MR. WHITE completed his eighty-fourth year on Tuesday of this week, November 7. It was election day, and Mr. White cast his vote at a polling place on College Avenue. The rest of the day he passed at the Old President's House. The anniversary was not marked in any way except by the receipt of many messages of good will.

THE FRASER SCHOLARSHIPS in the law school have been awarded, the first, valued at $100, to Clayton Chester Wolford, of Ithaca, and the second, valued at $50, to William Howard Maguire (A.B., '15), of Portland, Oregon. These scholarships were founded by an alumnus of the school in memory of the late A. H. R. Fraser, librarian of the law library. They are annually awarded to seniors. The Boardman Scholar is ineligible. The faculty selects a group of eligible men on the basis of scholarship, and the senior class by ballot elects the two scholars from the group, basing its choice upon considerations of manliness and character. The Boardman scholarship is held this year by L. I. Shelley, of Middletown, N. Y.

A PARTY of Cornell men and some of their friends is coming from New York to attend the Michigan game. It includes John T. McGovern '00, George Jean Nathan '04, Romeyn Berry '04, David Torrey Wells '04, John C. Grier '04, Edward Burns, jr., '03, Franklin P. Adams of the Tribune (a Michigan man), Charles Hanson Towne, and Robert Wildhack. The Savage Club will entertain them on Saturday night.

THE CLIMAX of the fraternity rushing occurred this week. The first period of two weeks ended Wednesday night. That period was devoted by the fraternities to entertaining freshmen at dinner and making their acquaintance. A very brief interval for the sending of invitations is followed by the second period, a space of about two hours on Friday night, which is the fraternity's opportunity for "bidding" the freshmen whom it has elected. Formerly the "bidding" or "pledging" period included three days, but experience showed that as a rule the fraternities completed their pledging on the first day, and that misunderstanding would be less likely to occur if there were a single day for that purpose. The interval between the two periods was made as short as possible to prevent such a thing as happened last year, when several chapters lost their heads and began to round up freshmen before the bars were down. Less than the usual grumbling has been heard about the rules this year.

AN EXHIBITION of drawings and sketches in White Hall represents work done in the summer competition by students of the College of Architecture. Such competitions have been held for several years to develop and test the student's eye for composition. There are fewer exhibits this year than there were a year ago. In the summer of 1915 several of the students attended the San Francisco exposition and were stimulated by that to exhibit many photographs and sketches. The present exhibition, although small, includes some excellent work.

Shackelton, Buffalo; from the Class of 1920, J. D. Shuler, Davenport, Iowa. The senior class on Monday of this week elected Collyer to the presidency of the Council, the office which now corresponds to the former presidency of the senior class. Three hundred and twenty-five seniors voted, and Collyer received 104 votes, a plurality of twelve. Collyer was stroke of the varsity eight for two years and is now assistant coach of the crews. The Class of 1917 has elected D. B. Vail treasurer of the Council and life secretary of the class.

THE FIELD OFFICERS of the cadet corps this year are: Colonel, W. L. Saunders '17, Washington, D. C.; adjutant, C. O. Henry '17, Canandaigua; supply officer, First Lieutenant Kenneth Dayton '17, Winsted, Conn.; major, first battalion, J. B. Slimm '17, Cleveland; adjutant, Second Lieutenant L. E. Bretz '19, Dobbs Ferry; major, second battalion, Henrik Antell '17, Brooklyn; adjutant, C. E. Krey '19, Washington, D. C.; major, third battalion, L. I. Shelley '17, Middletown; adjutant, J. A. THE ETHICS CLUB met at the Cosmopolitan club house on Monday night of this week and heard a lecture by Professor J. H. Davenport on "The duties of the voter." Dr. Davenport is professor of economics here, having come from the University of Missouri this fall to take the chair which Professor A. S. Johnson resigned.

OFFICERS have been elected by the Agricultural Association, as follows: President, William D. Crim '17, Utica; vice-president, William S. Vanderbilt, jr., '17, Greenville; secretary, Miss Anna Bristol '17, Ovid; treasurer, Paul R. Chappell '17, Cayuga; athletic director, John Wigsten '17, Elmira.

MISCHA ELMAN at his recital on November 3 had an audience which filled Bailey Hall.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATIONSDAYTON, OHIO

The Cornell University Association of Dayton, Ohio, met on October 19 and elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Harry I. Schenck '03; vice-president, W. A. Drake '06; secretary and treasurer, C. A. Paullin '13, No. 410 West First Street.

The Cornell luncheons in Dayton are now held on the first and third Saturdays of each month, at 12:30 o'clock, at the Engineers Club.

There are fifty or more Cornell men in the city of Dayton and the "batting average" at the luncheons is better than in some much larger cities. The association is looking forward eagerly to the coming of the Cornell Musical Clubs to Dayton in December.

WOMEN'S CLUB OF WASHINGTON

The officers of the Cornell Women's Club of Washington are: President, Mrs. Alfred Savage, 640 D Street, N. E.; treasurer, Miss Anna Jenkins, Bureau of Plant Industry; secretary, Miss Anne E. Draper, 1474 Harvard Street, N. W.

NEW ENGLAND

The Cornell Club of New England carried out successfully and agreeably its plans for a football smoker in Boston on the eve of the Harvard game. The club entertained 500 or 600 Cornell men and men of other universities at the Copley-Plaza. Eddie Savage '98 presided, and Hibby Ayer led the singing. Among the speakers were William F. Garcelon and Fred W. Moore of Harvard, Edward E. Babb of Boston, A. J. Baldwin '92, C. A. Taussig '02, and the Cornell coaches. Some of the Cornell men present were Tony Vonnegut, Frank Sears, Tell Berna, Max Rogers, Ed Cairns, Joe Philips, Chuck French, Barrett Smith, Jack Dods, Eddie Foote, Jess Whyte, Jack O'Hearn, Creed Fulton, Steve Vanderveer, Pat Wardwell, Jack Scott and Booty Hunkin. One of the Boston papers said; "There's nothing in the college world quite like a Cornell smoker. There have been many in this burgh, but last night's beat them all."

NEW YORK

On Friday night, November 3, the Cornell Club of New York held a general discussion of the issues of the political campaign and followed it with a straw ballot. About a hundred and fifty men were present. Each party had its headquarters and no means of influencing votes was overlooked by the rival campaign managers of the club. Posters and transparencies were paraded. One suggested that Daniels be thrown into the Bryan's den. Another advised that Hughes be taken out of the box and T. R. sent in to pitch the rest of the game with a view to saving it. Among the speakers were John H. Barr, Eugene Frayer, William W. Pellet (for Hanly), William L. Ransom, Guernsey Price and Harold T. Edwards (3 times). Almost every member present at some time had the floor temporarily. Romeyn Berry acted as chairman. Dr. Louis L. Seaman aroused particular interest with a description of the attitude of Englishmen and Frenchmen toward America and American policies. The vote resulted: Hughes 72, Wilson 18, Benson 1, and Hanly 1, scattered 32.

Week-End Social ProgramsProgress of a Reform Which Was Inaugurated Last Year

The following communication was published in the Sun of November 7:

Editor, Cornell Daily Sun: It will be remembered that near the close of last year a committee consisting of Prof. W. A. Hammond, Prof. D. S. Kimball, and Registrar D. F. Hoy, was appointed to nominate a committee of three undergraduates, one alumnus, and the Chairman of the Committee on Student Affairs to draw up a definite plan to care for the corrections of certain abuses that have crept into our social methods. The following men have been appointed to constitute a permanent committee for the ensuing year for this work, namely, John DeWitt '17, H. G. Place '17, and Phillips Wyman '17 as student representatives, C. E. Treman '89 as alumni representative, with Prof. D. S. Kimball, chairman of the Committee on Student Affairs.

This committee has given a great deal of time to the entire question and propose as a beginning the following regulations regarding the military hop and other social events occurring at this week's end.

It is proposed that the musical club concert shall begin promptly at 8 p. m. and stop at 10 p. m. Dancing will commence at 10:30 p. m. and continue until 3 a. m. No house dances are to be held after the military hop at fraternity houses or club houses.

For Saturday evening it is proposed that if house parties are held at the fraternities and clubs, dancing shall not extend beyond midnight, and that no punch or refreshments of any kind containing liquor shall be served. The committee believes this last regulation should be very carefully observed, as it is one of the most strongly criticised practices that has grown up in connection with our social affairs.

All guests are to be out of the fraternity houses and club houses by Sunday evening at 6 p. m. in order that freshmen and other underclassmen may get settled down to their work promptly.

The committee would urge that this program be scrupulously observed as there is no doubt that unless some restrictions are made, week-end affairs such as are proposed will soon be a thing of the past. It will be remembered that the student conference in reporting on the disturbance at the military hop last year recommended that this hop be abolished, and furthermore that the resolution of the University faculty, referring to the Committee on Student Affairs certain charges against last year's junior week events, contains this statement: "That the faculty regard the maintaining of temperance and seemly hours at social events as a necessary condition to the continuance of junior week."

The committee believes that the students of the University have an opportunity at this time to start a lasting reform that will do much to help the good name of the University, and would urge again that all comply with the spirit of the recommendations made herein.

SIBLEY DOME LECTURES

A COMMITTEE of younger professors in Sibley College has been appointed by the dean to arrange for a series of lectures by non-residents during the year. The committee consists of Professors C. H. Berry, J. G. Pertsch, and P. G. McVetty. A moving picture projector was installed in Sibley Dome last year and it will be used to illustrate some of the lectures. One such was given this week, when films lent by the Remington Typewriter Company were shown to illustrate "The history of the typewriter" and "The evolution of the stenographer." Another film lecture this week is by Cornelius F. Roland '09, of the International Tube Company, showing the evolution of iron ore into steel tubes.

WORK on the new drill hall is making good progress.

Work of the Christian Association Various Departments at Barnes Hall and Their Plans for the Year

The Christian Association this year has set about its work vigorously under the leadership of the general secretary, Charles W. Whitehair. Mr. Whitehair returned from abroad just before the University reopened. He spent most of the summer in Egypt as one of the agents of the International Young Men's Christian Association. That association is performing a task of vast proportions among the armies of the European nations, and Americans are doing most of the work. Little is read about it in the newspapers, for the reason that the Association's agents are forbidden to give interviews for fear of compromising the Association.

W. H. G. Murray '16, of Binghamton, who was appointed associate secretary at Barnes Hall last spring, has not returned from the Mexican border. He enlisted in a National Guard regiment for the summer and his return to civilization is delayed indefinitely. Mr. Murray was appointed to succeed D. E. Welty. Mr. Welty and D. S. Hatch '15, of Norwich, N. Y., have been sent to Mesopotamia by the International Y. M. C. A. to work among the British troops there.

Much work is planned at Barnes Hall for what is known as the department of deputations. Small groups of students are to be sent to various towns to speak at high schools and Christian Associations. The industrial service, which includes the teaching of English to immigrant workmen in the neighborhood, will be continued. There are many volunteers for this service. Another group of the members is interested especially in the work of the Boys' Club at the Inlet.

The association continues to publish the Handbook of Information, or "Frosh Bible," and twenty-five hundred copies of that useful compendium were distributed this fall. It is a vest-pocket volume bound in flexible leather. Another enterprise under the association's auspices this fall was a church canvass of the freshman class. Students representing different religious denominations called on the freshmen and sought to interest them in becoming attendants at Ithaca churches. The whole canvass was conducted in two evenings.

Raymond Robbins will come here for four days in January to speak to students under the association's auspices. His talks will be designed to encourage students to consider their duties and opportunities for social service in the communities where they will live. Mr. Robbins spoke at fifty-five universities and colleges last year. On December 9 and 10 lectures on sex hygiene will be given by Dr. Winfield Scott Hall. Such a series of talks as was given last year under the leadership of John R. Mott '88 is not planned for this year. That series was directed especially to the re-awakening of religious interest. The talks by Mr. Robbins are expected to be stimulating in the direction of social service.

One of the largest branches of the work at Barnes Hall continues to be the employment bureau. Last year it effected many thousands of student-hours of employment.

Dr. Wilbur Visits Cornell President of Stanford University Entertained at the University Club

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR to the Campus last week was Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University. He had come east to attend a meeting of the Association of American Colleges at Clark University. Dr. Wilbur looks distinguished. His stature is several inches over six feet and his face has been called Lincoln-like. Stanford alumni in New York and Philadelphia are entertaining their president and he came to Ithaca for a similar meeting. Thirty Stanford people gave him a dinner last Saturday night at the University Club. One of the men who greeted him was a classmate at Stanford, Professor D. S. Kimball. President Schurman was a guest. He and Dr. Wilbur spoke, as did also Professor Bristow Adams of the College of Agriculture, who was a 1900 man at Stanford and founded the Chaparral, the first permanent college comic in the west. Several of the diners, including Dean Smith of Sibley College, had known Dr. Wilbur when he was a student at Stanford in the class of 1896. Both his predecessors in the presidency, David Starr Jordan and John Casper Branner, are Cornell men.

THE HUGHES PARADE

Edgar A. Hamilton '11 had charge of organizing the college men for the Hughes parade in New York on the night of November 4. There were about sixty thousand men in line and the college section comprised six thousand men. The Cornell division seemed to be the largest of the college contingents.

Meeting of Alumni Secretaries National Association Has a Discussion of University Problems

The fifth annual meeting of the Association of Alumni Secretaries was held in Nashville on October 26, 27, and 28. The hosts of the meeting were Vanderbilt University and Peabody College for Teachers. H. A. Hitchcock 1900, Secretary of the University, was present representing Cornell.

About thirty alumni secretaries attended the meeting. W. B. Shaw, of the University of Michigan, presided. Mr. Shaw on the first day led a discussion of "The ultimate purposes of alumni organization." The subject was considered under several heads—athletics, student enrollment, educational standards and requirements, and university policies as affecting or affected by alumni ideals. The representatives of Brown University (Mr. McLaughlin), Yale (Mr. Embree), and Columbia (Mr. Tyson) spoke on athletics. Mr. McLaughlin said that the experience of Brown had shown the need of alumni co-operation with the authorities of the university and with the students in the government of athletics. Mr. Embree told of the eradication at Yale of the idea that the captain is king and said that the situation there had been improved by putting the entire direction of athletics into the hands of a governing board. In a general discussion, the prevailing opinion seemed to be that football was probably stressed too much at the universities and that more attention should be given to other branches of sport. In speaking of the relation of alumni to student enrollment, several secretaries insisted that quality rather than quantity of enrollment was what universities needed.

An address to the secretaries by C. J. P. Mooney, editor of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, dealt with university publicity. The best way for a school to get publicity, he suggested, was to give its students a good education; the character of the graduates was a more potent advertisement of the school than articles in the newspapers. He continued: "Universities have more interesting things connected with them than athletics. They have the attainments of their professors and the knowledge derived from their research." The publicity furnished to the press by the universities should be educational, he asserted, and he advised that in this respect the example of some of the state agricultural colleges be followed.

To Mobilize in New York City Round-Up of the Cornell Alumni of the Metropolitan District

In anticipation of the semi-centennial celebration in 1918, the Cornellian Council is preparing for a mobilization of the Cornell Alumni of New York City and vicinity. The purpose of this movement will be two-fold: first, to unite Cornell Alumni of the Metropolitan District for greater service and usefulness to the University, and second, to interest Cornell men in the Metropolitan District in the financial support of the University. It is to be a great Cornell Alumni educational campaign.

The opening gun will be fired at a monster Cornell supper at the Waldorf-Astoria on November 20, to which all Cornell men are being invited by a special invitation from Franklin Matthews, president of the Cornellian Council. The speakers on this occasion will be: President Schurman; Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and recently elected trustee of the University; Major-General Leonard Wood; George C. Boldt, trustee and devoted friend of the University; J. G. White, president of J. G. White & Co.; Daniel A. Reed, line coach of the football team and an able speaker in the Chamber of Commerce field, and other Cornellians. Edward Burns, jr., will be on hand with a dozen or more Cornell songsters.

A dinner will be given in honor of Andrew D. White on November 27, also at the Waldorf-Astoria. A number of distinguished Alumni and friends of Mr. White and of the University will be invited to speak on this occasion. A football smoker will be held at the Cornell Club on December 4.

On December 5, an intensive campaign will be started, with more than three hundred Cornell men serving on class teams the purpose of which will be to add the name of every Cornell man in the Metropolitan District to the honor roll of the Cornellian Council. It is expected that this campaign will be the beginning of a series of intensive campaigns which will result in the realization of an annual income of $100,000 from Cornell Alumni to the University by the time of the semi-centennial celebration in 1918.

In order that this celebration in New York may receive proper recognition by the press, a number of men of national prominence have been asked to speak at the various social gatherings, and the Cornell newspaper men in New York have been mobilized on a publicity committee to bring the celebration to the attention of the editors of the various metropolitan daily and weekly papers.

Franklin Matthews, President of the Council, has appointed the following committee to have charge of this "Cornell Alumni Mobilization":

GENERAL CHAIRMAN: James G. White '85.

The annual election of officers of the Cornell University Association of Michigan took place on October 30. The new officers are: President, Heatley Green '01; vice-president, Halsey V. Welles '13; secretary, J. R. Marvin '02, No. 623 Dime Bank Building, Detroit; treasurer, Paul Reyneau '13; industrial secretary, Paul W. Thompson '10; sixth member of committee, A. B. BINGHAMTON

The Cornell Club of Binghamton has outlined plans for the winter season. A smoker, to be held early in December, will be the first event. The annual banquet will be held early in February. A luncheon will be held every Tuesday in the Chamber of Commerce grill. President Robert S. Parsons has appointed committees, the chairmen of which are: Banquet, H. A. Swartwood '12; smoker, G. Meade Willsey '13; luncheon, Paul F. Titchener '13; concert, F. W. Taft '13; Alumni Fund, A. L. Gilmore '08.

IN MEMORY OF C. D. SMITH '73

The Michigan Agricultural College Record publishes a letter from the director of the Agricultural College of Brazil expressing sorrow at the death of Professor Clinton DeWitt Smith '73, who went from the Michigan Agricultural College to become the organizer and first director of the Brazilian college, the first of its kind in that country. The letter was received by Mrs. Smith at Trumansburg, N. Y., Professor Smith's boyhood home, to which he retired three years before his death last August. In his letter the director says that in token of grief for Professor Smith's death the college was closed for two days and the flag was draped in mourning and hoisted at half-mast.

The University Club Prospering
Entertains a Hope of Providing Itself with a Building Such as It Needs

The University Club of Ithaca, organized two years ago, has made itself indispensable to a large part of the community. The club last year had more than five hundred members. It leases from the University the two lower floors of the building long known as Sage Cottage, No. 3 Central Avenue. The rooms on the other floors of the building are rented by the University to members of the instructing or administrative staff, who last year were all members of the club. The building is now commonly known as The University Club.

In these quarters the club has been a welcome means of social and intellectual intercourse on the hill, and has been serviceable especially to younger members of the staff who have no home in Ithaca. Without doubt the club has come to stay, and it is already seeking ways and means of getting itself a building large enough for a normal membership and adapted to club uses. Professor Shepherd Stevens of the department of design, College of Architecture, who is a director of the club, has studied the problem and sketched plans and elevations for a building which might be erected on the site of the present club, at the northwest corner of South and Central Avenues. This was done by authority of the board of directors when it appeared that the present quarters could hardly be regarded as adequate and permanent. Professor Stevens's drawing of the Central Avenue elevation of the suggested building is reproduced on this page.

The plan contemplates a building of four stories above the level of Central Avenue and one or more stories below. There is room for such lower stories without much if any excavation because the descent west of the avenue is abrupt. The main floor would be devoted to club uses, having dining rooms and other public rooms. It is suggested that the south entrance and certain rooms at that end of the building be for men, that similar provision be made for women members at the north end of the building, and that common use be made of a large central drawing room and main dining room. On this floor there would be also a reading room and a private dining room, and a suite of rooms suited to the entertainment of University preachers or other guests. The plan of the basement provides for the kitchen and rooms for various sorts of recreation. Living rooms for members of the University staff would take up all three of the upper stories. Such a building as is illustrated here would house about forty-five men.

PROPOSED UNIVERSITY CLUB, CORNELL UNIVERSITY

In its plans for the future the club foresees that, as it becomes better known to the alumni of the University, many of them may join it and become participants in all its privileges and in its service to the University. In order to promote and serve such membership the club purposes, if it can obtain the kind of building it hopes for, to reserve some of the chambers for the transient use of non-resident alumni members. The difficulty of finding means to build has not yet been overcome. From a year-book recently published by the club the following statements are taken:

The club is not exclusive. Its privileges are open on equal terms to men and women. The constitution provides (1) that "any person connected with Cornell University as trustee, professor, instructor, graduate assistant, or administrative officer, or any adult member of the family of such a person, may become a member of the club without election; but the qualifications of any applicant for membership under this clause must first be scrutinized and found adequate by the board of directors;" and (2) that "any other person may be elected to membership by a two-thirds vote at any meeting of the board of directors, provided that his name shall have been proposed by a member of the club and posted in the club house for at least two weeks." The annual dues of each member are $5 and the initiation fee is $2.

For some time after it began, two years ago, the club proceeded with caution, recognizing that on annual dues of only five dollars elaborate projects could not be made at once. But its experience of two years has proved that the plan is financially sound and that such rigid economy as has been practiced is necessary no longer. So it now promises a gradual expansion of facilities and activities. For one thing, the enclosed west veranda will be enlarged to provide room for several more dining tables.

Breakfast and luncheon are served every week-day, and supper is served on Sunday evenings. The available space has been increased to meet the demand, and it is now possible to serve sixty persons simultaneously. Arrangements may be made at any time for special luncheons or dinners, and the dining rooms are frequently used for private parties, departmental dinners, or the entertainment of university guests. The dining service is under the direction of members of the department of home economics.

The initial cost of the equipment of the club was $2,362.38. It was necessary to borrow $925, which was repaid after one year. During the second year the cost of additional equipment was $613.86, but in that year the club's receipts from initiation fees and dues were $2,876, and at the time of the annual meeting last May the club was out of debt. During the first five months of 1916 the dining service was self-supporting.

ITHACA, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 9, 1916

A GRADUATE of one of the technical colleges of the University has written to the NEWS asking it to "agitate a 'study English' movement for the engineer students." This graduate is engaged in investigation for one of the government bureaus. He writes: "A very few engineer graduates know how to write even a simple brief report that will carry its conclusions and recommendations in the most vivid and impressive and forceful manner. English is sadly slighted. I never felt my own deficiency in the use of good English until I had to write reports, etc., in a supposedly intelligent way. An elementary college course in English should be made compulsory in the junior and senior year. What's the use of a scientific or practical investigation if the results are put on paper in poor English?" Many university graduates will sympathize with the trouble of this correspondent, and they will not all be graduates of technical colleges, either. To meet the necessity which he has felt in his work is a big problem, which we can only pass on to the educators, and they have been disputing over it for these many years. To make good writers out of college students is a task which many college teachers would put upon the preparatory schools. The University itself seems to hold this opinion, for it insists that every matriculate shall have passed a satisfactory examination in English composition. It is a sad truth that too many teachers in secondary schools have no conception of the purpose of teaching English to boys and girls. The English courses in schools are cluttered up with "literature courses" which are worse than worthless, for the pupil revolts at the cramming required and comes to college with a loathing for "English." College entrance requirements are partly to blame for that. The teaching of correct and convincing expression to college students, in technical schools particularly, is not so much a problem for the college departments of English as it is for the technical departments themselves, because the power of correct and convincing expression depends less upon the learning of rules of rhetoric than upon the acquiring of a habit of precise thinking. Nobody can make a clear writer out of a muddier thinker. The practice of writing is a great help toward clear thinking provided the writing be the product of real thought. It is our opinion that what is needed, rather than courses in English in the junior and senior years, is better teaching of English composition in the schools and, throughout the college course, practice in writing on themes directly related to the courses which the student is pursuing. Maybe some Cornell technical graduates have solved this problem for themselves and will tell us how it was done.

BINGHAMTON UNIVERSITY CLUB

Residents of Binghamton, N. Y., have effected the temporary organization of a university club, which is expected to be successful because there are about six hundred graduates of universities and colleges living in the city. Among the officers of the club are several Cornell men. They include the president, Frank S. Bump '95; the secretary, Alvin L. Gilmore '08, and a member of the executive committee, Robert B. Sears '03.

Cornell 15, Carnegie 7

When the team met the eleven from the Carnegie Institute of Technology, last Saturday, it had not regained its stride after the defeat by Harvard. It played clumsily and had difficulty in winning by a score of 15 to 7. Radical faults were revealed which were not a hopeful sign so near the game with Michigan. Loose tackling, a fault from which the 1915 eleven freed itself, was one of the most discouraging signs that this team had not yet laid a foundation for success in its big games. The visitors from Pittsburgh were fast, and in contrast to them the Cornell team seemed to be slow and logy.

During the season there have been indications that some of the Cornell players are not thinking very fast when they are on the field. One of these indications is the fact that it seems to be necessary for the quarterback to repeat the signal before almost every play. This was most marked in the game at Cambridge. The Harvard team seemed to be a unit in anticipating the play that was called for by the circumstances of the moment and in responding instantly to the signal from the quarterback, whereas Cornell players appeared to have no notion what to do until they had interpreted the signal. This may account for Harvard's appearance of greater alertness and greater speed in execution. Some improvement had been made in this respect in the Carnegie game, but the fault had not been eradicated.

Carnegie had two fast and elusive backs in Kesner and Finlay and an excellent interference for the protection of those men in runs around either end. It was by such plays that the visitors made most of their gains. Man after man of the Cornell defense was spilled and put out of the play, until the Cornell ends seemed to be helpless. These end runs gained more ground in the first half than in the second, when Cornell learned to break them up, although it was such a play that gained Carnegie a touchdown early in the second half. This was a thirty-yard run by Finlay around the end guarded by Zander, who missed a tackle. The visitors made some first downs by plays through the line, when they had only a yard or two to gain, but as a rule they did not make much impression on the Cornell line. They excelled Cornell in running back kicks, chiefly because they protected the runner by completely bowling over and putting out of the play the Cornell men who went down the field with the ball.

Cornell's attack was lacking in punch. This lack was due in part no doubt to the team's great slowness in putting the ball into play after lining up. If the team had had a faster offensive action it might have scored two more touchdowns, for it had the ball within five yards of the Carnegie goal when the first half ended, and when the game ended Cornell was attacking within ten yards of the visitors' goal.

Little use of the forward pass was made by either team. Carnegie's few passes were intercepted. Cornell's two or three were uncompleted.

The team started the game without Shiverick and Jewett. Speed played quarterback till the final period, when Shiverick took his place and Speed displaced Hoffman. The team played with more ginger after Shiverick went in. Until then Speed and Benedict, and Hoffman too, had done good work in advancing the ball, but the playing of the eleven as a whole had been comparatively spiritless.

Progress of the Game

Carnegie kicked off. Cornell gained only two yards in three downs, and punted to Finlay, who regained fifteen yards to Carnegie's 40-yard line. End runs carried the ball to a first down on Cornell's 10-yard line, where Cornell held till fourth down and then intercepted a forward pass behind the goal. After a punt, Carnegie resumed the attack but lost the ball by a fumble on Cornell's 30-yard line, and from that point Cornell's attack scored a touchdown from which Benedict kicked a goal. Score: Cornell, 7; Carnegie, 0. In the second period Kesner missed goal from a drop kick on the 35-yard line. A few minutes before the end of the half Hoffman intercepted a Carnegie forward pass on Cornell's 30-yard line and Cornell began an attack there which had carried the ball to the visitors' four-yard line when time was called for the half.

Immediately after the kick-off in the third period Carnegie, from its own forty-yard line, cut loose with end runs which carried the ball to Cornell's 30-yard line. There Finlay went around Zander's end, cut in through the secondary defense, and made a touchdown between the goal posts. Wright kicked the goal, tying the score at 7-all.

A Cornell attack faded out near the visitors' 15-yard line, but a misplay by them at that point gave Cornell a safety. They attempted a punt, and the center passed the ball over the punter's head behind the goal line, where three Cornell linemen fell on the player who recovered it. Score: Cornell, 9; Carnegie, 7.

In the final period Cornell's attack, while still slow, was effective. From its own 20-yard line, where Gillies fell on a fumbled ball, the team marched down the field to a touchdown, made by Mueller near the side line. The punt-out was missed. Score: Cornell, 15; Carnegie, 7.

Cornell attacked again, and Shiverick missed a field goal. A fumble by Carnegie on her own 20-yard line gave Cornell another chance, but the ball was nine yards from the goal when time was called. The line-up:

Cornell	Carnegie
Miller.....	left guard.....Kelly
Carry.....	center.....Hellstrom
Anderson.....	right guard.....Fletcher
Dixon.....	right tackle.....Grady
Eckley.....	right end.....Wright
Speed.....	quarterback.....Kesner
Hoffman.....	right halfback.....Finlay
Mueller.....	fullback.....Altdoerffer

Substitutions—Cornell: Ryerson for Eckley, Eckley for Ryerson, Sutton for Gillies, Bard for Miller, Tilley for Anderson, Taylor for Dixon, Ryerson for Zander, Shiverick for Speed, Haucke for Benedict, Speed for Hoffman; Carnegie: Lyons for Fletcher, Williams for Gibson, Gibson for Williams. Touchdowns—Speed, Mueller, Finlay. Goals from touchdowns—Benedict, Wright. Safety—Wright. Referee—C. J. McCarty. Umpire—F. W. Murphy, Brown. Linesman—Captain C. F. Thompson, West Point. Time of periods—15 minutes.

Secret Practice for the Team

After the Harvard game the coaches announced that for the rest of the season spectators would not be admitted to the practice. This is an unusual step and was evidently taken in order to avoid any possible distraction of the players from their instruction. The team's late start made it more difficult for the coaches to correct individual crudities before developing team-play.

Several players have been out of practice on account of slight injuries. They include Shiverick, Bretz, Jewett, and Miller.

Cross Country

Cornell 34, Harvard 75

The cross-country team won a dual meet with Harvard at Ithaca last Saturday, scoring 34 points to Harvard's 75. L. E. Wenz '17, of New York, was the individual winner of the race. McDermott and Dresser of Cornell also finished ahead of King, the Harvard leader. Last year Cornell won the Harvard race by a similar score—35 to 76. Therefore last Saturday's result was a pleasant surprise to the friends of Cornell's team, which was supposed to have been weakened by the loss of many experienced men last June. The first sixteen finished as follows:

1. Wenz, Cornell 34:24
2. McDermott, Cornell 34:34
3. Dresser, Cornell 34:47 3-5
4. King, Harvard 34:58 3-5
5. Campbell, Cornell 35:04 2-5
6. Windnagle, Cornell 35:25
7. Babcock, Harvard 35:34
8. Boynton, Cornell 35:59
9. Hudson, Cornell 36:03 3-5
10. Hutchinson, Harvard 36:05
11. Bancroft, Harvard 36:05 1-5
12. Tilghman, Harvard 36:10
13. Spear, Cornell 36:16
14. Yost, Cornell 36:30
15. Betchel, Harvard 36:42 4-5
16. Cook, Harvard 36:50 3-5

Association Football

Yale 1, Cornell 0

In its second game of the season, the Cornell association football team was defeated by the Yale eleven at New Haven last Saturday. The score was 1 to 0. Yale made her single goal in the last two minutes of play. The Cornell team played a much better game than in the contest with Princeton a week earlier. It had the ball in Yale territory for much of the second half. The make-up of the team was about the same as in the Princeton game.

Interscholastic Cross-Country.—Seventy boys representing eleven schools took part in a cross-country run under Cornell auspices last Saturday morning. The order of finish was: 1, Lafayette High School, Buffalo; 2, Technical High School, Buffalo; 3, Wakefield High School, Wakefield, Mass.; 4, Concord High School, Concord, N. H.; 5, Flushing High School, Flushing, N. Y.; 6, Hutchinson Central High School; 7, Auburn Academic; 8, Schenectady High School; 9, Masten Park High School, Buffalo; 10, Ithaca High School; 11, Spencer High School.

THE MUSICAL CLUBS

The Cornell Musical Clubs will give a joint concert with the Pennsylvania Combined Clubs on Wednesday night, November 29, the eve of the Thanksgiving Day game, at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia. Tickets are $2 each and can be obtained by mailing check to De Gray White, Manager, P. O. Box 38, Ithaca.

CORNELL'S RECORD

Grantland Rice in the New York Tribune.

Those who are inclined to spoof Cornell after the Harvard showing might pause a moment and figure in the Ithacan record. In her last twenty-three games, dating from 1914, the Big Red Team has won twenty-two and dropped one.

This average is well above .950. And a .950 average, taken by and large, up and down, back and across, is at least sufficient to get by with.

We know of at least two or three ball clubs that would be willing enough to romp along at a .950 clip without emitting even the semblance of a squawk.

Freshman Football.—The 1920 team was lined up against the second varsity in a short game late Saturday afternoon. The final score was 7 to 7. The second varsity scored in the first period and the freshmen in the last.

A PHOTOGRAPH of the University Faculty was taken by J. P. Troy on November 6 on a stand built near Franklin Hall. The group comprised about two hundred professors and assistant professors.

ALUMNI NOTES

'81—George Shiras 3d, of Washington, D. C., whose hobby is hunting wild animals with a camera, conducted a recent expedition to the country north of Lake Superior for the American Museum of Natural History. An account of the expedition was given by the New York Evening Post a few days ago in an article about new collections obtained by the Museum. Mr. Shiras provided for the expenses of the trip and supplied the guides, and H. E. Anthony, of the Museum staff, went along to study and collect moose. Some valuable photographic records as well as specimens were obtained. The Museum will publish the results of the expedition.
