University Press Authorized

Trustees Approve Set-up for Publishing Enterprise and Appropriate Funds for Modest Beginning

An appropriation of $5,000 a year to the Cornell University Press for the next five years was made by the Board of Trustees at a recent meeting of the Committee on General Administration. The Board had already enacted a statute creating the Press. The step next in order is the appointment of the governing body, which will be called the University Press Council and will consist of the President of the University ex officio, one member of the Board, and six members of the University Faculty.

The organization of the Press has necessarily awaited the provision of funds for the publication of books. Most, if not all, of the appropriation will be available for production because the Press will be able to keep down its expense of management by using existing facilities until the growth of its business requires it to expand. The Press will be a publishing and not a printing enterprise.

The Board's appropriation for the Press was made on the recommendation of the Cornellian Council. That Council is now inviting, from alumni and any other interested persons, contributions to the Press's $5,000 annual subsidy, hoping that all the subsidy can be supplied without drawing upon unrestricted gifts to the Alumni Fund.

Included in the statute is a provision for the appointment by the Press Council of three members of the University Faculty who will serve as a Committee on Publication. It will be the duty of that committee to select and to recommend to the Press Council such manuscripts as it judges to be worthy of publication under the Press's imprint, and it will have the sole authority to permit publication under that imprint. Any publication at the expense of the Press, however, must be approved by the Council also.

All who are interested in the Press have found a happy augury in the publication just at this time of Professor John Henry Comstock's will bequeathing the Comstock Publishing Company to Cornell University. It is hoped that a way will be found to amalgamate interests so that the Cornell University Press may become in effect the successor of the Comstock Publishing Company.

DEAN RICHTMYER HONORED

Professor Floyd K. Richtmyer '04, newly elevated to the deanship of the Graduate School, was the guest of honor at a dinner in Willard Straight Hall March 25. Among the speakers was President Farrand.

Dean Richtmyer, discussing the greater number of students of science in graduate schools, expressed the belief that the study of the humanities should be definitely encouraged.

Leaves Estate to Cornell

Bulk of Comstock's Property goes to University—Includes Publishing Company, Books, and Engravings

The estate of Professor John H. Comstock '74 who died March 20 goes to Cornell, except for small bequests to relatives, friends, and other institutions. The size of the estate is designated in the will as "in excess of $50,000." The will, which was filed for probate April 1, was made jointly with that of Mrs. Anna Botsford Comstock '85, who died August 24.

The estate includes the Comstock Publishing Company, a nationally known nature study publishing house founded by Professor Comstock. It becomes the sole property of Cornell.

After bequests of $1,000 each to the Ithaca Memorial Hospital and the Unitarian Church of Ithaca and smaller bequests to individuals, the residue of the estate, both real and personal property, goes to the University. Among other things, the will directs the establishment of the Grove Karl Gilbert Student Loan Fund for self-supporting students. The income is to be loaned without interest to students elected by the trustees, and all money when repaid is to be added to the principal.

The Library is given certain books, including a Thoreau collection. The Comstock Memorial Library is bequeathed an oil painting of Professor and Mrs. Comstock, and the Department of Entomology is to receive a collection of silver loving cups and many of the wood engravings done by Mrs. Comstock.

DR. CHAPMAN NAMED DEAN

Dr. Royal N. Chapman, Ph.D. '17, was appointed dean of the new graduate school of tropical agriculture at the University of Hawaii March 27. Dr. Chapman went to Honolulu in 1930 to direct the experiment station of the Association of Hawaiian Pineapple Canners.

The new school is comparable only to the Imperial College of Tropical Agriculture at St. Augustine, Trinidad.

Since he left Cornell in 1917, Dr. Chapman has twice been to Europe, as a Guggenheim fellow in 1926 and as an investigator for the Rockefeller Foundation in 1927.

ATHLETICS

POOR START IN BASEBALL

The baseball team lost to Pennsylvania April 11 at Philadelphia, 10 to 1, in the opening game of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League campaign for both nines.

Masters, Quaker pitcher, allowed two hits while Pennsylvania reached Williams and Schultz for thirteen safeties. Williams gave three hits and seven bases on balls in the first three innings, in which Pennsylvania scored seven runs. Masters virtually won his own game in the first inning by driving in two runs with a two-base hit.

Cornell got its lone run in the second inning with two out. Hartkoff beat out a bunt and went all the way to third on Masters' wild throw. He scored on Habicht's single. Captain Goodman was hurt in the leg in the fourth inning and was forced out of the game.

The defeat gave Cornell a season record to date of one victory and three defeats. On the annual southern trip, Cornell defeated Bridgewater College at Harrisonburg, Va., 3 to 2, with Stevens pitching. The team lost to North Carolina, 11 to 5, and to Duke University, 7 to 0. Rain cancelled three other games, one with each of the three teams played.

YALE LEADS LEAGUE

Yale leads the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League with two victories and no defeats as a result of games played last week. The Eli nine defeated Columbia April 8 at New York, 4 to 2, in eleven innings and won over last year's champion, Dartmouth, April 11 at New Haven, 9 to 2.

Pennsylvania's victory over Cornell gave the Quakers second place. Princeton, the sixth member of the league, has yet to play a circuit game.

COACH NOT ON BENCH

The contests this year are being played without the direct assistance of the coaches. The executive committee of the league voted to bar coaches from the bench and let the captains direct the teams' play.

This ruling was appealed by the captains who canvassed their squads and reported the majority of the players against it, but the league committee voted to keep the rule in force.

POLO TEAM ELIMINATED

The indoor polo team of the R.O.T.C. Polo and Riding Club was eliminated in the semi-final round of the national Class D indoor polo championships in Squadron C Armory April 2 by the Allenhurst Polo Club of New Jersey. The score was 9 to 1-2.

Cornell, entered in the national tourney through victories in the New York circuit elimination matches, reached the semi-final round by defeating the Cleveland Polo Club, Ohio circuit champion, 8 to 5 1-2.

FENCERS DO WELL

Cornell was represented in the championships of the Intercollegiate Fencing Association at New York April 2 and 3 by Captain Cristobal M. Martinez-Zorrilla '31 and Jose C. Martinez-Zorrilla '32. Captain Martinez-Zorrilla finished well up among the leaders in the individual épée competition. He won seven matches and lost four. The Army won the team championship and Cadet Gustave Heiss won the individual title.

The brothers represented Cornell in the sabre competition for teams, earning second place behind Columbia.

Jose was elected vice-president of the association and captain of the Cornell team for next year.

RIFLE SHOOT RESULTS

The R.O.T.C. rifle team has been ranked seventeenth among the colleges of the country by the National Rifle Association as the result of sectional championship shoots held March 28. Cornell competed at Annapolis, where the United States Naval Academy team set a new record of 1,382 points.

Cornell won the championship of the United States Army Second Corps Area in shoots held before the national tournament.

WIN FIRST LACROSSE GAME

A fast attack early in the game gave the lacrosse team a 4 to 3 victory over Syracuse, on Alumni Field April 11. It was Cornell's first game of the season and its second consecutive victory over the Orange.

Syracuse was unusually weak defensively, and Cornell, on goals by Winslow, Erda, and Guthrie, ran up a three-point lead in the first ten minutes of play.

Morris scored for Syracuse, but Erda again tallied to keep the margin at three points until the last two minutes of the first half, when G. Thiel and Pierce scored for Syracuse. The second half was scoreless.

Cornell protected the lead in the second period by some fine defensive work, but its attack lost somewhat in speed and aggressiveness.

The line-ups:

CORNELL (4)	POS	SYRACUSE (3)
Ives	G	Ticknor
Hunt	P	Whittaker
Walker	CP	Murphy
Tullar	1D	Obst
Winslow	2D	R. Thiel

Goals—Cornell: Winslow, Erda 2, Guthrie. Syracuse: Morris, G. Thiel, Pierce.

Substitutions—Cornell: Marquart for Mason, Cornell for Guthrie, Scibs for Winslow, Hanshaw for Matthew, Mason for Marquart, Marquart for Guthrie. Syracuse: Morris for Welch, Priddie for Reeves, Romaner for Whittaker, Welch for G. Thiel.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

The football team will play eight games this year, opening the season September 26 with Clarkson Tech and closing with the traditional Pennsylvania game on Franklin Field Thanksgiving Day.

The University of Richmond returns to the schedule after an absence of two years, replacing Hampden-Sidney. Alfred, a newcomer, replaces Hobart.

Spring football practice under Coach Gilmour Dobie began April 6, with sixty-five men reporting the first day. The squad numbered about eighty at the close of the week, with all but a few veterans attending.

Francis A. Lueder '31, Jacksonville, varsity end for the past three years, is assisting Coach Dobie.

The schedule:

September 26, Clarkson Tech at Ithaca.

October 3, Niagara at Ithaca; 10, University of Richmond at Ithaca; 17, Princeton at Ithaca; 31, Columbia at Ithaca.

November 7, Alfred at Ithaca; 14, Dartmouth at Hanover; 26, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

JUST LOOKING AROUND

SITTING and thinking large thoughts about Life, I reflected that the Pedant is dead. The Pedant that Rabelais and Molière endlessly mocked, with his pride of learning, his pomposity of manner, his show of Latin and Greek, his command of awe and admiration from the vulgar mob. He is dead, he is no more; we look for him in vain among the smart young men on our faculties.

He is dead because the vulgar mob, day by day more vulgar, has ceased to render him awe and admiration. Three hundred happy years ago the vulgar mob believed, with the Pedant, that there was a secret magic in the Latin and Greek. The Bachelor left the university with arcane wisdom rolled in his diploma. He had learned the Mysteries of Hippocrates, or those of St. Thomas Aquinas; he had studied nigromancie at the University of Toledo. The people uncovered to him, as to day to a Herr Professor Doktor in Germany.

No more, no more. A long course in mockery has made of the Professor, in the popular view, a comic creature, absent of mind, helpless of hand, incompetent in worldly dealings, occupied with futile and ridiculous learning. And there are few on our faculties who play the pedant, to justify the popular mind in its caricature.

But still, perhaps, a few. There is Professor Bzoosh, the pompous, the prideful, the compounder of Greek puns, the indefatigable compiler of lists of things.

I hurried to see Professor Bzoosh, the last of the pedants. And for an hour he talked to me of the other members of his department, all dreadful, all appalling pedants.

The pedants are dead, or we are all pedants together. I don't suppose it matter.

FIELD SECRETARY VISITS

CLUBS WEST AND SOUTH

In his capacity as Alumni Field Secretary, Ray S. Ashbery '25 has been holding a series of successful meetings on the circuit southwest of Ithaca. He is now on the second lap of a tour which started in Cincinnati on March 23 and will not wind up until he reaches Philadelphia on April 28.

Cincinnati held its annual banquet and election of officers on the occasion of Ashbery's visit. It is generally pronounced to be the best Cornell meeting held in the city over a period of many years. The principal speaker was Albert E. Anderson, father of three well-known Cornell sons, Edward L. '26, John F. '29, and James J. '34. Mr. Anderson was elected an honorary member of the club. These officers were elected: President, Henry D. Whitaker '18; vice-president, Robert M. Sohngen '08; secretary, Oscar A. Klausmeyer '13; treasurer, Gurney A. Lunt '16; Directors, William H. Hopple '06, Julian A. Pollak '07, John B. Strobbridge '12, and L. Bartlett Shapleigh '25.

A meeting of the Cornell Club of the Blue Grass Region, in Lexington, Kentucky, was held at the Lafayette Hotel on March 24. It was the first meeting of the club in many months. Dean Paul P. Boyd, Ph.D. '11, president, presided.

The Cornell Club of Louisville met the following evening at the Pendennis Club. Reels of 16 mm. films, which had been on schedule elsewhere, caught up with Ashbery at this point, and he has shown them at all of his subsequent meetings. In the absence of Adolph Reutlinger '13, president of the Louisville club, George W. Whiteside '25 presided as secretary.

The next meeting was in Memphis on March 27. Lawrence B. Pryor '23, secretary of the club, was toastmaster at a dinner held at the University Club. The week was concluded with a meeting at Little Rock on the evening of March 28, a dinner at the Albert Pike Hotel. W. Munson McKinney '30 was elected secretary-treasurer of the club.

A meeting at Tulsa started the second week. The Cornell Club of Oklahoma met at the Tulsa Club for dinner. Alfred G. Heggem '97 presided.

The meeting in Dallas on April 1 was a luncheon, at the Hotel Adolphus, but in some respects was one of the best meetings in the first part of the trip. Forty alumni were present, a notably high proportion of the available material. John G. Pew '24 had been active in making the preliminary arrangements, and he was elected president of the club, with Anthony F. Korn, Jr. '10, vice-president. Robert A. B. Goodman '16 was elected secretary-treasurer.

The alumni at Houston entertained the Alumni Field Secretary at a dinner at the Rice Hotel on April 2. George L. Noble, Jr. '18 presided.

In Bird-Lore for March-April Professor Arthur A. Allen '08 writes on "The House Sparrow." The article is illustrated from the author's photographs.

In Modern Language Notes for April Professor Fred L. Jones, Ph.D. '22, of Mercer University writes on "Adonais: the Source of xxvii-xxviii."

In the Modern Language Review for January Dr. Solomon A. Rhodes '21, The Cult of Beauty in Charles Baudelaire is reviewed by P. M. J.

Forbes '06 leading the singing, and Herbert N. Putnam '12 the cheering. The guests included delegations from the surrounding territory.

FULTON VISITS ALUMNI

Creed W. Fulton '09 of Washington, Director of the Cornell Alumni Corporation for the Southern district, made a two weeks' tour in March visiting alumni centers of his territory. The Southern District includes the states of Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, and Florida.

Fulton had meetings in Raleigh, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, Atlanta, and Charlotte. The meeting in Atlanta was particularly successful.

ANDREW D. WHITE ON ATHLETICS

By A. W. S. '78

In 1875 and '76 the Cornell oarsmen rowed in six oared shells, and the bow oarsman steered; his right foot being held in a stirrup that controlled the rudder. In the season of 1875, John Sayles Waterman, on Cayuga Lake, and later on Saratoga Lake won a reputation for steering courses that would make an arrow envious. At the end of this season, after Cornell had won the freshman and varsity intercollegiate races, after the smoke of the fireworks of the Ithaca celebration had cleared, after the joyful sound of the chimes that President White helped to ring had faded to silence, John Waterman's father and mother felt that it would be better for John to give up rowing; not that it had interfered with his University work, which was always well done, but because, in a small Rhode Island village they could not understand the enthusiasm for rowing, and wondered if it was wholesome for a young man. This discussion came to the ears of President White, who thereupon wrote a letter to father Waterman. This letter has been carefully preserved by Mrs. Jennie Treman Waterman and is now a valued possession of John Waterman's grandson, John Treman Mann, a freshman in the College of Architecture, and a candidate for the Freshman Crew.

The Cornell University,
President's Rooms,
Ithaca, N. Y.
April 5, 1876.

Dear Sir:

It was with exceeding regret that I learned of your objection to your son's taking a position on the University crew at the next contest. Mr. Ostrom informs me that his leaving destroys almost certainly the chances of the Cornell Crew and I trust that I may be pardoned for a natural desire that our young men should again bear off the palm of this contest as they have at the two Intercollegiate contests in scholarship and at the athletic contests last year.

But, deeply as my pride is enlisted in this matter, did I suppose that entering for this contest would injure your son in any way whatever, I would not think of suggesting a reconsideration of your decision in the matter. It is only because I am satisfied that in no respect will it injure him, but in some respects be a benefit to him, that I write this letter. I feel sure that your opposition is based upon some misapprehension of the subject.

I have had, myself, a large experience as a student at two colleges in this country and two Universities abroad, and as a Professor in two of the largest Universities in this country, and I assure you that the dangers to students do not arise in any considerable degree from matters of this sort. On the contrary I regard the stimulus given to healthy, manly exercise by contests of this kind as one of the greatest safeguards against the lounging, easy-going, billiard playing and fast horse driving habits into which so many of the more scholarly men fall.

First, as regards loss of time from study: my own experience at Yale College and our own University as well as what I can learn from your son and others who have engaged in boating shows me that any thoughtful, studious man really loses nothing in the long run, by giving much attention to physical training and even by entering contests of this kind. In my observation what there is of a man in a student is brought out in such contests to such a degree as to more than make up for the apparent small loss of time from attention to books.

Next, as to its effect on health; I have found in my possession, and will gladly put into your hands if you desire it, a very careful work by an English Scientific man, containing careful statistics as to the health of all the students at Oxford and Cambridge in England who have taken part in the famous rowing contests there for forty years. The author of this book took pains in the case of every student in the contesting crews, during all that time, to find either from the student himself, or from his physician, family and friends, all particulars regarding his after health and career in life. So far from the contestants having been injured by rowing, the average health was much better than that of graduates generally. So also has been their average length of life. And what is still more remarkable, those very diseases of the heart and lungs which, it is popularly supposed, are created or aggravated by the exertion of a close contest, were shown to average far below the usual rate as shown by the medical statistics of those Universities and of England in general.

In the next place as to the success in life of those engaged in these contests, it seems to me to have been promoted by the energy and vigor stimulated in them, rather than to have been injured. Among those who have rowed in the successful crews are a surprising proportion of the leading men in English Church and State. Men who have been marked by their healthful energy and vigor in public positions.

As I look back upon my own college life I find confirmation of this. I was graduated in a class of 107 at Yale College, and the boat club to which I belonged was the first that ever sent a challenge for a contest to Harvard College; and as I now look over the names of my classmates who are distinguishing themselves in various directions, I am struck by the fact that the fact that the boating men stand very high. So far from boating having injured them it has certainly done them good. Instead of lounging during their leisure time, they went to the water, took their oars, rowed out into the stream, and thus got what American students so sadly lack, manly physical exercise in the open air. As you are possibly aware, I was by no means robust; on the contrary I have always been delicate in health; but all the fatigues of rowing did me no harm; and so far from injuring my studies, whatever success I had in College was largely due to the fact that I was enabled by this kind of exercise to keep my health up to a proper point. I consider the time laid out in this as time thoroughly well spent. [Continued on page 293]

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS, LONG AWAITED, BECOMES A REALITY

MANY ALUMNI and other well-wishers of Cornell will hail the modest beginning of the Cornell University Press as one of the most important minor achievements of the University.

Since Lane Cooper, two decades ago, first began to explain to the alumni through these columns the urgent need of a university press, a growing body of alumni has come to appreciate its necessity. Cooper's persistence, aided by the work of a score of others, has eventually resulted in a general understanding of the purpose of the proposed organization, and it has consequently come into being.

A publishing department, or university press, makes possible the publication of educational material which no ordinary commercial publisher will undertake for lack of adequate remuneration; works that are of fundamental importance to research and other branches of education but which require but limited editions to satisfy the demand, with consequent limited financial returns.

Cornell has always had an abundance of such material. With no publishing organization qualified to place her own imprint on those works that have been published, she has seen material contributions to educational progress written, edited, printed, and paid for by Cornellians and yet given to the public under the imprint of a sister university or a professional publisher on a basis that yielded literally nothing to Cornell except the satisfaction of work well-done.

With the forming of the Cornell University Press, these irksome conditions disappear. To Cornell will go the credit for those priceless works that she is so well qualified to produce. From a very modest beginning, the Press can conceivably advance to a position of dignity and importance just as fast as gifts, endowment, and profits from operation make the publication of manuscripts possible.

A few thousand dollars given for the purpose will enable the Press to publish just that many thousand dollars worth of books. The eventual income from their sale will afford opportunity for just that much more publication, an endless chain. Thus a gift to a university press does not end with its first spending. Such gifts will undoubtedly come from alumni and friends of higher education. It is a fertile field and a ready made opportunity.

THREE SCHOLARSHIPS CREATED

IN BEQUESTS OF $13,000

Three new scholarships have been created in two recent bequests to Cornell.

The will of Mrs. Louis B. Van Nostrand of New York provides an endowment fund of $10,000 for the establishment of two scholarships in the Law School in memory of her son, John James Van Nostrand '98, who died in 1906. These are to be awarded on the basis of financial need, general character, and scholarship.

The Joseph N. Evans endowment fund is created through a bequest of $3,000 from the estate of Marion Evans of Wellsville. The fund's purpose is to assist "one or more worthy students taking the engineering course in Cornell University under such rules as may be from time to time established by the President of the University."

CORNELL BENEFICIARY

UNDER TEEPLE WILL

The will of John E. Teeple '99 of Montclair, N. J., divides $40,000 among Cornell, the Carnegie Institute at Washington, D. C., and the American Chemical Society.

The estate is valued at $100,000, the residue being left to Mrs. Teeple and three children, one of whom, John H. Teeple '25, is an instructor in physics.

War Memorial Dedication

Ceremony Set for May 23—President Hoover to Honor Cornell Heroes in Speech from the White House

President Hoover will take part in the dedication of the Cornell War Memorial on Saturday, May 23. The president will speak from the White House, and his address will be relayed to Ithaca and broadcast by means of a specially installed public address system to the audience who will assemble in the large court to the west of the Memorial. The president consented to make the address at the request of Frank E. Gannett '98. Bancroft Gherardi '93, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, will arrange for transmitting the speech from the White House to Ithaca.

The dedication committee, of which Robert E. Treman '09 is chairman, decided on May 23 for the ceremonies because this marks the anniversary of a day when a group of Cornellians led by Capt. Edward I. Tinkham '16 had the honor of carrying the first American flag into action in the World War.

Frank H. Hiscock, '75, chairman of the Board of Trustees, will preside at the exercises. The Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, famous chaplain of the Fighting Sixty-ninth, has been invited to give the invocation. The dedication address will be made by President Farrand.

Special invitations will be issued to parents and relatives of the 264 Cornell men to whom the Towers and Cloister stand as a memorial, and invitations will also be sent to the 6251 contributors to the War Memorial Fund. A commemorative volume describing the War Memorial Group and outlining the history of the fund which made it possible has been prepared by Woodford Patterson '95, secretary of the University, and will be available at the dedication.

LAW QUARTERLY ELECTS

Five new editors have been elected to the board of the Cornell Law Quarterly. They are Julius F. Brauner '31, Ithaca; Jack Cohen '32, Brooklyn; Daniel L. Golden '32, New York; Alfred L. Goldstein '32, Union City, N. J., and Byron E. Hardin '32, Port Jervis.

BLOCH WINS PRIZE

Julius M. Bloch '32, Brooklyn, won first prize in the Cornell current events contest, sponsored by The New York Times. Second prize went to Sylvan H. Nathan '33, New York, and third to Max Slansky '32, College Point. Bloch is to compete with other college winners for an intercollegiate prize.

THE WEEK ON THE CAMPUS

AT THIS SEASON the retiring editors of the Sun whisper to their typewriters the year's confessional. The documents are, as a rule, unhappy records of disillusion. With what high hopes had not the writers, a year since, put on their shining armor and taken lance in hand, to bring justice and truth to an ogre-ridden land! And now, when the long year is over, they return a-weary, a-weary, their armor undinted by the ogre's clubs, but rusty with exposure. The slaves would have none of their justice and truth, and the ogres would not answer their editorials.

WELL, it's life, boys, life; you might as well know it now.

SPECIFICALLY, the editors conclude that the Faculty, though peccant, may be granted the Order of Merit, Third Class. The "Ithaca-mindedness" of local officials is inevitable and is indeed advantageous to the University. The fraternity structure is showing ominous cracks about its base. The excess of extra-curricular organization is being curbed by circumstance. The Student Council, the Senior Societies, and dilettantism in the Arts College are roundly buffeted; the honor system compromise, the dormitory development, and the friendly relation of students and teachers received a meed of praise.

SOME of the editor's statements should interest you, if you have been alarmed by pictures of student riots in Madrid and by the chattering of the teeth of Robert H. Lucas, chairman of the Republican National Committee. "Conservatism, which means a distaste for radicalism in almost any form, is perhaps the one universal attribute of the American student. And Cornell, with its liberal roots, can show few exceptions to the rule. A blast of dynamite, and nothing less, will move the gentlemen of leisure who spend their time in these halls."

MORE pregnant words: "There can be no doubt but that the extracurricular organization is too ponderous for a serious-minded university to tolerate for long. The time-consuming competitions, the highly-organized athletics are hurrying toward the jumping-off place. A few have seen the handwriting on the wall and are trying with some success to stop the rush. The situation is not unlike the one which confronts the fraternities."

IT WAS A PLEASURE to read that in the will of that good Cornellian, Dr. John E. Teeple '99, Cornell is to receive a third of $40,000. If the news story tells the whole thing, it would seem that the gift is unrestricted. That is an especial pleasure to those who know how badly we need money for general expenses.

A LITTLE FINANCIAL difficulty in the relations of the University and the city has been harmoniously settled, among Comptroller Charles D. Bostwick '92, Mynderse Van Cleef '74, and Mayor Herman Bergholtz. The University will make the city an annual gift of $7500.

DR. THOMAS H. MORGAN of the California Institute of Technology began the Messenger Series of Lectures on Thursday. His subject is "The Experimental Study of Organic Evolution." This is the second Messenger Series to be held this Spring. One was omitted last year because Professor Roscoe Pound of Harvard was too busy as a member of the Wickersham Commission. That was considered more important, at the time.

THE ART GALLERY is showing an exhibit of the water-colors of Hiram H. Hurd, a young American artist, and the landscapes in oils of Josephine Brady Gridley '08. She is the wife of Sidney Dias Gridley '08 of Larchmont.

THE CLEVELAND SYMPHONY played here on Saturday, with its customary mastery. Mr. Sokoloff charmed, as he has in the past, by his intimate addresses to the audience, and by his air of liking the place and the people and wishing to give them the best that is in his power.

THE SUNDAY RECITAL in Willard Straight Hall was given by Miles S. Schapiro '32, of Wadsworth, Ohio, pianist. He was assisted by Professor Harold D. Smith of the Department of Music.

THE CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC (pardon me, Ithaca College) produced "Iolanthe" exceedingly well, for the first time since 1892, when it was staged by the Ithaca Choral Club, directed by Professor Hollis E. Dann.

LOCAL NOTES: The Westminster Choir School will break ground on June 20 for a new million-dollar group of buildings on Cayuga Heights, way out beyond the Baldridges. *** The Hull Mill at the foot of Ithaca Falls, now the property of the University, is to be torn down for esthetic reasons. *** Walter Bells, supervisor of winter sports and for many years professional at the Ithaca Country Club, is dead at the age of 72. *** George Washington, 35, janitor of the Tau Epsilon Phi house, was drowned when his car plunged into the Inlet.

LES SPORTIFS: Glenn Stafford '29, heavy-weight, won his first professional wrestling match in Syracuse. *** The Martinez brothers, those extraordinary conquistadores from Mexico, almost made Cornell champion of the Inter-collegiate Fencing Association. * * *

Robert G. Couch '34 of Darien, Conn., won the annual men's walking match. He covered 45 miles on his last day; Harold H. Fogg '31 of Schenectady was only a mile behind. * * * The Interfraternity Athletic Association has added golf to its sports.

PERSONALS: Professor Charles V. P. Young '99 of the Department of Physical Education, has left to observe physical education in Europe, especially Northern Europe * * * George R. Pfann '24 is Assistant District Attorney in New York City * * * Robert Morris '25 has joined the other Cornell lawyers in Judge Seabury's New York City investigation * * * Harold Riegelman '14, another New York lawyer, told in the Times of the Argonne gas drive, which he helped to plan * * * Professor Walter F. Willcox of the Department of Economics is the subject of a most laudatory public letter from Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, with reference to Professor Willcox's work for Congressional reapportionment * * * The experiments here of Dr. William C. Geer '02, to prevent the formation of ice on airplane wings, are now crowned with success. A little earlier, and he might have saved the life of Knute Rockne.

"THAT HOOVER should have voiced the national grief at the death of a college football coach is a pretty interesting sidelight on sport, on education, and on government. It is the ultimate trophy on the crowded mantelpiece of Big Football. Rockne, as far as we know, was everything everybody said he was; yet it seems only fair to other upright members of college faculties to recall that that was not the reason he was famous. He was famous because he was a pillar of big-time football; he could look a million-dollar gate in the face, and at the very time of his death he was on his way to fulfill a motion-picture contract and to attend a sales-promotion meeting for Studebaker automobiles. He was in the big money, and that was why Hoover happened to know about him. We see nothing wrong in the President's expressing grief over the loss of a beloved football coach, but from a diplomatic angle it seems to leave out certain other deceased members of college faculties, men who worked with undergraduates in groups other than groups of eleven. In our unofficial capacity, therefore, we take this opportunity to express the nation's grief in the death of all the other upright members of college faculties who died during the past year. We are sorry we don't know their names."

Two Alumni Nominated for Board

Frank E. Gannett and Robert E. Treman Practically Certain of Election as Trustees

Frank E. Gannett '98 and Robert E. Treman '09 are the Alumni Trustee candidates this year. Theirs are the only nominations received for the two vacancies on the Board, and their election is practically assured. The Treasurer of the University has mailed ballots to all holders of baccalaureate and advanced degrees, ballots to be returned to Ithaca not later than June 8. The results will be announced at the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, on June 13.

Mr. Gannett is completing his first term of five years and is seeking re-election. Mr. Treman is a candidate for the vacancy created by the election of Ezra B. Whitman '01 by the Board.

Frank E. Gannett, who is completing his first term as Alumni Trustee of Cornell University, is president of the Gannett Company, which owns the third largest group of daily newspapers in the United States.

He is serving on the Committee on General Administration of the Board of Trustees and the committee in charge of the publication of the Alumni Directory.

Gannett has been active in the work of the Cornellian Council. He became a member-at-large in 1920, and in 1921 was elected to the executive committee. He was vice-president in 1923 and president in 1926.

While a student, he was on the board of the Cornell Daily Sun, was manager of the Cornell Magazine, and campus reporter for the Ithaca Journal. After graduation in 1898 with the degree of A.B., he was editor of the Ithaca Daily News and of the Cornell Alumni News. When President Jacob Gould Schurman was made chairman of the first United States Commission to the Philippines in 1899, Gannett accompanied him as secretary.

Gannett's newspaper experience dates from his student days when he turned to this activity as a means of earning his expenses. He became a newspaper owner in 1906 when he purchased a half interest in the Elmira Gazette. His newspapers are now located in thirteen cities in three states, and include the Brooklyn Eagle, The Hartford Times, and morning and evening papers in Rochester and Albany.

Gannett has served as president of the New York State Publishers' Association, The New York Press Association, and the Associated Dailies of New York. He has been a patron of inventors working for simplification of the processes by which newspapers are produced. The teletypesetter, a device which makes possible the setting of type by electrical impulses was sponsored by him. Gannett is a member of the Finger Lakes State Park Commission, a trustee of Keuka College, and a director of the American Unitarian Association. Wesleyan University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Master of Arts in 1929.

Gannett was married in 1920 to Miss Caroline Werner, daughter of Judge William E. Werner of the New York State Court of Appeals. They have two children, Sarah and Dixon.

Robert E. Treman was born at Ithaca, April 21, 1888, and has lived there ever since. He was graduated from the Ithaca High School in 1905, and from Cornell with the degree of A.B., in 1909.

As an undergraduate his extra-curricular interests, though varied, centered in music and sport. He won the varsity "C" as a low hurdler on the track team and was president of the musical clubs. He served on all the inevitable committees and was a member of Kappa Alpha, Quill and Dagger, Nalanda, Savage Club, Book and Bowl, and other organizations.

After graduation Treman entered the employ of Treman, King and Company and has been with that corporation ever since. He is now its president.

In 1917 he entered the 1st Officers Training Camp at Madison Barracks from which he emerged as a 1st Lieutenant of Infantry. He served successively with the 310th Machine Gun Battalion, the 154th Depot Brigade, and the 368th Infantry (colored). After being promoted to a captaincy, he was placed in command of a battalion of colored troops, and later went to France. He was raised to the rank of major.

In addition to his presidency of Treman King and Company, Treman is director of the Tompkins County National Bank, trustee of the Utica Normal and Industrial School (colored) trustee of the Ithaca Memorial Hospital, and president of the Ithaca Community Chest.

Elected secretary of his class as an undergraduate, he later became president of the Association of Class Secretaries and led the effort to vitalize class reunions which culminated in the record established by his own class at its 15th reunion in 1924. He has been for years a member of the Cornellian Council, and is now on its Executive Committee.

He has recently been made chairman of its committee charged with the task of raising funds for completing the dormitory system. But his most striking service to the University will be remembered in connection with the new War Memorial. Treman was put in charge of the project in 1926. He immediately so organized and stimulated the effort that in less than a year the entire cost had been oversubscribed by 6251 Cornellians, and the towers and cloisters which now perpetuate the names of the University's dead became a permanent reality.

BOAK CALLS ON CLUBS

Over the week-end of March 20 and 21, three Cornell Clubs held meetings with Thomas I. S. Boak '14, chairman of the Committee of the Alumni Corporation on Relations with Preparatory Schools. He met with the Cornell Clubs in Philadelphia, Washington, and Wilmington. At each meeting Boak outlined the work of the preparatory schools committee, with particular reference to the activities in the city concerned.

The luncheon in Philadelphia on Friday noon was at the club house. Washington held a smoker that night at the Racquet Club. The Wilmington Club met for luncheon on Saturday at the Hotel DuPont.

There is a portrait of President Farrand, and the second article is likewise illustrated.

ANDREW D. WHITE ON ATHLETICS

I have told your son that on no account should he think of going counter to your wishes in this matter; but he tells me that he thinks your main objection is to his forming a taste for rowing exercise and for the society into which that will throw him. As to his forming a taste for rowing exercise, I think I may speak all the more freely to you since my advice to you coincides with my course in regard to my own son who is about to enter college. By all means in my power I have encouraged him to take his exercise in boating; partly for the reasons given above, but partly because it seems to me that it is a simple, manly, inexpensive taste which is most likely to draw him away from less worthy ways of spending leisure time. I shall be heartily glad if he develops no worse hobby, and gets into no worse company than his boating will afford him.

There is also another consideration which, though it may not be so easily seen is none the less real. I allude to the fact that such training and thoroughness and exercise of skill as is required in preparing for one of these contests is a discipline of great value to any young man. It teaches him the necessity of self-denial, self-restraint, regular exercise, regular habits; it shows him more clearly than all the lectures and sermons in the world, the fact that temperance, self-control and careful management of one's self, secure health, strength and vigor.

In closing permit me to repeat that not to win any contests would I endanger the physical, or moral or intellectual welfare of any student of all the 500 entrusted to us. But it seems to me, in this case, that a great service can be rendered to the University without harm to your son; but on the contrary with good results to him and I sincerely hope that you will reconsider your decision. To be again successful in bringing his boat in first will give your son a legitimate place among the thoughtful, earnest athletic young men of the country. With him there is no doubt that our young University will be again successful; without him it is more than doubtful.

I have labored hard during the best years of my life to build up this institution, making some sacrifices and relinquishing much that most men care for. As you are aware, we have been subjected to attacks on account of what we consider necessary reforms in education, and valuable steps in educational progress. Every success, whether in contests of mind and muscle, forces upon the attention of the American people the fact that our system produces men sound morally, intellectually, and physically, and is the only adequate reward which some of us, who have struggled on here to accomplish this result, will ever receive, I sincerely hope that you will reconsider your decision. I will keep an eye upon your son and will do everything in my power to have his career prove that these contests have not injured him.

I remain very respectfully and truly yours,
Andrew D. White.

Dictated.
Mr. W. W. Waterman, Esq.

This appeal must have been effective, for in the following intercollegiate race on Saratoga Lake, John Waterman steered the Cornell Varsity shell to a victorious finish.

King Solomon's shirts were like his wives, no two alike.

By the time he'd taken his fifty-ninth wife he knew that a shirt that was too short might make you feel taller but never wiser.

From that time on he sent his wives out into the highways and the byways to all the sales at the bazaars in search of a real shirt, but it was the same old story—he always got the same old shirts—no two alike.

A modern wife finds it a lot easier ordering "three more" from Hibby than spending precious afternoons shopping for her husband.

Besides having more time to shop for herself, the money she saves on "gas" alone, that has to come out of the budget, will finance an afternoon of Bridge anytime.

And to have a proper fitting, pre-shrunk shirt on that solemn man of hers,—well,—that's a break she never thought she'd get,

Hibby

Roll Call Under Way

New York Dinner Launches Nationwide Effort of Cornellian Council—Appeal Through Class Representatives

The second annual roll call of the Cornellian Council was launched at a dinner in New York March 30. President Farrand, the principal speaker and guest of honor, told the gathering of class representatives of the Council that the generous support given by alumni has kept Cornell in the proud position she now holds among the outstanding universities of America.

Dr. Farrand said one of the brightest and most reassuring aspects of the whole Cornell picture is the loyalty, affection, and active interest of the alumni.

Jervis Langdon '97, president of the Council, pointed to the fact that in a year of unfavorable business conditions Cornell had built up its alumni fund, both in number of contributors and in the amount subscribed, while other universities had fallen behind. He said the championship Cornell won last year, in having the largest number of contributors to an alumni fund, was one of the finest championships the University has ever won.

The roll call appeal this year will be made through letters signed personally by the class representatives on the Council to their respective classmates.

Harold Flack '12, executive secretary, traced the history of the development of the alumni fund in this country and related the growth of the Council since its organization in 1908.

Maxwell M. Upson '99 endorsed the roll call and appealed for enthusiasm on the part of the workers in the campaign.

Two of the founders of the Cornellian Council, Robert J. Eidlitz '85 and Merritt E. Haviland '77, were present at this dinner, and three members of the Board of Trustees, in addition to President Farrand, Bancroft Gherardi '93, Edwin T. Turner '83, and Upson.

The following also attended: Frederic J. Whiton '79; Hudson P. Rose '84; Frank O. Affeld, jr., '97; William F. Atkinson '95; Malcolm C. Rorty '96; Maxwell M. Upson '99; Christopher S. Wilson '00; Beatrice Gilson Slocombe '04; Julia M. Emery '04; Neal D. Becker '05; Elsie Rand Tucker '07; Winthrop Taylor '07; Christine M. Stivers '11; Edward L. Bernays '12; Walter P. ## BOOKS

HIGHWAYS TO CULTURE

The Road to Culture. By Charles Gray Shaw '94, Professor of Philosophy, New York University. Decorations by Irving Pulitzer. New York. Funk & Wagnalls Company. 1931. 19.4 cm., pp. xiv, 300. Price, $2.

Professor Shaw has made a welcome contribution to our knowledge of what culture is and how it is to be attained.

It must be admitted that a good many have scoffed at culture, as a thing to be smiled at, a superficial thing at best. Most of us are familiar with people who are anxious to be thought of as cultured, who have opinions about Shelley and Ibsen and the latest success of Deems Taylor without really knowing definitely that Shelley did not write Hedda Gabbler and Ibsen was not a Prometheus devotee. Perhaps they would like to know the truth about these matters, but they have not the time or inclination to work very hard at it.

Then there are the rough-necks, people who scorn this soft patter about the latest opera, who know what they like and are not concerned to like anything better. Can anything be done for them?

The answer is, only with their consent, as it were. Nobody can be forced to take on culture any more than you can force a horse to drink. If a man is satisfied with himself, that settles it; he must be allowed to die in his sins. But if he has or can be imbued with a desire for something better, then there is hope.

And what is this culture which we are to strive for? It is not a car to drive or a house to own? It is a state of mind. It is the desire to possess the best in the realm of mind and spirit; and this desire must be disinterested; there must be no thought of wordly gain.

Professor Shaw describes the method of attaining culture through familiarity with art and poetry; through entering into sympathetic appreciation and understanding of the greatest paintings and works of poetic imagination. This will always involve a certain amount of evaluation and some exercise of the faculty of judgment. But this must be sympathetic and fair. In this matter we think Professor Shaw is a little hard on Shakespeare. When he objects to Macbeth's saying that "this my hand will rather The multitudinous seas incarnadine, Making the green ones red" (p. 225), he must remember that here is a poet speaking to an audience that liked poetry, and that it is scarcely fitting for the twentieth century to find fault with this mode of speech. It would be just as fitting to censure Shakespeare for his style of breeches or stockings or shoes.

He who has attained to a sympathetic understanding and appreciation of the work of a master in any field of artistic effort, a Phidias, an Emerson, a Whistler, a Wrenn, a Shakespeare, a Goethe, has attained to a measure of culture. But he must never be content to stop there. Alexander sighed for more worlds to conquer; being a normal human being, with a sound philosophy of life (though with a bad line), what else could he do?

LOCAL TELEPHONE SERVICE ONCE COST

$ 240 A YEAR

IN 1879, the New York telephone directory was a card listing 252 names. There were no telephone numbers, nor any need for them. When you telephoned, you gave the operator the name of the person you wanted. Service was slow, inadequate and limited principally to people of wealth. The cost of a single telephone was as high as $240 a year.

Today, you can talk to any one of hundreds of thousands of telephone users for a fraction of what it then cost for connection with less than three hundred. Every new installation increases the scope and value of the telephones in your home or office.

Twenty-four hours of every day, the telephone stands ready to serve you in the ordinary affairs of life and in emergencies. In the dead of night, it will summon a physician to the bedside of a sick child. Men transact a great part of their business over it. Women use it constantly to save steps and time in social and household duties. In an increasing number of ways, it helps to make this a united, more active, more efficient nation.

Simply by lifting the receiver you become part of a nation-wide communication system that uses 80,000,000 miles of wire, and represents an investment of more than $4,000,000,000. Yet the cost of local service is only a few cents a day.

Subscribers who look back over the month and consider what the telephone has meant to them in convenience, security and achievement are quick to appreciate its indispensable value and reasonable price.

Frequently you hear it said—"The telephone gives you a lot for your money."
