lane Cooper prints in School and Society for May 31 his address on "Patterns," delivered at the dinner of the Pennsylvania chapter of Phi Beta Kappa on March 21.
