CAMPUS HUMS WITH SUMMER ACTIVITY

Naval Training School Swells Students at University To More Than 3,000

"Hep—One, Two, Three, Four—Hep."

Staccato orders of company commanders and the cadence of marching* men dominate the Campus as formations of khaki-clad young officers of the US Naval Reserve step smartly along to mess in Willard Straight Hall and to and from classes in the Naval Training School now established at the University.

1,000 Officers Here

Eight hundred officers reported at the School July 1 for a two-month course of Naval indoctrination. Quartered in Cascadilla Hall, Sheldon Court, and in the four north buildings of the University dormitories, they are under strict ship's discipline, with "Reveille" at 5:50 a.m., setting-up exercises before breakfast; all-day instruction in Navy regulations, Naval etiquette, ordnance and seamanship in the class-rooms of Olin Hall and Myron Taylor Hall; military training and physical exercise and sports on Alumni Field; and an evening study period with "Taps" at 10. They march to meals in Memorial Room and the southwest dining room of Willard Straight Hall during the summer, with a new mess hall adjoining the dormitories to be ready for them in September.

At the end of July, 125 of the new officers will be transferred to a four-month course in communications given with cooperation of the College of Engineering. Thereafter, 125 additional officers will be added to the communications course each month until the total is 750, with each group coming to the University for a preliminary month of indoctrination.

In addition, the 200 Reserve officers of the Diesel engine course in the College of Engineering have become a part of the Naval Training School, giving it a permanent quota of 950 officers in training. They are quartered and mess in Sage College.

Captain B. W. Chippendale, USN, ordered here from sea duty, is in command of the School. His executive officer is Lieutenant Commander

J. H. Smith. Lieutenant Commander George H. Hamilton is in charge of instruction in communications, and Lieutenant Arthur S. Adams, Assistant Dean of the College of Engineering, continues in charge of the Diesel engine courses which have been given here for a year. Some forty Naval officers and twenty enlisted men make up the School staff, its executive offices being fitted up in the former first-floor "parlors" of Sage College.

Captain Chippendale is a graduate of the US Naval Academy in 1915, served on submarines during and after the last war, has seen service on battleships and instructed in seamanship and navigation at the Academy, and recently commanded a destroyer division.

Summer Classes Busy

Although somewhat overshadowed by the Naval activities, approximately 2400 additional students are here for summer courses in the University. These include 769 registered for the fifteen-week summer terms in Engineering, Architecture, the Veterinary College, Law School, and the Graduate School; about 125 Freshmen who enrolled June 29 in the Colleges of Engineering and Arts and Sciences; and the rest in the regular six-week University Summer Session, the eleven-week accelerated summer programs in Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, and Home Economics, or the unit courses in Hotel Administration. With some students still enrolling, Professor Loren C. Petry, Director of the Summer Sessions, says that Cornell undergraduates are here this summer in nearly double the usual number, there is a considerable increase in undergraduates from other colleges, and the number of teachers and graduate students in the regular Summer Session shows a marked decrease.

Give Special Courses

Freshmen who requested them were assigned to rooms in the buildings of the University dormitories not occupied by the Naval Training School officers. Thirty or more fraternity houses and several sororities are open this summer, and a number are running dining rooms, some in cooperation with their neighbors. Willard Straight Hall has held an open house for the new Freshmen, and the usual Summer Session program of lectures, concerts, dances, University Theatre productions, and other social events is being exceptionally well attended.

Included among the students this year are twenty-nine teachers of history, social studies, and Spanish in the schools of seventeen States who were invited to participate in a six-weeks' "Workshop" on Latin America, the Far East, and the British Commonwealth. Established with a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, the Workshop includes informational courses on these countries and instructional aids to remedy their neglect in public school teaching. It is directed by Professor Howard R. Anderson, Education, assisted by Professors Frederick G. Marcham, PhD '26, English History; Knight Biggerstaff, Chinese History; Cornelis W. deKiewiet, Modern European History; and Dr. C. C. Griffin, associate professor of Latin American history at Vassar.

Twenty-five students are here for intensive courses in Russian which began June 15, with cooperation of the American Council of Naval Reserve officers report in Cascadilla Hall for assignment to quarters for a two-month indoctrination course in the Naval Training School at the University.

Fenner

Learned Societies. Three Russian-born experts are giving individual instruction under direction of Professor Ernest J. Simmons, chairman of the new Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures. Students are given the equivalent of two years of the usual instruction in the Russian language, with special emphasis on military use, to meet the urgent need for qualified persons in military and Naval intelligence, Government censorship, and decoding. A beginning course with twelve students will continue to September 12, and an advanced course with thirteen runs for six weeks, to July 25. It is expected that the courses will be repeated for the duration of the war.

College Teaches Pilots

College of Engineering, under Director William N. Barnard '97 of the School of Mechanical Engineering, has thirty Naval Aviation cadets for ground school instruction at the University and flight training at Ithaca Airport under the CAA pilot training program. These men, enrolled in the US Naval Aviation Reserve, were sent by the Cadet Selection Board of the Third Naval District for eight weeks of preliminary training. They are quartered at the YMCA, downtown.

A free course of aeronautical instruction for teachers in secondary schools has also been announced by Director Barnard. Sponsored by the CAA, it will offer seventy-two hours of ground school instruction in preparation for a fall program of preparing high school students for military and civilian flight training.

Also at the University, and in eleven other centers, more than 1,500 men and women are being trained in the Engineering, Science, and Management war courses of the US Office of Education, directed by Dr. Adams, Assistant Dean of Engineering. At the College, besides the Naval Reserve officers taking Diesel engine courses, 100 industrial workers of the vicinity are enrolled in five evening courses, forty-two are being trained as Civil Service inspectors of Army ordnance, and fifty civilian employees of the Army Signal Corps are taking a special course in communications. Radio courses are being given to 200 students under Dr. Adams's direction at Alfred University, Niagara University, and Vassar College, and 563 students are in seventeen evening courses in Buffalo, sixty-five in three courses in Auburn, 144 in seven courses in Binghamton, seventy-three in four courses in Corning, eighteen in Cortland, sixty in Elmira, forty in Endicott, fifteen in Geneva, twenty-one in Dunkirk, seventy-four in Niagara Falls.

PHILADELPHIA ENGINEERS

Philadelphia, Pa., chapter of the Cornell Society of Engineers has re-elected its officers for another year: Ezra H. Day '19, chairman; Gordon J. Mertz '20, vice-chairman; Edwin H. Brown '22, secretary-treasurer.

BOOCHEVER JOINS RED CROSS

LOUIS C. BOOCHEVER '12, University Director of Public Information the last fifteen years, was given leave of absence June 15 to become a special assistant to G. Stewart Brown, national director of public information of the American Red Cross. With headquarters in New York City, Boochever is engaged in special assignments for the Red Cross. Mrs. Boochever is maintaining their home at 310 Fall Creek Drive, Ithaca, and he will return for week ends.

Boochever came to Ithaca in January, 1927, as publicity director of the University's War Memorial campaign, and in July of that year was appointed a University official, to organize the Department of Public Information. He also directed the publicity of the Cornellian Council and edited the Cornellian Council Bulletin until 1936, and for years has been publicity director of the Athletic Association and a correspondent of the ALUMNI NEWS. During the last war, he was with the War Loan organization of the Second Federal Reserve District in New York City, and afterward became general manager of the War Savings organization in Greater New York.

He and Mrs. Boochever are the parents of Lieutenant Robert Boochever '39, US Army, now in Newfoundland, and of Louis C. Boochever, Jr. '41, who received a Harkness Fellowship in the Harvard School of Public Administration last year and is back in Ithaca this summer with a scholarship in the special Russian courses training for Government service.

CLEVELAND WOMEN ELECT

Cornell Women's Club of Cleveland, Ohio, at its annual meeting elected as president Mrs. E. J. Montgomery (Catherine Abbott) '35, succeeding Mrs. Edward MacLennan (Rika Gillett) '25. Mrs. Edward L. Clayton (Geraldine Mason) '39 is vice-president; Mrs. Carl Sperling (Judith Marx) '37, secretary; and Mrs. Robert Leininger (Ruby Osterman), Grad '38-9, treasurer. Sixteen members attended the meeting, which was at the home of Mrs. Loyal G. Tinkler (Marjorie Cole) '21. Ethel M. Williams '12 spoke on "The Literature of Our South American Neighbors."

ALUMNI IN WASHINGTON

Latest Cornellian to join the Government's war effort in Washington is Professor Lewis W. Morse '28, librarian of the Law School. Commissioned a captain, US Army, he will take charge of the central law library in the Judge Advocate General's Office, War Department, and will have general supervision of judge advocates' libraries throughout the Army, at home and abroad. He leaves Ithaca for Washington July 23, at the close of his summer term teaching in the Law School; has arranged to spend four days a month here to continue supervision of the Law School library in Myron Taylor Hall. Graduate of Colgate in 1925, Professor Morse received the LLB in 1928, was appointed lecturer in the Law School in 1932, librarian in 1935.

Further addition to the list of Cornellians with the various Washington war boards and agencies which we published June 4 is Professor H. Seymour Pringle '26, Agricultural Engineering Extension. He left June 1 to spend four months as a commodity expert on farm machinery with the Office of Price Administration, helping to determine what farm machinery will be manufactured in the United States in 1943.

Since our last issue, we have learned also that Robert S. Betten '28 was appointed June 2 associate chief of tire rationing in OPA. Son of Professor Cornelius Betten, PhD '06, Dean of the University Faculty, he had been since March a special consultant with OPA, resigning as public relations director of Sibley, Lindsay & Curr in Rochester. Howard P. Abrahams '25 has likewise resigned an executive position with the Ludwig Baumann chain of six furniture stores in New York City to work with the OPA furniture section in the Retail Trade and Services Division.

Word comes also that Edwin J. Fitzpatrick '32 is assistant to the chief of Food Supply Division in the War Production Board in Washington.

In the Office of the Undersecretary of the Navy, Dudley N. Schoales '29 is chief bureau consultant on raw materials, Office of Procurement and Materials. Likewise in the Office of Procurement and Materials of the Undersecretary's Office, H. Stanley Krusen '28 is a representative in the Bureau of Ships, Scheduling Section of the Scheduling and Reporting Division.

These and our previous list of Cornellians in Washington war boards are probably by no means complete. The News will report additions and changes as they come to our attention.

ALUMNI TRUSTEES REPORT ON UNIVERSITY

Report for the five-year term which ended at Commencement, 1942, was made jointly by Alumni Trustees Mary H. Donlon '20 and Alfred H. Hutchinson '09 for the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Association in Bailey Hall. Miss Donlon was reelected this year to serve until 1947, and Hutchinson was succeeded by Albert R. Mann '04. Their report follows:

Mary H. Donlon '20

TO THE ALUMNI:

Since June, 1937, it has been our privilege to represent Cornell alumni on the Board of Trustees of the University. Sensible of the high honor conferred upon us, and keenly aware of the responsibility of service implicit in our election as Alumni Trustees, we submit this report to the alumni.

These have been years of violent world change, and we stand now on the threshold of an uncertain tomorrow. Cornellians may well find it cause for satisfaction that Cornell was better braced than most institutions against the sudden shock of war. As early as 1939, Cornell began to make important educational contributions to the war effort of the United Nations. When December 7, 1941, found many universities and colleges in a state of baffled bewilderment, Cornell already for more than two years had been helping to win the war. That this was so, is high tribute to Cornell's leadership.

University Has Wise Leadership

The beginning of our Trustee terms in 1937 coincided with the beginning of Dr. Day's presidency. The formal ceremonies of his inauguration were, at his request, held on the week-end in October, 1937, which was the sixty-ninth anniversary of the opening of the University. Again, as in 1868, distinguished educators gathered in Ithaca to welcome a Cornell president. Alumni who attended the exercises in Bailey Hall on October 8, 1937, knew as they listened to the thought-provoking addresses of the Presidents of Dartmouth, Harvard, and Michigan, and of President Day, that the great liberal University of Ezra Cornell and Andrew D. White could wisely be entrusted to the leadership of Cornell's new President. The five intervening years have justified that opinion and confirmed the judgment of the Trustee-Faculty committee which, under the chairmanship of J. DuPratt White, recommended the election of President Day.

It is important that an educational administrator at the head of a great University should possess clear vision and steadfast courage, sound common sense and judgment, and an understanding of budgets and finance as well as of educational policies and curricula. These qualities President Day possesses in marked degree.

The Cornell Board has had since 1937 three different chairmen. In 1938, Judge Frank H. Hiscock, after twenty-two years of service as chairman of the Board, resigned that office, but he consented to continue as Trustee. He has been a Cornell Trustee for forty-nine years. There is no one, with the single exception of Andrew D. White, who has given so unstintingly of his time and efforts in Cornell's behalf over so long a period, as has Judge Hiscock. He has set a high standard for Cornell alumni in the service of their Alma Mater.

In January, 1939, the Board elected J. DuPratt White as chairman, but Mr. White's fatal illness prevented him from actively participating in any Board meeting during his term of office as chairman. Alumni find in Mr. White's record of service, as in Judge Hiscock's, a challenging standard of loyalty and devotion to the best interests of the University.

Cornellians are fortunate in having as Mr. White's successor in the important post of Board chairman, H. Edward Babcock who brought to that office the experience of ten years of service as a Cornell Trustee and who, during Mr. White's last illness, served as acting chairman. Mr. Babcock is resident in Ithaca, accessible for consultation when the President seeks his aid, well acquainted with the problems of the University, and generous of his time and talents in the service of Cornell.

Trustee Committees Work

Cornell has a large Board, forty Trustees in all. There are also four Faculty representatives. Fourteen of the present Trustees are new members of the Board in the period since 1937. That is a fairly high rate of turn-over, more than in most five-year periods. Four of the new fourteen are ex-officio Trustees, ten are elected or appointed Trustees. All four Faculty representatives are newly appointed since 1937.

A large Board functions best through committees that report to the full Board. Under Chairman Babcock there has been considerable expansion in the number and work of Trustee committees. Every Trustee, except a few of the ex-officio Trustees, is now a member of one or more active Trustee committees. This enlargement of responsibility and division of work is a part of the preparedness which has enabled the Cornell Board to come quickly to grips with war problems.

In addition to the special and subject committees, two new standing committees of the Board have been set up during the past five years. These are the Committee on University Development and the Committee on Relations with Public Authorities. The former, under the chairmanship of Trustee Maxwell M. Upson, has as its task the development of support for the endowed colleges. Provost H. W. Peters, appointed to office in 1938, cooperates with this committee. His efforts are primarily devoted to augmenting the resources of the University.

From its founding Cornell has been a Land Grant University, with consequent Federal relationships. We have on the Campus three splendid State-supported Colleges. Government need for increased tax revenues presses on the tax exempt institutions which increasingly are called upon to justify their traditional privilege of exemption. The continuance of Cornell's good relations with public authorities is important. The Committee on Relations with Public Authorities has as its chairman Trustee Edward R. Eastman.

There have been many and serious Faculty losses by death since 1937, and several important vacancies resulting from transfers to educational or administrative posts in other institutions. During the past two years the government has called from the teaching staff experts whose services are valuable in the national war effort. Many Faculty members now on leave are in the armed or civilian services. During these years Cornell has brought to its Faculty scholars, scientists, and teachers of distinction in their several fields. The academic exodus from Germany and German-dominated countries has enabled Cornell to attract to Ithaca a few distinguished members of European faculties. The Faculty today, notwithstanding serious losses, is outstanding and Cornellians may take pride in its excellence.

Since 1937, there have been several changes in Deanships. Deans newly appointed to their present posts during this period include Dr. Cornelius Betten as Dean of the University Faculty, Dean Sabine of the Graduate School, Dean Hollister of the College of Engineering, and Dean Clarke of the College of Architecture. Upon the retirement of Miss Flora Rose, Director of the College of Home Economics, Miss Sarah G. Blanding, formerly of the University of Kentucky, came to Cornell in 1941 as the new Director and, effective July 1, 1942, she will be Dean of the College of Home Economics. Dean William S. Ladd of the Medical College was stricken with illness last summer and has been on leave this year. In September, 1941, Dr. Walter L. Niles became Acting Dean and served until his sudden death in December, 1941, when Dr. J. C. Hinsey was appointed Acting Dean, serving in that capacity for the balance of the academic year.

In 1938, George F. Rogalsky was appointed Comptroller, and in 1939 his title was changed to Treasurer of the University. Upon the retirement of Woodford Patterson in 1940, the Trustees appointed Edward K. Graham as Acting Secretary of the University and in 1941 he was made Secretary.

Educational Progress

The administration of the Cornell Medical College in New York City is vested in the Joint Administrative Board of Cornell University and the New York Hospital. Prior to the present academic year, a representative of the Hospital has always served as chairman of this important Board. It is evidence of the cordial relationship between the two institutions, and a tribute to President Day's service in the development of the Medical Center, that the Joint Administrative Board has this year elected him its chairman. The offering of the first year of Medical College work at Ithaca having been terminated in 1938, the entire work of the Cornell Medical College is now concentrated at the Medical Center.

There has been an encouraging expansion of curricula reflected in new academic offerings at Ithaca. There has been increasing emphasis on research. There have been numerous administrative improvements. In the course of the years there had developed some departments which, to a degree, duplicated staff and instruction in two or more Colleges of the University. Wherever possible these have been combined. In the College of Arts and Sciences, a system of departmental chairmanships was inaugurated.

New schools recommended by the University Faculty and authorized by the Board of Trustees, with degree courses, include the School of Nutrition and the School of Business and Public Administration, at Ithaca, and the School of Nursing at the Medical Center in New York. With the exception of the School of Business and Public Administration, they will be functioning next year.

Student enrollment increased annually from 1937 until the present academic year. In the year 1940-41, a new high was reached, with 7,315 students. In that year, the University granted 1,647 degrees. In the present academic year 1941-42, 7036 students have been enrolled. Enrollment mortality of approximately 8 per cent. in the second term, as against a normal second-term mortality of approximately 5 per cent., compares favorably with other large Eastern universities. Academic instruction has been accelerated in an effort to afford opportunity for young men to complete all or the major part of their degree work before they reach draft age.

Student Living Improved

Since the beginning of the current academic year, Cornell has had two full-time administrative officers with the title of Counselor of Students. One is a man, the other a woman. There has long been student counselling for women at Cornell. Upon recommendation of the Faculty, the program of student counselling has been extended also to men.

Student affairs, as they have come officially to the attention of the Trustees, have been generally satisfactory. The Athletic Association, in 1937-38, achieved a basis on which it operated without a deficit and began to pay its debt to the University. The Student Council has developed an encouraging capacity for student self-government leadership. Willard Straight Hall has proved its worth as the center of student activities to a degree which its donor, Mrs. Leonard K. Elmhirst, has found gratifying. Special problems have beset the Cosmopolitan Club because of conditions abroad which affect, financially and otherwise, Cornell's foreign students. Help has been extended where it was urgently necessary, notably in the case of stranded Chinese students. Cornell United Religious Work, Faculty-student association of cooperating denominational groups, has sponsored in each of the past two years annual large-scale and well attended conferences on "Religion in Modern Life."

In 1937, there was expressed a certain amount of student dissatisfaction with military drill, which is compulsory for male underclassmen. In consultation with a Trustee committee appointed to review the situation, the Infantry unit was dropped and ROTC instruction concentrated in Field Artillery, Ordnance, and Signal Corps units. Lately the applications have greatly exceeded the number of upperclassmen admissible for advanced training. This year there are approximately 2300 underclassmen in the basic training course, and 400 upperclassmen who expect to be commissioned second lieutenants on graduation.

Upon petition of a group of students, the Board in 1939 appointed a Trustee committee to appraise the University's facilities for care of sick students. As a direct result there was established at the beginning of the year 1940-41 a full-time ambulatory clinic for students in the building at No. 7 Central Avenue, south of Willard Straight Hall, and operation of the Infirmary was placed under the supervision of a Director and staff of resident physicians who have the cooperation of a visiting staff of local and out-of-town physicians and specialists. The University Infirmary and Clinic became an accredited institution upon receiving, in October, 1941, the approval of the American College of Surgeons.

Sage College, which since 1876 has been a dormitory for women, will at the close of the current academic year house the ensigns of the US Naval Reserve stationed at Cornell for Diesel engine instruction. Women students displaced from Sage will be temporarily housed in cottages. The relocation of the Engineering College ultimately will make it necessary to raze Sage, and a Trustee-Faculty committee has developed plans for a new dormitory for women on a site adjacent to Balch Halls.

There has been considerable plant expansion. New service buildings, including laundry, storage and bake shops, have been built at East Ithaca, resulting in substantial savings in operating costs. A new high-voltage testing laboratory has been built near East Ithaca, with a railroad spur line running into the building for easy delivery of heavy materials for testing. The Federal Nutrition Research Laboratory, pioneer in the now all-important field of nutrition, was established. The new laboratory of the College of Veterinary Medicine has been completed and named Moore Hall in memory of the distinguished former Dean of that College, Dr. Veranus A. Moore. Sage Chapel was enlarged to increase its seating capacity, significant testimony that Cornell students do attend chapel services. The plans for new sports buildings for men and women were approved, but funds are not yet available for their construction. After much travail, the decision was reached to relocate the buildings of the Engineering College at the south end of the main Campus. Through the generosity of Trustee Franklin W. Olin, the first building of the group has been erected. Olin Hall, home of the School of Chemical Engineering, will be formally dedicated this fall. Its splendid facilities for expanded work in chemical engineering have become available at the very moment when they are most useful in the war effort.

Alumni Contributions Increase

Gifts and bequests to the University have been maintained at a steady and encouraging level. The financial needs of the University are great, and none greater than the need for unrestricted annual income. The Alumni Fund has expanded its gift of unrestricted income from $68,562.74 in 1937-38 to $112,901.94 in 1940-41. Because of rising costs, decreased tuition revenues, and the prospect that corporate dividends will be reduced under the new tax program, the Alumni Fund is now the University's life line. As Alumni Trustees, we have been particularly proud of the fine response of the Alumni Fund and we have had the opportunity of realizing the importance of its contribution.

Cornellians can give with confidence that under President Day the finances of the University are being carefully administered. In the academic year 1937-38 for the first time since the academic year 1924-25, Cornell kept current expenditures within income. During each subsequent academic year, Cornell has again operated within its income. Whether Cornell or any other university can continue to do so during the war years, with decreased student enrollment and the prospect of reduced investment income, is a serious question. The President and Trustees have been determined that Cornell shall operate within its income, but the national emergency may make it impossible to do so.

Newly established, the Cornell plan of gift annuities affords to alumni and others the opportunity of combining a gift to Cornell with an income for life at annuity rates based on age. Funds given by annuity donors are invested by the Trustee Committee on Finance. Probably there is not an institution in the country, educational, commercial, or philanthropic, that has a more experienced and capable finance committee. Cornell Gift Annuities are authorized under the laws of the State of New York and are subject to supervision of the State Insurance Department. It is the belief of the Trustees that many generously disposed persons, especially those of modest means, will welcome the freedom from investment worries and the assurance of regular income that a Cornell Gift Annuity will give them. Cornell alumni can render a real service to the University by making widely known the fact that Cornell Gift Annuities are now available.

The reorganized Cornell Alumni Association, as one of its first activities, made a survey of the methods of nominating and electing Alumni Trustees and of possible improvements in such methods, in order that the best qualified and ablest available alumni might regularly be elected as Alumni Trustees. We would be the last to suggest that the present method has succeeded in adequately covering the field in the search for Trustee material. In fact, we believe that much could be done in that respect. From the vantage point of our five years' experience as Alumni Trustees, we reaffirm the wisdom of President White in writing into Cornell's charter the provision, then new to American colleges but now widely accepted, that the alumni should have the privilege of electing a stated number of Trustees. It is a valuable alumni franchise, and like all democratic privileges it will become tarnished if not used. We believe it is worthy of your careful concern and diligent exercise.

University Gives War Aid

What of the future? Cornell is busy with war activities. The enlarged ROTC, the several Navy programs, large scale participation in the ESMDT program, intensive specialized instruction in the Russian language, government research projects in engineering, nutrition, physics, chemistry, agriculture, and medicine, extension courses retraining approximately 7000 engineers in the war industry centers, the State-wide Extension Services of the Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics, accelerated academic schedules that are optional in most colleges of the University but mandatory for Medical and Veterinary students, all these make it evident, even to a casual observer, that Cornell is a humming hive of war effort. But there is more, much more, that Cornell is doing and must continue to do.

A great University, dedicated to the training of youth for peace time leadership in a democratic society, continues to carry on that fundamental task as best it can, despite war strains and war dislocations. Mounting public debt and soaring taxes threaten to dry up the resources of generous donors whose gifts have been the chief support of endowed universities and colleges. A great and growing Army and Navy, and the demands of war production, divert from the Campus many who in normal times would come to Cornell for a sound University education.

We, too, here in America may have a lost generation, and that possibility is a sobering thought. Win the war we must and shall; yet in the winning of it we should not lose at home the hope of reconstruction. Already young Cornellians who knew and loved this Campus have gone out to the fighting fronts of the world. Others will follow them in steadily increasing numbers. Neither they nor we would wish it to be otherwise. Their names begin, already, to appear in the lists of those who in far places have given to their country "the last full measure of devotion."

Side by side with them, here at home we too must fight to win. Ours is the task of saving those free and typically American institutions which, after the military war is won, will rebuild and save our country. Cornell is such an institution, dedicated from its founding to education of the leaders of a free people. We, the home-front alumni, must bring Cornell through the war with strength and purpose unimpaired, if the victory for which young Cornellians are fighting is finally to be won. When the tasks of war are finished and the slow and painful work of reconstruction begins, our hope of realizing a better, more peaceful world will depend on the assured continuance of Cornell's kind of university education. Cornellians in the armed services will help win the military victory. We who stay at home dare not fail them. We, too, serve for the duration.

Respectfully submitted,

AWARD 1,439 DEGREES

Degrees granted by the University in this war year totalled 1,439 as compared with a record total of 1,649 in 1940-41. Decrease of 210 is accounted for entirely by the difference in degrees awarded at the end of this academic year, when 887 first degrees were granted at the May Commencement as compared with 1,001 in June, 1941, and 216 advanced degrees this year compare with 312 last year.

The Law School in its first year of accelerated instruction graduated two Classes, March 4 and May 28, totalling 59, as compared with 52 in May, 1941. At the June 10 Medical College Commencement, 75 degrees were awarded as compared with 63 last year. Degrees awarded from Graduate School in Ithaca this year totalled 286, as compared with 403 last year.

ALBANY WOMEN ACTIVE

Annual meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of Eastern New York, at the Albany Institute of History and Art, was the sixth evening meeting of a year which also included well-attended luncheons for President Day and Director Sarah G. Blanding, Home Economics.

Mrs. Arthur G. Pellman (Helen Weber) '23, who has presided at every meeting in her two years of office, introduced the new officers: Mrs. William Streets (Ruth Luscher) '22, president; Mrs. James E. Montgomery (Cornelia Munsell) '20, vice-president; Charlotte F. Walker '37, recording secretary; Mrs. Walter Benedict (Winifred Lansing), AM '33, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles A. Clark, Jr. (Helen Harding) '36, treasurer.

Mrs. Peter C. Gallivan (Margaret Kelly) '24, chairman of the Federation Scholarship Fund committee, reported that for the third year the Club had contributed $100 to the Fund. Mrs. Streets reported for the secondary schools committee on the Club's participation in a "College Day" at Delmar High School where seventy-five colleges were represented and 400 students from sixty-five high schools were present with their parents. Mrs. Frederick D. Colson (Edna McNary) '00, chairman of the membership committee, reported that ninety-four members of the Club had attended one or more meetings during the year.

SEVENTY-FIVE GET MD At Medical Commencement

Forty-fourth Commencement of the Medical College, June 10 in the College auditorium in New York City, was the last under the traditional four-year course. The new accelerated program to supply the national need for doctors started July 8 for students now in the College who will continue their studies through the summer and with a new class entering, to be graduated in three years.

President Edmund E. Day conferred the MD upon seventy-five members of the Medical College Class of '42. Thirteen of these received first degrees at Cornell; the others at thirty-three colleges and universities. Thirty-three of the graduates were commissioned first lieutenants in the US Army Medical Corps, and ten as ensigns in the Naval Reserve.

Dr. Frank G. Boudreau, executive director of the Milbank Memorial Fund who was a medical officer in the last war and for twelve years associated with the health organization of the League of Nations, gave the Commencement address. "The march of medicine," he said, "will help to implement the promise of the Atlantic charter. For freedom from want and freedom from fear cannot be fully realized until medicine has shown the way to cure the malnourished, to feed the hungry, and to insure that an increasing part of excessive sickness and death rates among the low-income classes are reduced to levels comparable to those found among the higher-income groups. I hope that you who are leaving today may have the vision and imagination to see the glorious role which medicine and medical men may play in the march of the peoples' revolution."

Dr. Joseph C. Hinsey, Anatomy, who became Dean of the College July 1, presided at the Commencement, and awarded the annual prizes to members of the Senior Class. John Metcalf Polk Awards for general efficiency were given to Franklin Robinson of New York City, first; John B. Pfeiffer, Jr. of Hollis, second; and John T. Flynn of Erie, Pa. Gustav Seeligmann Prizes for efficiency in Obstetrics went to Otto W. Burtner, Jr. of New York City, first, and Mrs. Margaret Austin Child of Upper Mountain, N. J., second. Professor Frederick Whiting Prizes in Otolology went to Henry Bertull of New York City, first, and George Hathaway, Jr., of Upper Montclair, N. J., second. Carlton C. Hunt, Jr. of New York City was awarded the Alfred Moritz Michaelis Prize for efficiency in Medicine.

Dr. David P. Barr '11, Medicine, administered the Oath of Hippocrates to the new doctors, and Army commissions were presented by Lieutenant Colonel Philip B. Connolly, professor of Military Science and Tactics.

The men commissioned will remain on inactive duty for a year of internship. Those in the Army who were undergraduates at Cornell are Drs. Seymour M. Buckley '37, James S. Hooley '38, David H. MacFarland '38, Charles A. L. Stephens, Jr. '38, and Bruce M. Esplin '39. Naval Reserve commissions went to Drs. Arthur N. Pauly '38, Raymond Pearson '38, John M. Peck '38, Irving Sarnoff '38, and Charles M. Landmesser '39. William A. Geohegan '29, Robert C. Hickey '38, and Joseph S. Shapiro '39 also received the MD.

Shortly after Commencement, it was announced that the Ninth General Hospital Unit, US Army, of the Medical College and New York Hospital, had been called for active duty July 15. This 1,000-bed military hospital is a revival of Base Hospital 9 which cared for 15,000 men of the AEF at Chateauxroux, France. Its staff of fifty-five doctors, 120 nurses, and a number of non-professional employees is headed by Dr. Ralph F. Bowers, Clinical Surgery, as chief of the surgical service and Dr. Bruce Webster, Clinical Medicine, as chief of medical service, both with the rank of lieutenant colonel. After a period in training camp, the unit will be assigned to a combat zone.

STONEPOSTS STATISTICS

(R. B. in "State and Tioga," Ithaca Journal)

Elmira, our head cow, and Kitty, the off mare in our work team, are both madly knitting the finishing touches on little sweaters in expectation of blessed events.

According to the stark arithmetic of the situation Elmira is due right now, while there would seem to be no reason to get worked up about Kitty much, if any, before August 1. But here again the physiological evidences are at variance with the arithmetic; so much so, indeed, that Kitty was last week taken off the one-horse cultivator and given the colt pasture for her exclusive use, while Elmira continues to run with the herd. Instinctively, now, one starts the day by observing the colt pasture to see if Kitty is alone, or has company, instead of taking note of the trotting horse on the corn crib, the dew, and the morning clouds as indications of the probable weather.

If and when these matters go on to their expected and logical conclusion, it will mean the sixth calf that Elmira has presented to Stoneposts (four heifers and one bull so far) and Kitty's third contribution (a colt in 1940, a filly in 1941 is her score to date). This shows (1) that the methods employed by Jacob to acquire flocks and herds in the Land of Canaan are still effective in the Town of Ulysses, (2) that multiplication gets you along faster than mere addition, and (3) that little or no capital outlay is required on farms where the folks have lots and lots of patience.

As against that, the situation described furnishes one more evidence that nothing but madness lies in attempting to keep farm books in the conventional manner blindly employed by the Tompkins County Trust Co. and the Morse Chain Works. You've got to have cash transactions if conventional bookkeeping is to make sense. What column do you put little wobbly heifers in that you find in the back pasture in the gray of the morning that were not there the night before? How do you handle colts and fillies that are neither bought nor sold and board themselves?

We make no doubt there is some expert around the Trust Company who could answer those questions glibly enough. But we'd like to see what he'd do if he opened the vault some morning and found that the packet of Union Pacific Land Grant & Refunding 4s had produced during the night a lot of little debentures sired by a New York Central Equipment Note, Series B. That would be more like our accounting problem and we believe it would stump the Trust Company, momentarily anyway.

DAVID A. SAPERSTONE, proprietor of the Sport Shop in Ithaca, has been commissioned a first lieutenant in the Army Air Forces; ordered to Chanute Field, Ill.

About ATHLETICS

SUMMER SPORTS START

Summer teams will play baseball, golf, and tennis with nearby colleges and service teams, the first such wartime sports schedule in Cornell history.

Practice began June 29 for the following baseball schedule (golf and tennis teams will also compete with Colgate and Penn State the same day and place):

In Ithaca July 8, Colgate; July 18, Penn State; July 22, Colgate at Hamilton; July 25, Fort Niagara in Ithaca; August 1, Penn State at State College.

A baseball squad of thirty reported to Coach George K. James. Smaller squads reported to Tennis Coach Richard Lewis and Golf Coach George Hall. Rowing facilities will be open during the summer term, in charge of Coach Harrison Sanford, but there will be no outside competition.

ICAAAA SCORE INCREASES

Motion pictures of the finish of the 100-yard dash of the ICAAAA games in New York City May 29 and 30 showed that Charles E. Shaw, Jr. '43 placed second instead of third, giving Cornell an additional point for a total of 12½. The increase did not change Cornell's order of finish: ninth place. The films placed Carter and Stickel of Pittsburgh third and fourth, reducing that team's total by one and dropping it from second to third place behind the championship Penn State team.

Shaw won the 100- and 220-yard dash championships at the Metropolitan AAU games in New York City June 6, and placed fourth in the 100-meter dash in the National AAU championships two weeks later.

ANNOUNCE NEW COACHES

Appointment of George K. James as head baseball coach and of Emerald B. ("Speed") Wilson of Hobart as head basketball coach were announced last month by Robert J. Kane '34, Acting Director of Physical Education and Athletics. Robert S. Grant '34 was named coach of 150-pound football.

James came to Cornell in 1936 as assistant to Football Coach Carl Snavely. He also coached the Junior Varsity basketball team and helped Snavely with the baseball team in its last three 1942 games. He captained the Bucknell baseball team in 1930; played semi-professional baseball; and coached baseball, football, and basketball at Jersey Shore, Pa., High School for three years. He also coached the University of North Carolina freshman baseball team. James succeeds Mose P. Quinn, now a lieutenant in the US Naval Reserve.

Wilson will succeed Blair Gullion, now a captain in the Army Air Forces, as head basketball coach, coming to Cornell August 1 after eight years as Hobart's football and basketball coach. During that time, his Hobart basketball teams won 151 games and lost 66. Wilson will also be an assistant football coach. He was born in Cardington, Ohio, December 10, 1896, and was graduated from Middletown, Ohio, High School and in 1918 at Denison University, Granville, Ohio. He played baseball, basketball, and football at Denison, captained the basketball team his senior year, and was named to the all-Ohio basketball team.

Wilson enlisted and went overseas in 1918 and obtained his first coaching experience with Army teams. He coached football and basketball at Lake Forest Academy for a year and then went into business. In 1927 he returned to athletics as professor of physical education and athletics at Defiance College. After three years there he returned to Lake Forest as athletic director and coach of football, baseball, and basketball. Hobart called Wilson in 1934.

Grant succeeds the man who succeeded him: Alfred B. Wolff, now a lieutenant (jg) in the Naval Reserve. Grant coached Cornell's first 150-pound football team in 1936 and was graduated at the Law School in 1937. He practiced in Omaha, Neb., and Chicago, Ill., before he returned to Ithaca in 1941 to practice law and to assist Wolff with the lightweight football squad.

BASEBALL CHOICES

Louis C. Bufalino '42, outfielder, was one of the four best players in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League during the 1942 season, in the opinion of the seven coaches. Bufalino, Governali of Columbia, and MacCoy and Talcott of Princeton each received a perfect total of fourteen votes in all-star team balloting.

Harry L. Turner '42, catcher, with three votes, and Ronald E. Stillman '42, shortstop, with five votes, were named to the second team. Leo Hamalian '42, pitcher, and Captain Robert C. Ochs '42, outfielder, received honorable mention.

The season closed with Princeton retaining the championship it won from Cornell the year before, and Cornell finishing in a three-way tie for third place. The final standing of the teams:

	W	L	PC
Princeton	11	1	.917
Harvard	5	5	.500
Cornell	5	7	.417
Columbia	5	7	.417
Pennsylvania	5	7	.417
Yale*	4	6	.409
Dartmouth*	3	5	.389

*Played one tie game.

Cornell finished the season sixth in team batting with a mark of .227, and third in fielding with .940. Turner tied with Fitzgibbons of Harvard with the most runs batted in, 11, and tied with Yuknavich of Columbia and Barszcz of Pennsylvania with the most doubles, 3.

BuFalino was Cornell's best batter with .375. Turner hit .325.

In pitching, Raymond Jenkins '42 had the best earned-run average in the League, 1.06, but he worked only seventeen innings.

SPORTS STATISTICS

Despite more defeats than victories during the spring sports season, Cornell teams finished the year with a winning percentage of .540. Official compilation of dual contests show 115 victories, 94 defeats, and 4 ties for the year. The spring record and year's summary:

ODDS AND ENDS

New commodore of the crew is William W. Dickhart III '43 of Philadelphia, Pa. He stroked the Varsity in its first three races last spring and rowed at No. 6 in the last two. A Junior in Administrative Engineering, he succeeds John G. Aldworth '42.

James M. Tatum, former head coach of baseball whose 1939 team tied Harvard for the Eastern Intercollegiate League championship, has been appointed head coach of football at the University of North Carolina. He left Cornell three years ago to become freshman coach and assistant athletic director at Chapel Hill.

Bernard M. Clarey '29, reporter and sports writer, has been appointed acting director of sports publicity in the Department of Physical Education and Athletics. He will continue on the staff of The Ithaca Journal.

Representing the Eastern Office for Intercollegiate Athletics, Robert J. Kane '34, Acting Director of Physical Education and Athletics, accompanied Director Asa S. Bushnell and H. Jamison Swarts of Pennsylvania to call upon Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman in Washington, July 7. A directive of ODT prohibits use of chartered busses to take spectators to sports events, and for other uses not deemed essential to the war effort. But these representatives were assured that the Government has no wish to curtail intercollegiate athletics; rather wishes them continued and expanded. Eastman indicated that college athletic teams could be transported to games by bus if rail transportation is not available.

Schoellkopf Field was the scene of a July 4 sports carnival for Army and Navy Relief, with athletes of Cornell, Colgate, Dartmouth, and Penn State participating in six track events and Golden Gloves and AAU boxers meeting in the ring. Sponsoring organization was the Ithaca Junior Chamber of Commerce. Romeyn Berry '04 was the announcer. More than 1,000 attended despite threatening weather and eventual rain which hampered the boxing program. Burnham of Dartmouth won the headline track event—the 600-yard special—by inches from Arthur C. Smith '43 in a driving finish, with Diebolt of Colgate a close third. Karver of Penn State, who had previously won the mile, finished last. Burnham was timed in 1:12. Paul M. Kelsey '43 finished second to Karver in the 4:30 mile.

ALUMNAE GROUP MEETS

Dinner meeting of the Alumnae Association of the College of Home Economics the evening before Reunions, May 22, had fifty persons attending. Mrs. Charles I. Sayles (Dorothy I. Fessenden) '25, vice-president, presided at the business meeting in the absence of the president of the Association, Mrs. Whiton Powell (Jeannette Gardiner) '24.

Mrs. John I. Shafer, Jr. (Lois Purdey) '34, treasurer, reported that 348 alumnae had paid dues to the Association last year, receiving the monthly news letters published by the secretary, Mrs. Karl L. Smiley (Barbara Pratt) '37. It was reported that cash awards had been made by the Association to four undergraduates in the College, and that the new Martha Van Rensselaer Scholarship had been awarded for the first time to Elizabeth A. Kandiko '44 of Ancram. The Association voted to contribute $75 toward a projected co-operative house for undergraduate women if it is opened next fall.

Alumnae and members of the Faculty present discussed the possibility of accepting a larger number of students in Home Economics, perhaps by revising the instruction program and making use of all three of the practice apartments in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall. It was also suggested that a committee be appointed to work with the American Association of University Women to the end that graduates with the BS degree be eligible for its membership. Dean Sarah G. Blanding of the College of Home Economics spoke informally.

CHICAGO REUNION PARTY

Reunion broadcast from Ithaca and New York City May 23 was enjoyed by a group of twelve Chicago Cornellians of Classes from '92 to '33. Called together by Owen S. Cook '22, the group gathered at the Hotel Sherman, where the assistant manager is Richard Vanderwarker '33. For the broadcast they went to the Merchandise Mart, and then reconvened at the hotel for dinner.

ITHACA ALUMNI GATHER

Forty members of the Cornell Club of Ithaca attended the annual meeting in Willard Straight Memorial Room June 17. Speakers were Captain B. W. Chippendale, USN, arrived that day from sea duty to take command of the new Naval Training School at the University, and Lieutenant Arthur S. Adams, USN, who has been in charge of the Diesel engine courses given to Naval Reserve officers in the College of Engineering. They outlined the several programs of Naval training which were to begin at the University July 1. The evening closed with the showing of motion pictures of the two football games with Ohio State.

The Club re-elected Ralph C. Smith '15, vice-president, and Edgar A. Whiting '29, secretary, for two years; Hugh E. Weatherlow '06 a director to fill one year of the term of William R. Robertson '34; and J. Edward Dixon '15 a director for two years, succeeding William R. Wigley '07. President for this year is Norman G. Stagg '26, with Clarence F. Morse '14, treasurer, and Professor A. Wright Gibson '17 a director.

BUFFALO CLUB WINS

Seventy-five alumni enjoyed swimming, sailing, tennis, and the traditional softball game at the annual Cornell-Dartmouth alumni picnic, at the Buffalo Canoe Club on the Canadian shore June 19. As usual, the ball game was a "pitchers' battle," but Cornell won, 14-10. Feature of the picnic was dinner with the Hon. William L. Houck '15, member of the Ontario Provincial Parliament and the youngest member of Premier Hepburn's cabinet, as guest of honor. He spoke on "Canada and the United States, Now and After the War."

Led by President George A. Newbury '17, the Cornell Club of Buffalo meets for luncheon with speakers every Friday at the Buffalo Athletic Club. Eighty-five attended a "Ladies' Day" June 26, when Betty Wong spoke on "The Universities of China and Where They Are Now."

BOOKS

By Cornellians

ESSAYS BY WHITE '21

One Man's Meat. By E. B. White '21. 1942. Harper & Brothers, New York City. 346 pages. $2.50.

The title is a reminder that this book is mainly a collection of articles contributed in the last three and a half years to Harper's Magazine. E. B. W. admits, with engaging modesty, that he is telling only of his own experiences and reflections, and does not shrink from the first person singular.

We all, I trust, know that he left his New York apartment to live on the stern and rockbound coast of Maine, where he raises sheep and chickens, makes an occasional haul of haddock and mackerel, does a thousand and one odd jobs about the house and barn, and still finds time to write.

He writes of the incidents, great and small, that make up life on his farm, of a visit to Walden Pond, of hearing Dr. Townsend (himself) explain his famous "plan" to a rural audience and deftly evade questions, of lambing time, of a trailer camp, of children's books, of a town meeting, and of the village budget, while as the months pass he becomes more and more concerned about the crimes against humanity committed in other lands, the growing peril to American liberty, and our own unawareness.

The disarming simplicity of his manner is nowhere more apparent than in his remarks on "The Wave of the Future." He reduces the argument (Anno 1940) for toleration of nazism to a few half-truths which afford no basis for such a conclusion, and shows that every article of American faith opposes it.

E. B. W.'s touch is never heavy, his pictures never blurred. He can show deep feeling without forcing the note and express strong conviction without becoming dogmatic. His book leaves a lasting impression of faith in an America based on freedom and democracy.

FACULTY LECTURES ON WAR

The Impact of the War on America. By Professors Robert E. Cushman, Government; Royal E. Montgomery, Economics; Cornelis W. de Kiewiet, Knight Biggerstaff, and Philip E. Mosely, History; and Herbert W. Briggs, Government. With a Preface by President Edmund E. Day. 1942. Cornell University Press, Ithaca. $2.

These are the University lectures given by six members of the Faculty during February and March.

First impression is that the series divides rather neatly into two parts: a pair of lectures by Professors Cushman and Montgomery on the topic denoted by the title, dealing respectively with the impact of the war on the Constitution and on American labor; then four more lectures concerned almost exclusively with world-wide international relations.

The unity of the volume becomes apparent only after one has absorbed something of the historian's emotional calm and adjusted oneself to historical perspective. Second thought suggests that the process by which the United States has been shoved into the center of the world stage, and the future implications of that position, do constitute the most significant impact of the war on America and therefore deserve twice the space allotted to internal political and social changes.

To the firebrand who believes that the duty of university professors in wartime is to dash about delivering violent harangues on the iniquity of the Axis, this book will have no appeal. For the qualities that distinguish it are temperance, intelligence, and above all, appreciation of realities. The authors even intimate that undue pressure for immediate universal adoption of democratic forms of government may prove unwise in the postwar world, and that attempts at complete subjugation of the German and Japanese peoples will, in the long run, be disastrous to any global program for insuring peace.

No, this book will not please the hot-heads. But, as President Day points out, it was not written to please them. "It was no part of the lecturers' intention," he says in his brief preface, "either to stir the feeling inseparable from the issues of the war or to compete with the day-to-day commentators on the news. The assumption behind the series is that there are long-term interests, both of domestic and of foreign policy, which need above all to be understood. . . . The war will inevitably affect them, but whether for good or ill depends upon the wisdom and foresight with which the American people conceives its national purposes. To contribute in some degree to this clarity of vision is the service which a group of scholars may most reasonably hope to perform."

Their performance leaves little to be desired.—R. F. H. '24

CHICAGO CLUB OFFICERS

Cornell Club of Chicago, Ill., at its annual meeting June 4 elected Robert D. Gordon '11, president, succeeding Thomas S. McEwan '11. Vice-presidents are H. Kirke Becker '11 and Richard H. Sampson '32. Frederick H. Jones, Jr. '23 is treasurer and John C. Trussell '28, secretary. Alfred H. Hutchinson '09, James H. Becker '17, and Stewart A. Cushman '20 were elected governors.

LETTERS

Subject to the usual restrictions of space and good taste, we shall print letters from subscribers on any side of any subject of interest to Cornellians. The ALUMNI NEWS often may not agree with the sentiments expressed, and disclaims any responsibility beyond that of fostering interest in the University.

FROM THE SOUTH SEAS

TO THE EDITOR:

For the past year since my graduation in 1941, I've been receiving the ALUMNI NEWS and I've enjoyed it immensely. The NEWS has followed me half-way around the world; to Australia and now to New Caledonia. I've enjoyed reading it and always await the next issue which as a rule reaches me at least one month after issue.

I've already sent your subscription card on, and should it not arrive in the States I'm sending this letter. Please bill me for the year's issues and keep them coming. Should this letter arrive too late to begin with the year's first issue, please try to send the back copies of the NEWS also.

In closing, let me add that Lieutenant Neil K. Swift and Lieutenant "Ted" Eiben are here with me. It's good to be together, as we're all Class of '41. Our meetings are few and far between, but when we do see each other the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS is there with us and we go through it from cover to cover.

Hoping this next year's subscription catches up with me shortly, I remain sincerely yours.—GENE F. AMORELLI '41, 2d Lieutenant, US Army

APPRECIATION

TO THE EDITOR:

You and the readers of the ALUMNI NEWS I think may get a kick out of a letter written by a Yale friend of mine to E. V. Durling, editor of "On the Side" page in the Boston American. Here is the letter.—ALFRED P. HOWES '07.

"As a regular reader of your fine page in the Boston American, I was particularly interested in the query you published; viz., 'What is the most beautiful campus in the United States?' This question was apparently sent in by a Californian. And amongst candidates for this honor you suggest the University of California at Berkeley and the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

"It has been my privilege to cross the USA six times, and to have lived in many cities and small towns during my forty-eight years of life, amongst them college towns, of course. I have visited many of the universities and have noted the beauty of the central topographical feature of each: its campus. Well, there is absolutely no question whatever as to where is located the WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL CAMPUS: it is the CORNELL UNIVERSITY CAMPUS AT ITHACA, N. Y.

"I am quite sure that my Eli brethren will not hold me in contempt of court in making this statement. Naturally, we of Yale find no other campus in Christendom so rich in tradition and sentiment as the old Yale campus, but our University is located in the heart of a small city and we do not have the space that a university located in the country would have.

"So, Durling, tell your Californian correspondent that it will be worth his while to take a trip across the continent to Ithaca and see the beautiful falls on the Cornell Campus, together with the other loveliness of Nature which has been so lavishly bestowed upon this great university 'far above Cayuga's waters.'—Martin T. Cornwell, Yale '16 Art."

Mogensen (Adele Dean) '23 was re-elected president, as were Janet G. Smith '40, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles E. Craven, Jr. (Charlotte Baber) '08, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Stacy G. ERIC DUDLEYS RESIGN

Eric Dudley and Mrs. Dudley, who for more than twenty years have directed the men's and women's Glee Clubs at the University, resigned at the end of May. They will continue teaching at their home, 609 East State Street, and their other musical activities in Ithaca, and Mr. Dudley will continue to teach singing in the University Department of Music. He was voted Director Emeritus of the men's Glee Club, and Mrs. Dudley has the title of Founder and Director Emeritus of the women's Glee Club.

The Dudleys, newly married, came to Ithaca in 1903, he as musical director and head of the vocal department at the Conservatory of Music. Graduate and holder of an honorary degree of the Royal Academy of Music in London, he had come to America as musical director with Sir Charles Hawtry for his play, "A Message from Mars." They early became soloists in the Sage Chapel Choir, and for thirty-nine years they have directed the choir at the First Presbyterian Church. Dudley resigned at the Conservatory in 1917 to accept appointment by the War Department as director of music at Camp Upton, and Mrs. Dudley was his assistant. In 1921, upon the resignation of the late Hollis E. Dann, he became director of the University Glee Club. Mrs. Dudley founded the Women's Glee Club in 1920, and has been continuously its coach and director.

NOW IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

The Willard Straight restaurants are crowded this summer. The big rooms have been set aside for the exclusive use of the young Naval Reserve officers stationed here. Each meal has to be served in two shifts to feed that many ensigns.

The management anticipated some trouble in finding enough waitresses. In like manner, hundreds of Ithaca girls anticipated trouble in finding anything exciting to do this summer with the family car laid up, vacation trips barred, and golf balls practically unobtainable.

But there wasn't any trouble either way—not the least bit—not after the Navy broke out those new, tan, summer uniforms. The Junior League and the Ithaca High School Alumnae Association have left the Country Club flat on its hazards and are now waiting table at Willard Straight in two shifts, three times a day.

Even old timers like your reporter get incredible service over there this summer from debutantes who hope to get promoted to the big rooms while the fleet's in.

As a matter of fact, Ithaca always has been a pretty exciting place to spend the summer. If it isn't the fleet, it's something else. There was one time when Summer School students could get small parts supporting Miss Pearl White when she was climbing the Liberty Tower and what not in the "Perils of Pauline," could help Mr. Francis X. Bushman put on an Alaska gold rush in the Fall Creek gorge, might assist Miss Irene Castle in the production of "Patria." That was when Ithaca, N. Y., and Hollywood, Cal., were racing each other to see which should become the "Moving Picture Capital of America." Hollywood won.

In my time, it was Renwick Park that made Summer School attractive. Trains of open trolley cars left State and Tioga for Renwick every five minutes, loaded down with professors, students, and Ithaca girls, many of whom are the mothers, and grandmothers no doubt, of these other girls now waiting on ensigns in Willard Straight. All this was quite a while back!

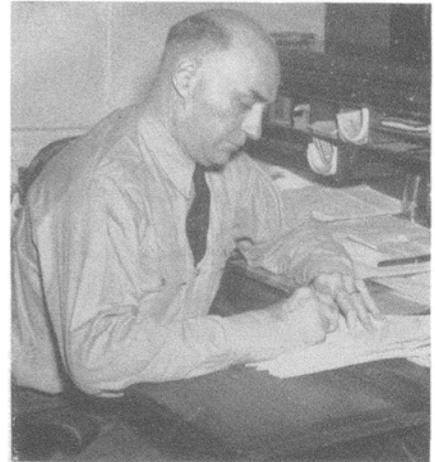

Renwick was orderly and lovely in the summer night. Patsy Conway's Band played all evening, and Captain Jarvis had good boats for hire. The best thing to do was to get yourself one of those grandmothers, and a boat, and listen to the music over the water from out by the lighthouse.

It's serious business on the Hill, of course, right now. Each boy has about all the work he can handle, and if he can't handle it he's out. But there are moments for relaxation, and it's summer and everybody's pretty young.

Perhaps that's the charm of Ithaca in the summer time. Nobody ever gets any older. The boys and girls who stroll around in the evening are just the same age as the ones who used to go to Renwick. They aren't exactly the same ones, of course, but you wouldn't know that from looking at them or hearing them talk. Nothing seems any different—unless you happen to look in a mirror!

SERGEANT MARKS RETIRES

MASTER SERGEANT CHARLES MARKS (above) who has registered hundreds of Cornell undergraduates and done much of the "paper work" of the ROTC since it was established at the University in 1919, was guest of honor in Barton Hall the end of May. His fellow members of the detached enlisted men's unit and the officers attached to the ROTC formed a guard of honor and Colonel Clinton I. McClure presented him with two traveling bags.

The occasion was the Sergeant's impending retirement from the Army, which was due last October after thirty years of service, but which was extended to August 31, with a three months' furlough which he is now enjoying. Colonel McClure said that Sergeant Marks's devotion to duty, his willingness to help those in command, and his loyalty, unselfishness, honesty, and integrity have always been important to the efficiency of the Cornell ROTC.

Sergeant Marks entered the Army May 15, 1911, and he was detailed to Fort Stevens, Ore., the Denver, Col., Recruiting District, Fort Sheridan and Cheyenne, Wyo., Fort Logan, Fort Frances E. Warren, and Camp Jackson, S. C., before he came to Cornell in February, 1919. He holds ten honorable discharges, all with character marked "Excellent." He and Mrs. Marks will continue to live in their Ithaca home, 118 Fayette Street. Their son, Donald V. Marks '43, was recently commissioned in the Signal Corps and is stationed at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

ALUMNI NEWS GOES TO SERVICE CAMPS

Through Generosity of an Alumnus and Willard Straight Hall

Beginning this issue, 165 copies of the ALUMNI NEWS will be sent regularly to reading rooms of Army posts and Naval bases, for the benefit of Cornellians in service. Cost of printing and mailing these copies is being met mostly by Willard Straight Hall. For its part, the Alumni Association is paying all overhead costs on these copies as a contribution to its members in the armed services.

Many Cornellians in service are, of course, regular subscribers to the NEWS, and their letters attest to the eagerness with which they look for the paper to follow them in their travels. But for some time it has been the hope of the Alumni Association to find a way of getting the NEWS to even more of those alumni who have given up their everyday life and friends for war service. Because the paper makes no profit and has no reserve fund, such extra distribution is possible only with outside help.

First help came this spring with a contribution of $50 from a Cornellian who asked that it be used "to send the ALUMNI NEWS to men in service." Supplying such subscriptions at actual cost of printing and mailing was heartily approved by the directors of the Alumni Association at their May meeting, and shortly thereafter the board of governors of Willard Straight Hall made an appropriation to pay the cost of sending the NEWS to all military and naval posts where it could be made available to Cornell men. This was at the suggestion of Edgar A. Whiting '29, Assistant Director of Willard Straight Hall and a director of the Alumni Association from the Cornell Society of Hotelmen. The governors' appropriation supplements the original gift, and was made with realization that most alumni who would thus enjoy the NEWS in camps were members of Willard Straight Hall as undergraduates.

Accordingly, letters were written to "Morale Officers" of some 230 posts in the United States, inquiring if the NEWS could be made available to Cornell men and others who might be interested. Responses have been enthusiastic, and requests were still coming in as this issue was mailed. They came from camp librarians, special service officers of Army posts, welfare and recreation officers of Naval bases, and chaplains.

To each person who replies notice is being sent that the NEWS will come regularly, with request to post the notice in reading rooms where the paper will be read by the men of that camp.

First request for the NEWS came from Margaret W. Thompson, who was assistant to the Dean of Women at Cornell from 1935-40 and is now librarian at Camp Cooke, Cal. Others who identified themselves as Cornellians were Captain Lawrence B. Pryor '23, former manager of rowing, who is assistant athletic and recreation officer at the Army Air Corps Basic Flying School, Gunter Field, Ala.; First Lieutenant Thomas H. McGrail, PhD '36, special service officer at Camp Langdon, N. H.; and Ensign William J. Huff '41, USNR, assistant public relations officer at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

Almost all who write express gratitude at receiving the NEWS. Some typical comments follow:

"We appreciate your offer to send the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS to Camp Blanding and believe that it would prove interesting to the soldiers here, particularly the Cornell alumni."—Lt. G. B. Stanley, Camp Blanding, Fla.

"This is a very worthwhile gesture on the part of the alumnus and governors of your University union building. Please be assured that their efforts will be appreciated by all our personnel."—Major H. A. Voorhees, Scott Field, Ill.

"I assure you that with the number of Reserve officers in training at the Academy, the NEWS will have a hearty reception."—Ernest M. Espelie, Librarian, US Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.

"CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS will be greatly appreciated in the Post Library, where you may be assured it will receive a prominent place."—Capt. Willis W. Weber, Army Air Base, Minter Field, Cal.

"We acknowledge all efforts to have reading material available for the men so that they can keep in touch with home and friends, and especially interests which will keep them looking forward to the close of the war when they are to return to civilian life. Many of our men will probably be thinking of going back to school. Therefore, constant touch with school papers will help."—Commander L. W. Meachum, CHC, USNR, Marine Barracks, Parris Island, S. C.

"It is efforts like yours that help our soldiers feel closer to home and happier in the Army!"—Lt. C. S. Clinton, Camp San Luis Obispo, Cal.

"Among the service men in this camp are many who have gone to college, and during the course of these troublesome times it is likely to be read by the select few who have gone to Cornell and are stationed at this camp."—Capt. W. F. Upton, Jr., Camp Edwards, Mass.

"I am quite sure that Cornell alumni will be very glad to see copies of their publication."—Lt. (jg) C. A. Burton, Jr., Naval Aviation Pre-flight School, Athens, Ga.

"One can almost be certain that at all times there are among the officers, aviation cadets, and crew members stationed at this Base former students of Cornell University. Nor only Cornellians but graduates and former students of other colleges who make up our Base personnel will be interested in your news magazine."—Ensign H. W. Garner, US Naval Reserve Aviation Base, Anacosta, D. C.

"There are Cornell alumni and ex-students at this post who I am sure would welcome news of their Alma Mater. Our camp library is equipped with a well stocked periodical reading room. The CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS would be a welcome addition here and would certainly be put to good use."—Major L. C. McIntyre, Camp Polk, La.

"It means quite a lot to our young college men to be able to read of happenings in the old alma mater. As you may know, some of the finest soldiers which we have in the Army today are our men from your State of New York."—Major W. F. Wimble, Camp Forrest, Tenn.

"We would be glad to receive this publication and will place it in the Officers' Ward Room. I know there are some Cornell men among the officers and they will be glad to receive this publication."—Lieut. R. L. Smith, Chaplain, US Naval Reserve Base, Chicago, Ill.

"We have a nicely appointed library in which men from this camp congregate and read, and in which copies of your ALUMNI NEWS must certainly be placed. . . . you will have done a favor to your alumni who are on duty at this post."—Major F. A. Bush, Camp Grant, Ill.

"Men are always eager for news of places connected with their past life—their home towns and schools—and it is certain that Cornell men will welcome the ALUMNI NEWS and appreciate your sending it."—Mary Rooney, Librarian, Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y.

"Thank you for your generous offer."—Lt. Col. A. C. M. Azoy, US Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

"I am sure all the Cornell graduates stationed at Pine Camp will very much appreciate the opportunity to become familiar with the latest news from their Alma Mater."—Major J. L. Mason, Pine Camp, N. Y.

Additional camp reading rooms will be sent the ALUMNI NEWS upon request. Cornell friends at Army camps and Naval stations should be told to ask the post chaplain or special service officer to write us if the NEWS is wanted and is not in their post reading rooms.

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

MOTION PICTURES of the University will be included in a documentary film on "American Colleges at War" being prepared by the Office for Emergency Management for showing in commercial theaters some time in September. An OEM camera crew headed by Francis D. Lyon spent three days this week filming Campus war activities, guided by Raymond F. Howes '24 whose recent articles in the ALUMNI NEWS are responsible for their visit.

AMERICAN MAGAZINE for July has an illustrated article, "How to Get Tough," picturing the new course in outdoor living which Professor E. Laurence Palmer '11, Rural Education, started last winter to train students for the war emergency.

GRADUATION EXERCISES July 2 in Olin Hall for twenty-seven Naval Reserve ensigns from the Diesel engine course in the College of Engineering brought to 189 the number of engineer officers trained in the year since the course was started. Thirteen of this class were detailed by the Navy Department as instructors in similar courses at other colleges; the rest went immediately to sea duty. Graduates were addressed by Captain B. W. Chippendale, USN, new commanding officer of the Naval Training School at Cornell.

CORNELL WIDOW "made" a recent "Information, Please" broadcast when the experts were asked to identify "Widow" among familiar names with specific meanings. They knew its connection with the Cornell humorous magazine.

STEWART AVENUE BRIDGE over Fall Creek, which has been building since last summer, was scheduled to be opened this week. The old bridge, condemned as unsafe, was dropped into the gorge and cut up for scrap metal.

WINNERS of regional prizes in a national competition of the Illuminating Engineering Society of the United States are two third-year students in the College of Architecture whose drawings for a "Super Food Market" were entered by the Faculty. James P. Beardsley '43, son of Wallace D. Beardsley '19 of Auburn, won first prize of $100, and Ruard A. Vanderploeg '43 received the second award of $50. Their work will compete with the prize-winning drawings of other regions for national awards.

EMIL A. KOHM, merchant tailor in Ithaca since 1885, died June 4 at his home, 213 Willow Avenue. Born in Germany seventy-two years ago, he came to America at the age of fourteen, and at his shop on State Street has been the confidante and mentor of Cornellians of all ages for more than fifty years. His former partner, Gus Brunne, retired in 1929 and now lives in Albion. Mrs. Kohm survives, with their children, Joseph A. Kohm '17, Alfred E. Kohm '21, Raymond A. Kohm '23, and Gertrude V. Kohm '27. Mary P. Kohm '19 was drowned in Cayuga Lake in 1916.

WAR EMERGENCY brought final examinations so close to Commencement this year that diplomas had to be mailed to the Class of '42 of most Colleges, after final marks had been received by the University Secretary's office. Packed in special mailing tubes and sent by first-class registered mail at cost of more than sixty cents each, the first of them went out June 3. All diplomas for first degrees have now been mailed. Those for advanced degrees will shortly follow. This is the first time since the last war that first degree diplomas have been mailed to end-of-the-year graduates.

SHE BROADCASTS WITH FRED ALLEN

Dorothy M. Cothran '43, selected as "Cornell's most talented undergraduate," appeared on the national CBS program with Fred Allen June 28. She presented the radio comedian with a Cornell oar and a crew hat, "the gift of coach 'Stork' Sanford," and sang beautifully "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier." By a coincidence, that date was Miss Cothran's twentieth birthday, and the members of Al Goodman's orchestra, who accompanied her song, sang "Happy Birthday" to her. She was entertained in New York City and received $200 for her appearance on the program. Recording of the Cornell part of the broadcast may be made available to Cornell groups by the Alumni Office if it is requested.

FIRST BROADCAST by Frazier Hunt in a new series dealing with instruction and research in electronics for General Electric Co. described this work at Cornell. "Cornell University was one of the first schools to foresee the demand for men trained in electronics," he said, "and it is one of the colleges which are now training thousands of men required by the Signal Corps to operate electronic detection equipment . . . General Electric salutes Cornell University for training electronics students to man our country's defenses."

20,000 COPIES of a College of Agriculture Extension Bulletin, "Life Insurance for Farmers," by Professor Herrell F. DeGraff '37, Land Economics, were purchased by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co. and are being advertised by the company for free distribution.

HARRY L. HAWKINS, for fifty-three years at Heggie's jewelry store in Ithaca, celebrated with Mrs. Hawkins their fiftieth wedding anniversary June 29, at their home, 605 North Cayuga Street. Besides serving Cornellians at Heggie's, Hawkins has for years officiated as doorman at Willard Straight Hall dances and has been engaged in this capacity for hundreds of fraternity houseparties.

THE REV. JOHN A. REDMOND, pastor of the First Methodist Church the last four years, left Ithaca in June to become minister of St. Paul's Church in Niagara Falls. He is succeeded by the Rev. Henry C. Budd, Jr., graduate of Ohio Wesleyan and Boston College, who comes from the Spencer-Ripley Methodist Church of Rochester.

HENRIETTA L. HOAG '40, office assistant with the ALUMNI NEWS this year, was married in Ithaca June 27 to Daniel E. Guilfoyle '40. Wedding reception was at the home of Donald C. Kerr '12 and Mrs. Kerr '39 and Foster M. Coffin '12. Guilfoyle is an architect with Shreve, Lamb & Harmon at work on the new Naval Training Station at Sampson on Seneca Lake. They live at 406 Elmwood Avenue, Ithaca.

CORNELL DAILY SUN and The Widow staged a successful advertising campaign and tag day for the Navy Relief Society, right in the midst of final examinations. Headed by William T. Dunn, Jr. '43 and Julius L. Hoyt '43, the committee sent $517 to the Society. A County unit of the Navy Relief Society has now been formed, with Joseph S. Barr '18 taking active part in its organization. University Trustee Frank E. Gannett '98 is State chairman of the Society, and Jerome B. Barnum '12 is vice-chairman.

212 Fall Creek Drive. In 1913, Professor Lauman was a member of an American commission which went to Europe to study rural credits. He is the father of Frances W. Lauman '35, George W. Lauman '37, Mary W. Lauman '37, and Henry W. Lauman '39.

PROFESSOR FRANCIS J. SEERY, Civil Engineering, came to the University as instructor in Civil Engineering in 1905, having received the BS at Tufts College and spent the summer as assistant engineer on the State Barge Canal. Previously, he was for eight years in the city engineer's office of Waterbury, Conn., and was in Panama in a party exploring the Darien jungle for alternate routes for a canal across the Isthmus. He has been consultant on water supply and water power for several cities, and during the last war superintended construction of water supply and sewer systems at Camp Dix. For three years he was chairman of the Ithaca board of public works, served on the first planning and zoning committee and on the Stewart Park commission, and made a study of the hydrology of Cayuga Lake which is used by the State Department of Public works in regulating the water level. He hopes shortly to leave Ithaca and live in a milder climate. His daughters are Virginia B. Seery '33, Miriam D. R. Seery '34, and Mrs. Ted Chamberlain (Francesca Seery) '38.

The previous year, he had received the International Veterinary Congress award for the "most outstanding work of the year," his research on control of bovine mastitis. He served in the Spanish-American War and was a major in the Veterinary Corps in France during 1918-19. Dr. Udall is the author of two textbooks, member of Sigma Xi and Phi Zeta, and this year is president of the Veterinary College Alumni Association. He and Mrs. Udall are the parents of John T. DONALD P. BEARDSLEY recently became associated with Drexel & Co., Fifteenth and Walnut Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., thus breaking a business association of twenty-three years standing. After getting out of the Army in 1919, he entered the employ of Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co. and in the segregation of functions that took place fifteen years later he became one of the Harriman, Ripley & Co., Inc. group (JOSEPH P. RIPLEY '12). Beardsley has a son at Cornell.

HOBART V. CORNWALL is now associated as an engineer with Chemical Construction Co., New York City, which has several important defense jobs on its hands. He continues faithful to Hempstead as a place of residence. His family consists of a wife, two daughters, and a son.

MARCEL K. SESSLER, the alleged farmer of Riverbridge Farm, Lyme, N. H., must have been playing truant. Recently, it is reported, nineteen of his paintings were whisked off to be displayed at "one man shows." Perhaps he could milk the cows with one hand and paint with the other, but your correspondent doubts it and therefore wonders what has become of those Aberdeen Angus cattle. Mrs. Sessler was the one woman among the three judges for the finals of the Dartmouth Interfraternity Sing, an attractive form of interfraternity competition that apparently is a regular annual affair at Dartmouth. Painter Sessler does claim to be farming to the extent of operating a new tractor which sings; at least he reports that it does everything but talk.

Mr. and Mrs. LLOYD M. CHURCH of Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., recently announced the engagement of their daughter, ELIZABETH '42, to Charles W. Hammond. Miss Church graduated in Home Economics and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta and Mortar Board. Her fiancé, who attended Franklin and Marshall College, is now in the Navy.

Last October he received the 1941 George W. Fuller Memorial Award of the American Water Works Association, Southwest section. He is now serving on a sub-committee on sanitation of the State committee on civilian defense and is also chairman of the same sub-committee of the Oklahoma section of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

"A. MORTIMER ERSKINE is assistant research director, Krebs Pigment Department, E. I. duPont de Nemours Co., Newark, N. J. He and Mrs. Erskine (MABEL G. 1915 MEN

A number of the Old Guard of 1915 attended the Reunion May 23, and greatly enjoyed the hospitality of 1917. Those lads had a grand turnout, and the worst batch of weather and most discouraging travel conditions any twenty-five-year Class ever faced, and they came through like thoroughbreds. You rapidly aging gentlemen of 1915 miss a great deal when you stay away from Cornell Reunions just because 1915 is not on the calendar of events!

CHARLES P. HEIDT, who flew in World War I, is now a major in the Army Air Corps. During May he was stationed in Washington, D. C., in Production Engineering, Division of Materiel.

LOUIS A. LOVE is a major in the Air Corps, and in May was on the Pacific Coast.

Call of 1917

By Herbert R. Johnston, Class Secretary
81 Tacoma Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

In spite of the many handicaps of a "war" year (like the one when we were Seniors), letters continue to be received telling how successful our Twenty-fifth was, and how happy the individuals were that we followed through with our plans and they were fortunate enough to attend.

From ROG MUNSICK, industrial sales manager, Murphy Varnish Co., Newark, N. J.: "Well, we had a swell time and I am mighty happy I attended. I'd really hate to look back with the knowledge that I had missed what may be our last formal get-together. The next few years will doubtless make inroads in our numbers, for we are approaching the age when the old boy with the sickle begins to exact his toll."

From ARCH OBOLER, counselor-at-law, 44 Court Street, Brooklyn: "Just a line to let you know that I had a swell time at the Reunion. I am looking ahead to the next one, and I hope it will be before the thirtieth; perhaps when the war is over, successfully, this or next year. I really had a fine time with some of the boys I hadn't seen for twenty-five years."

From EDDIE ANDERSON, vice-president, Discount Corporation, 58 Pine Street, New York City: "Have seen and heard from many fellows that were in Ithaca. They all seem to have had an excellent time and appreciate all that was done for them. Personally, think it was very successful."

From JOHN L. COLLYER, Class president and president, The B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, Ohio: "A week following the event I am more certain than ever that our Twenty-fifth Reunion was an outstanding success and that it was greatly appreciated by all who were fortunate enough to be in attendance. Bob Keefe was excellent in the War Memorial ceremony and I am glad he consented to participate."

Now a word about our Reunion Class picture. Perhaps you will have yours when you read these notes. If not, you will receive it in the near future. The cost was included in the Reunion assessment, so if you paid you will get a picture. We are now busy identifying the fellows and planning how best to include the names with the picture. All agree that names make the picture much more valuable.

A complete report of the Reunion, with personal side-lights, will be sent all Class members in a big fall issue of "The Call of 1917." Reunion notes are most welcome. Please send them to your secretary at once. The more the better! We're Class conscious now; what a Victory Reunion we will have when the war is over!

CLASS OF 1937

Women

*By Carol H. Cline, Class Secretary
1053 Cumberland Avenue, Dayton, Ohio*

We managed to get in four days of reuniting in Ithaca and had a busy time dashing up and down those familiar hills to see familiar faces and places. Due to gas rationing, we got "Frosh cramps" all over again from doing the town on foot. One Classmate who couldn't walk up the Hill to reunite with us, however, was "MERRIE" COUCH, so we called on her at her mother's home at 522 State Street and found Merrie all done up in a leg cast. (Seems one Classmate from Ithaca manages to receive callers in a cast every Reunion; last Reunion GINNY GOFF received Classmates at her home all done up in a body cast, remember?) Miss Couch sticks to her story: "A building fell on me; really!" Merrie is now field director of Girl Scouts in Syracuse, and while she was inspecting a camp-site a building really did collapse and pin her under the wreckage. She is also a first aid instructor and had a chance to find out if she was a good teacher when she directed her own rescue, temporary treatment and splinting, and transportation to the hospital. Her pupils did a good job all right, and we hear at this writing that she is up and about on crutches and soon to return to Syracuse and her job.

At the Class banquet, CHARLOTTE WALKER informed us she is now living at the YWCA in Albany where she does editorial work for the Federal Government with the Historical Records Survey. Charlotte is secretary of the Cornell Cornell Women's Club of Albany. LUCILLE SIPSON said she now lives at 157 Ashley Street, Hartford, Conn.; HELEN MORDOFF asked us to change her address to Clymer, N. Y.; and HAZEL OLDHAM HANSON (Mrs. HUBERT G. '32) said she'd better receive her mail at her family's home, 708 Washington Street, Olean, until she gets settled. Hazel and her husband had been visiting RAY (MUNN) and ELLIOT BLAKESLEY '36 at 6 Auburn Court, Alexandria, Va., but "Vic" had just been transferred to Georgia and Hazel was about to go down there and begin househunting all over again.

The remainder of this column is going to be devoted to listing the whereabouts of those '37 men who are in the armed forces of Uncle Sam. This list will be by no means complete, but only you can help me bring it up to date by sending me that long sought for postcard with news of those fellows in uniform that aren't listed below. HENRY KLEIN writes that he is now a staff sergeant and his new address is 920 First Street, S.E., Moultrie, Ga. The big news is the reason why he moved: He was recently married to the former Ruth S. Feder.

TALCOTT BATES, MD '38, has been commissioned a lieutenant (jg) in the Medical Corps of the Navy and has reported to the Navy Medical School in Bethesda, Md., where he is taking a course in epidemiology.

April 18, 1942, ROBERT HICKOK married Ruth H. Wight of Milton, Mass. Bob is with the United Press bureau in Washington, D. C.

Please note change of address of your correspondent. I joined the Navy May 1 as a civilian agent in Naval Intelligence; was in Washington until June 17 when I was commissioned an ensign. Although now at Fort Schuyler, New York City, for training until the middle of August, mail will always reach me at St. Davids, Pa. Meanwhile, Brother RAY, Class secretary of '41 up in Brighton, Mass., has been promoted to lieutenant, junior grade. Thus he outranks me and I must treat him with the respect due a senior officer! The laugh is on me and everybody seems to be laughing.

Our Reunion was swell! I have a right to say so, you see, because PRISCILLA COFFIN BAXTER, HENNY HOAG, and BETTY RUSSELL did all the work! All that I did was to collect the $1 annual Class dues from the girls who came back. I got $2 from RUTH HOWELL! She is more than anxious that I have enough money to be able to publish the Big News Letter I have promised by the end of the summer.

Saturday evening, BETTY OLESEN and Ruth Howell took some dandy informal and formal pictures of our Ithaca Reunioners. In the first one, MYRTA MUNN is looking through the Class information files while everybody else is telling her the latest dope on some stray Classmate. It makes a nice picture. Then, as a "formal" Class picture, we placed the four mothers present in "easy" chairs while the rest of us stood in the background out on the Straight terrace. There is a picture of all of us at the '40 Class dinner; and still another informal shot taken as we were waiting on the steps of Bailey for the meeting to begin. Send ten cents in stamps for each print and a three cent stamp to cover mailing to Betty Olesen, 408 Stewart Ave., Ithaca. She will send the prints directly to you. Be sure to tell her which ones you want.

Keep on sending news of yourself and your Class dues to me. Many unfortunate Classmates do not get the ALUMNI NEWS, and do not realize that I am in need of money and news before I can publish our "Victory Garden Dirt Sheet," as we called it during our memorable First Reunion at Cornell!

April 18 was the wedding date of BETTY LEWIS and WILSON MITCHELL '40. KAY (BALL) and SAN SMILEY '41 were guests at the ceremony. The couple will live in Franklin, Pa.

LUCY ANN RATHBUN is up in Maine at Westbrook Junior College in Portland.

Although MARTY ATWOOD CHENEY has been living in Rochester a long time, finally her address leaks through to our column: 327 Inglewood Drive, Rochester. Cheney is with General Railway Signal Co.

RUTH DAVIDSON is now Mrs. Louis B. Cecil, Parc Vendome, 353 West Fifty-sixth Street, New York City.

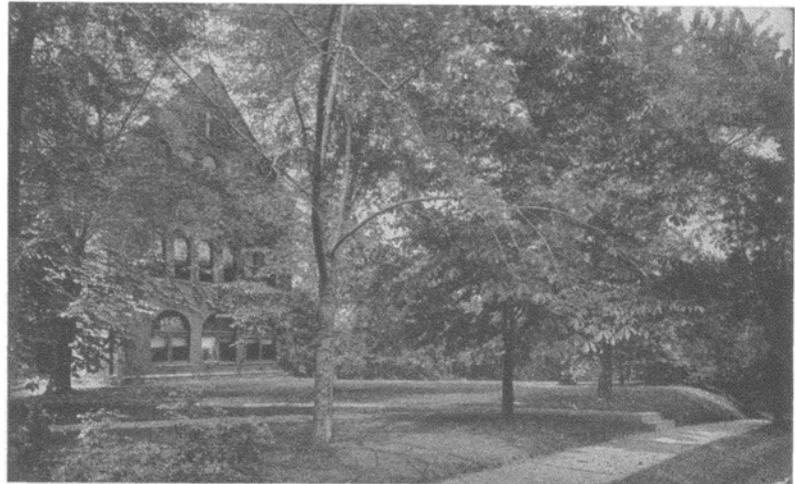

NATALIE SILVERSTON is Mrs. Joseph B. Gabrin, 224 Linden Avenue, Ithaca (last address I have).

MARGIE GIST when last heard from was auditor in Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corp., 620 East Gregory Boulevard, Kansas City, Mo.

GLENN NICE is holding down a farm bureau agent's job in Ontario County. His address is the Court House, Canandaigua.

An interesting note is that both BOB BRUNET and RAD SEVERANCE were assigned to duties on the former SS Normandie. Bob happened to have the day off the day the fire broke out, but as far as I know RAD was there in the midst of it.

Here's news that Lieutenant JIM VAN ARSDALE and Lieutenant GLEN ALLEN are both stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

CHUCK ODENBACH has chosen himself a wife: the former Mary E. Schaefer of Rochester. Chuck was formerly an engineer in the Panama Canal Zone, but is now both living and working in Niagara Falls. Until his new address comes in, 350 Maplewood Avenue, Rochester, will reach them.

JAMES F. ROBERTSON, RD #1, Laurens, has purchased and is operating a large dairy farm in Otsego County. Fifty head of Holsteins and 170 acres of rolling land ought to keep Jim plenty busy!

DICK DITTMAR, 4018 Hamilton Street, San Diego, Calif., is an inspector for the Consolidated Aircraft Corp. He married Helen Pinkney of Portland, Ore., last February in Los Angeles. How are you doin', "Dit"?

A lieutenant (jg) on the USS Dubuque, c/o Postmaster, Norfolk, Va., is STU SPAULDING. Stu has been on active duty for over a year now.

As a result of so many of you sending in those yellow slips with information about yourselves, there is a stack of them here a mile high. They can't all go in at once, due to lack of space, but if you'll bear with us we'll gradually get through them. At least, there's no worry at this end about lack of news for a long time to come.

Vacation at Cornell

Make Willard Straight Hall—on elm-shaded Central Avenue just below the Library—your headquarters for a pleasant summer visit.

THIS SUMMER offers unusual opportunity to combine a pleasant family vacation with a chance to show that high-school son or daughter the University in action. Willard Straight Hall, like all the rest of the Campus, is humming with activity. But if you let us know in advance, we like to accommodate alumni families for summer visits.

YOU'LL FIND IT pleasant this year to park the car if you drive in—or to come by train or bus—and enjoy the Campus on foot as you did when you were a student. Willard Straight is the center of everything—just a step from the Quadrangle and the Library, easily accessible to Summer Session lectures and concerts that you can attend for the asking, and but an easy stroll to the gorge trails and the Beebe Lake swimming pool.

BECAUSE the whole community comes to Willard Straight, you'll see old friends here too. Our guest rooms and lounges are cool and comfortable. Delectable food is offered for every taste. And the low cost of a pleasant summer holiday here will surprise you. Why not write us about it?
