CLUBS INFORM PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

University Representatives Assist Schools Programs

During late March and early April, Cornell Clubs throughout the East devoted their attention to informing students in their local schools about the advantages of attending Cornell. Professor John C. Adams '26, English, arranged visits of himself and other representatives from the Campus to aid the Club secondary school programs.

Jersey, Long Island Clubs Entertain

Annual schoolboy party of the Cornell Club of Essex County, N. J., was March 26 at Newark Academy, with 100 persons attending. Clyde Mayer '21, president of the Club, and J. Paul Leinroth '12, chairman of the secondary schools committee, introduced Professor Adams, Dr. Eugene F. Bradford, Director of Admissions, Director William L. Malcolm, PhD '37, Civil Engineering, and Professor Bristow Adams, Agriculture Publications, who spoke briefly about Cornell, interviewed boys, and answered their questions. Motion pictures of the Campus were shown and refreshments were served.

March 27, Professor John Adams, Dr. Bradford, and Director Malcolm spoke at a smoker of the Cornell Club of Monmouth County, N. J., at the Molly Pitcher Hotel in Red Bank. Twenty-four Cornellians and four guests from Red Bank high schools attended, with President J. Daniel Tuller '09 presiding. Chairman of the Club's secondary schools committee this year is Harry W. Crawford '29.

Thelma L. Brummett, Counselor of Students, and Professor Bristow Adams were guests at a tea for high school girls given by the Cornell Women's Club of Northern New Jersey, March 27 at Fulton Towers, East Orange. Alice E. M. Mournval '23 was hostess to the twenty-three girls, eighteen alumnae and ten other guests, and the program was arranged by Mrs. Martin A. Goerges (Frankie Culpepper) '30 and Mrs. Louis A. Winkelman (Helen Kinney) '22, with the Club president, Mrs. A. Mortimer Erskine (Mabel Baldwin) '17, presiding. Besides the Faculty speakers, Evelyn Van Tyne '42 of North Arlington, Margaret E. Husson '45 of Westfield, and Jean C. Rixmann '45 of Millburn described Campus life, and all answered questions, along with Mrs. Bernard A. Savage (Carmen Schneider) '27 of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs.

About ATHLETICS

WRESTLERS COMPETE

Wrestling Captain-elect Eric J. Miller, Jr. '44 of Ithaca won second place in the 145-pound class in the National AAU championship tournament in New York City, April 9 and 10. Miller lost in the finals to Maxwell of Michigan State.

Wilford C. LaRock '45 of Ithaca also competed in the 145-pound class but was eliminated in the second round. His brother, James LaRock, lost to Roberts of the 23rd Street YMCA, New York City, in the finals of the 155-pound class.

Miller and the LaRocks represented the Ithaca YMCA.

TEAMS READY

All of Cornell's spring sports teams will be in action by May 1. The baseball team was to open its Eastern Intercollegiate League season against Columbia in New York City this Tuesday and the lacrosse team was scheduled to meet the US Military Academy at West Point this Wednesday. The track team will compete in the Penn Relays Friday and Saturday.

All teams have a few seasoned performers still available. In track they are Captain Charles E. Shaw, Jr. '43 of Scarsdale, sprinter; Paul M. Kelsey '43 of Ithaca and John F. Kandl '44 of New York City, distance runners; Roger D. Booze '45 of Cincinnati, high jumper and shot putter; Richard M. Junge '43 of Ridgewood, N. J., pole vaulter; and Clark R. Sanford '44 of Potsdam, hammer thrower.

A dual meet with Syracuse on Schoellkopf Field May 1 has been added to the track schedule. Colgate, invited, will not be able to compete because of early commencement.

The crews have been practicing outdoors for several weeks despite severe weather. Latest Varsity boating is:

Bow, Ward C. Campbell '45 of New York City; 2, William N. Kruse '43 of Davenport, Iowa; 3, Theodore J. Beyer '44 of White Plains; 4, John L. Phelps '45 of Oak Park, Ill.; 5, Carl D. Doerschuk '44 of Pittsburgh, Pa.; 5, Furman South III '43 of Pittsburgh, Pa.; 6, Roger A. Grant '45 of Chaumont; 7, Douglas C. Archibald '45 of White Plains; stroke, Richard Champagne '46 of Watertown, Mass.; coxswain, Irwin W. Lane '44 of Brooklyn.

URGES GLOBAL CORRECTIONS

A new basis for measuring certain athletic performances is urged by Professor Paul Kirkpatrick, acting head of the physics department at Stanford University who held the Susan Phelps Gage Fellowship in Physics at Cornell in 1929-30.

Kirkpatrick contends that present measurement systems ignore the influence of the earth's rotation and the variation in gravity on the discus, shot, hammer, and other athletic projectiles.

Writing in Science, Kirkpatrick cited these examples:

"A shot putter from the Finnish coast who goes to Rome or Hong Kong for competition can be reasonably certain that a heave which would have yielded fifty feet at home will be good for an extra inch in the more southerly latitudes.

"Discus and hammer throwers would do proportionately better, and the javelin thrower could expect to top his more northerly marks by a foot or more.

"By going on to the equator, northern athletes could expect to add still more distance to their marks another inch for the shot putter, and so on.

"A well-thrown hammer should go four and one-half inches farther in Tokyo than in Helsinki, and seven to eight inches farther in Java than in Finland.

"A broad jump, the jumper this time being the projectile, should be good for three-eighths of an inch more in Texas than in Massachusetts."

ODDS AND ENDS

Princeton, defending champion, and Dartmouth broke even in the season's opener for the five-team Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League at Princeton. Princeton won the first game, 3-0; Dartmouth the second, 4-3. The other teams are Cornell, Columbia, and Pennsylvania.

Walter J. Matuszczak '41, assistant football and basketball coach and first lieutenant in the Veterinary Corps, USA, was ordered to report last week at the New York Port of Embarkation for further orders.

A regatta for the 150-pound crew with Harvard and MIT at Cambridge has been tentatively scheduled for May 8. The crew will meet Pennsylvania here May 15.

CHAMPION of the University Bowling League this year is Gerald W. Ehrhart '38, instructor in Engineering. His gross score of 724 topped the 708 of Walter J. Matuszczak '41 of the Veterinary College and coaching staff.

BONDED REUNIONS BOOM Classes Adopt Plan

"Bonded Reunions" in which Series F War Bonds given to the University will replace the usual Class gatherings in Ithaca this year, are being enthusiastically supported by Cornellians of many Classes. To Monday noon, the Alumni Office had received forty-two Reunion Bonds from members of eighteen Classes, and they are coming in at the rate of five or six a day. The Fifty-year Reunion Class of '93 leads so far, with seven War Bonds sent to Cornell. Bonds have also been given by members of the Classes of '77, '78, '81, '82, '84, '85, '91, '04, '05, '07, '09, '13, '15, '20, '27, '28, '37, and '38. Four bonds were sent by one Cornellian who has four sons in military service.

Secretaries of both the Classes that would normally hold Reunions in Ithaca this year and of many other Classes are writing letters urging their Classmates to participate in Bonded Reunions.

The idea of Bonded Reunions was adopted by the Cornell Association of Class Secretaries when it was proposed by the Reunion committee of which Dr. Lyman R. Fisher '28 is chairman has likewise attracted the interest of other colleges and universities. Joseph E. Bell, alumni secretary of Lafayette College, has written that Lafayette will have its own Bonded Reunions, and inquiries about details of the plan have been received from Princeton and Smith College.

It is suggested that all Cornellians purchase at least one $25 Series F War Savings Bond in the name of "Cornell University—A Corporation," and send the bonds to the Alumni Fund for credit to their Class quotas. The $25 Series F Bonds are purchasable at any bank or postoffice at $18.50, and their purchase price is deductible as a contribution in income tax returns. President Day has pointed to the University's special need of financial support from alumni in this war year, and the Trustees have authorized the Treasurer to exchange uninvested funds of the University for Series F bonds given by alumni, the bonds to be held as investments until maturity and their cash equivalent thus becoming available to meet current needs.

BANGS '21 IN PHILADELPHIA

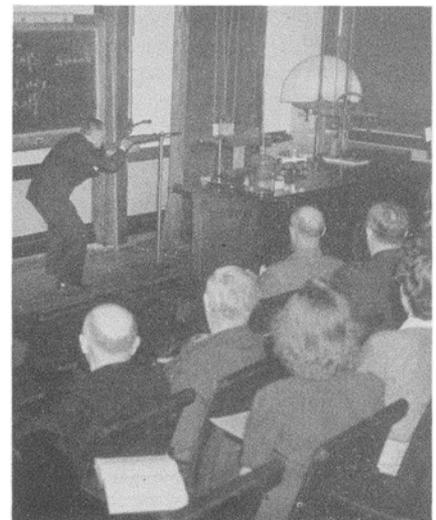

Cornell Club of Philadelphia, Pa., met with the regional group of the Cornell Society of Engineers for dinner March 12 at the Engineers' Club. Ezra H. Day '19, chairman of the Engineers group, introduced George N. Brown '08, president of the Society of Engineers, who had come from New York City. Professors John R. Bangs, Jr. '21, Administrative Engineering, spoke on "Imagineering," describing his recent visits to war plants and airplane factories over the country and citing the new methods they have developed.

The Engineers group elected as its new officers Gordon J. Mertz '20, chairman; Robert A. Hentz '11, vice-chairman; Edwin H. Brown '22, secretary-treasurer.

Cornell Club of Philadelphia at its annual meeting March 30 elected Walter W. Buckley '25, president, succeeding Donald E. Maclay '17. Donald P. Beardsley '13 is vice-president; Tinius Olsen II '35, secretary; James B. Harper '20, treasurer; Karl G. Krech '19, athletic representative. Maclay was elected a director, as were Arthur M. Harrington '05, Creed W. Fulton '09, Chandler Burpee '17, Ezra H. Day '19, John S. Fair, Jr. '27, and John F. Macomber '29.

THE FACULTY STUDIES

Forty-eight members of the Faculty are taking evening refresher courses in Mathematics and Physics to fill the need for instructors in the various special war programs of the University. On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings throughout this term, men and women of assorted ages, from Law, Arts and Sciences, Engineering, and Agriculture, are spending nine and a half hours a week in this voluntary instruction, and some of them are already teaching in the courses for Curtiss-Wright engineering "cadettes." The rest will help in the Army and Navy training programs when they are established. At last report, forty-two persons from other departments were enrolled in the Mathematics course given for an hour three evenings a week by Professors Walter B. Carver and Ralph P. Agnew, PhD '30. Twenty-four are studying Physics in two one-hour classes and a two-hour laboratory period a week, with Professors R. Clifton Gibbs '06 and Guy E. Grantham, PhD '20. Eighteen are taking both courses.

Professor Guy E. Grantham, PhD '20, gives a lecture-demonstration on velocity of projectiles before his class of Faculty members taking refresher courses to enable them to help in the University's special war instruction. Leviton '44

NOW IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

Our favorite bedside stories about early days in Cascadilla Place were those which dealt with the Roehrigs and their numerous offspring.

Professor Frederick Louis Otto Roehrig was a Russian and a specialist in the Oriental languages. He taught French, and also offered courses in "Mantchoos, Turkish, the Tartar languages, and Turanian philology." He talked English with a strong Russian accent (Mother imitated him convincingly enough), and once when all Cascadilla turned out to hear him lecture on "The Chinese Language," he lectured for a full hour in the Chinese language!

Mrs. Roehrig was an English woman from Yorkshire. When she was in an emotional state—which was frequently—she talked pure Yorkshire, which was one of the few languages Professor Roehrig wasn't good at. He'd reply in Turanian, or something, which made their conjugal exchanges noteworthy.

Once, Mrs. Roehrig complained that the children were getting her down. The older boys were out of hand because of paternal neglect and, if he were half a man, he'd administer corporal chastisement right now! Professor Roehrig admitted his fault and promised to do better. He went out and returned ten minutes later, well winded, to report progress. He said he'd punished the oldest boy and would go after the next one as soon as he'd recovered his breath. That biggest one had put up a terrific battle, he reported, and only after a prolonged struggle had he been able finally to beat the stuffings out of him.

Mrs. Roehrig then thanked her spouse, but she suggested that the next time she'd better go along, because the game little battler the Professor had just assaulted, and who was then under their window trying to throw bricks through it (cursing the while in the manner of an enraged hackman), wasn't a Roehrig at all, but the only child of a distinguished colleague!

Life in Cascadilla must have been mildly grotesque at times, with babies, students, youthful professors, European scholars, Louis Bement, and lectures in Chinese all going on under one tin roof. No wonder President White, then a semi-invalid still in his thirties, occupied an apartment in Cascadilla Place but continued to keep his legal residence in Syracuse until he could make sure this Cornell venture was going to prove feasible.

But all the inmates had a good time, and Mother must have had a swell time. Every few weeks, in the larger lecture room, they'd have private theatricals promoted by Teefy Crane, who, Mother said, was an amateur actor of uncommon talent. Teefy always played the lead and Mother frequently played opposite him. At that time, the future Dean had a full head of hair and handle-bar mustaches.

But the chief entertainment was supplied by the lectures which came along almost every night; downtown in the auditorium of the public library at the corner of Tioga and Seneca. All Ithaca turned out in its best clothes, the lumber, canal-boat, and telegraph noblesse sitting cheek-by-jowl with the Rhiners in a common baptism of breath-taking culture (students and professors clambered down from Cascadilla), to hear Goldwin Smith and James Russell Lowell, Bayard Taylor, George William Curtis, and a score more of equal prestige, whose presence here made the astonishing new University at Ithaca front page news across the continent. For the insiders, however, the best part of the show came—according to Mother—afterwards when all climbed back up East Hill to hear Grandfather repeat the lecture they had just heard for the benefit of President White, who was confined to his bed a good part of the time in those early winters.

Grandfather was a much older man than most of the young sprigs who then composed the resident Faculty. Moreover, John Stanton Gould was a Quaker possessed of a dignity that sometimes approached austerity. That, together with his customary use of the plain language (but not in his lectures), made folks stand in considerable awe of him. Nevertheless, Grandfather was peculiarly gifted as a mimic and had a fine sense of comedy. His astonishing memory permitted him to give the substance of a lecture, and also to repeat long passages from it word for word. Not only that, but he was the lecturer, imitating every tone, gesture, and mannerism with singular fidelity and with but the faintest suggestion of subtle burlesque.

We are not relying wholly on Mother as our authority for these statements about Grandfather. When your reporter came to college thirty years afterwards and made himself known to Dean Crane and Dr. Wilder, both men instantly recalled Grandfather's imitations of Goldwin Smith and James Anthony Froude—between spasms of robust belly laughs.

All witnesses agreed that Grandfather's most effective number was his Froude. Froude not only talked Oxford English, but he talked the peculiar Oriel variant of the recognized Oxford dialect. Moreover, in 1872 when he arrived at Ithaca to give his course of lectures on the History of English Rule in Ireland, James Anthony Froude was suffering from an acute attack of the gout. This

The annual meeting of the Cornell Club of New York will be held on Thursday, April 29. Officers for the coming year will be elected. A smoker will follow. Members and their guests are invited to attend.

April has been a lively month at the Club. On the eighth, fifty guests attended a meeting and reception of the Nurses Aid Unit, American Red Cross, of the New York Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled. The affair was under the direction of Mrs. J. Bradley Delehanty, wife of Brad Delehanty '10.

On April 9, officers of the American Pulpwood Association were guests at a dinner party. Horace E. Brinckerhoff '06 is executive secretary of the Association.

On the same evening, Harold Irish '16 gave a dinner for officials of the Western Electric Co.

On April 15, the bridge players turned out in force for the Cornell Bridge Night and on the same evening Walter Kuhn '12 gave a dinner for six in honor of Mr. H. C. Sheehy.

On the same evening, thirty-five members of the Class of 1915 held a Reunion at the Club.

Mrs. George R. Pfann '27 lunched at the Club one day recently with George R., Jr. and gave Charlie Blair the latest tidings from Captain Pfann, who is overseas.

Members of the Club read with interest, satisfaction, pride and glee a vivid account in The New Yorker of an air battle in Tunisia in which an American pilot downed a Messerschmitt. The interest, pride, etc. derived from the fact that the American pilot who downed the Nazis was Walter Scholl '41.

Spring cleaning came early to the sleeping quarters of the Club. A horde of painters moved in and for a space of days it was hardly possible to move through the halls without getting kalsomined accidentally. But the quarters are bright and shining as a result, and the roomers now feel like Craig's Wife.

C. H. Davidson '11 gave a dinner for several guests on April 17.

MICHIGAN BANQUET

Annual banquet of the Cornell Club of Michigan, March 1 at the University Club in Detroit, was addressed by Colonel A. M. Krech, commanding officer of Internal Security District 1, Sixth Service Command. His subject was "Army Organization and Protective Measures in the State of Michigan." Toastmaster was Harold M. Hastings '10, introduced by Club President A. Wade Dow, Jr.

'20, and Linton Hart '14 led the singing of Cornell songs. Henry E. Epley '03 presented a Club scroll to Heatley Green '01 memorializing his outstanding qualities as a Cornellian and citizen, and read an original poem to celebrate the return of John S. Wardwell '16 from a hospital stay.

OFFER SUMMER COURSES

Preliminary Announcement of the University's six-week Summer Session, June 28 to August 6, is now published and may be obtained from the Director of the Summer Session. It lists the courses to be offered and contains information about academic credit, fees, living accommodations, and an application blank for admission.

The College of Engineering and all other Colleges except Agriculture and Veterinary will also offer a full program of sixteen weeks' instruction in a summer term to begin on or about June 28. New students will be admitted in June for regular Freshman work in the undergraduate Colleges and for first-year work in Law and the Graduate School. By last week, Dr. Eugene F. Bradford, University Director of Admissions, had received 485 applications for June entrance to the College of Engineering alone, and 123 applications for the Engineering term beginning next fall.

Complete information about entrance in June and courses available may be had from the Director of Admissions, Morrill Hall, Ithaca. Adequate accommodations will be offered for both men and women students, and it is expected that the number of women here next year may be somewhat greater than the present number.

UNIVERSITY AIDS RECONSTRUCTION

To Train Administrators, Restore Food to Greece

Two more programs of Army training at the University were projected last week. President Day announced that Cornell will be one of several universities at which 2500 or more Army men will be trained under the Office of the Provost Marshal General for administrative work in occupied territories. The WMC joint committee also announced in Washington that Cornell had been approved for training of Army men in personnel psychology. No contracts for any Army or Navy training programs have yet been signed with the University.

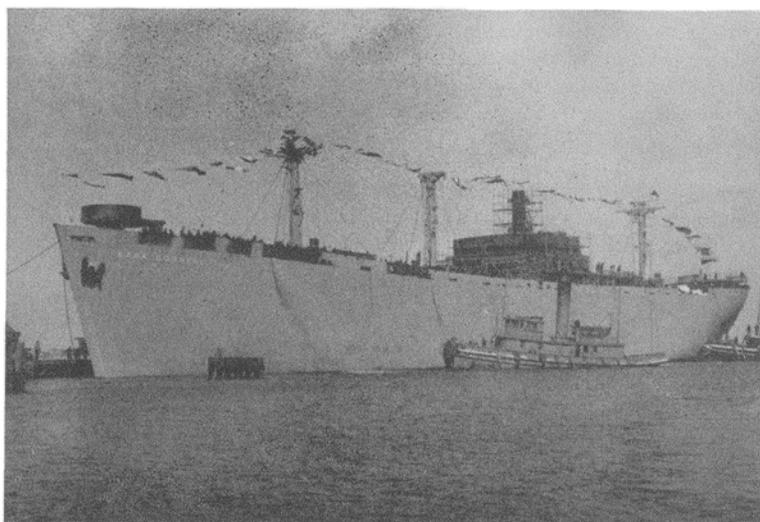

The program with the Provost Marshal General has been formulated in cooperation with the selected colleges, each to be responsible for training men to work in a specific country or area. Cornell's area will be Central Europe and Italy, instruction to be given mostly by members of the Faculty with experts from the Army and natives of these countries called in for consultations and interviews. Professor Cornelis W. deKiewiet, History and Director of the recently announced Cornell Institute of Foreign Service, will be in charge of instruction.

It is expected that a first group of seventy-five enlisted men will be detailed here by the Army for the nine-month course, to live in assigned dormitories under command of Colonel Edwin R. Van Deusen, Commandant of the ROTC. This group may be increased to 200 or more. In forty-eight hours a week of classes and study periods, they will be taught history and "area knowledge" embracing geography, economics, religion, social and political customs; intensive study of German, Italian, and probably Czech languages; and political science and law enforcement systems of Central Europe and Italy. From this course, students will go to Fort Custer, Mich., for further training in Army administrative methods. In the occupied countries, they will serve as assistants to senior officers now training at Charlottesville, Va.

Apart from the Army program, the Near East Foundation has made a grant of $2500 to the University for research into methods of restoring the depleted food resources of Greece after the war. Under direction of Professor Frank B. Morrison, Animal Husbandry, Charalambos S. Stephanides '32, newly-appointed research fellow, will consult with advisers here and work at farms and experiment stations in the Southwest on feeding and livestock problems. Born in Turkey of Greek ancestry, Stephanides was in the group of one and a half million persons who went to Greece in an exchange of populations in 1922-23. After receiving the BS here, he was an agricultural agent in Greece for eight years, returning to the Graduate School and receiving the MS in 1941.

The University's reconstruction program for Greece has the approval of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations, US Department of Agriculture, and of Herbert H. Lehman, Federal Director of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation, who has asked that plans be submitted as soon as possible. It will include research into feeding both humans and livestock, study of crops, attention to the pressing need of animals for work, milk, and meat, and a livestock improvement program for different sections of Greece involving milk goats, dairy cattle, poultry, sheep, hogs, rabbits, and draft animals.

FOUNDER'S GREAT-GRANDSON'S WIFE SPONSORS NEW LIBERTY SHIP, SS EZRA CORNELL

A 10,000-ton freighter named for the Founder of Cornell University was launched from the ways of the South Portland, Me., Shipbuilding Corp. March 7. She is pictured above at her slip after the launching. At left are Professor William Bouck Cornell '07, chairman of the department of management and industrial relations at New York University; Mrs. Cornell, the ship's sponsor; and Chester L. Churchill, president of the shipbuilding corporation. Three ships were launched that day, the others the SS Timothy Dwight sponsored by Mrs. Sumner Sewell, wife of Maine's Governor, and the SS Amasa Walker sponsored by Mrs. Karl T. Compton, wife of the president of MIT. At a dinner after the launching, Professor Cornell told of the life of his Founder great-grandfather.

Many advisers of the Agriculture Faculty have done special work in foreign countries. Professor Morrison surveyed the livestock industry of the Philippines in 1937. Merrill N. Knapp '35, Extension, was agricultural specialist in Albania for three years. Professor Lincoln D. Kelsey, Extension, was with the Near East Foundation in Turkish rehabilitation after the last war. Professor Glenn W. Salisbury, PhD '34, specialist in animal breeding and artificial insemination for livestock improvement, has studied in Europe. Professor Elmer S. Savage, PhD '09, Animal Husbandry, surveyed dairy production in 1931 in several European countries and North Africa, and Professor Edwin S. Harrison, PhD '31, made similar surveys in Costa Rica. Professor Sydney A. Asdell, specialist on milk goats, studied in England and taught in New Zealand. Professor Leland E. Weaver '18, Poultry Husbandry, has surveyed the industry in Hawaii. Professor Richard Bradfield, Agronomy, recently reported on agriculture in Mexico for the Rockefeller Foundation. Professor Harry H. Love, PhD '09, Plant Breeding, advised the National Government of China on crop improvement from 1931-34. Professor Leonard A. Maynard, PhD '15, director of the School of Nutrition, made a study of human nutrition in China for the Rockefeller Foundation in 1934. These and many other specialists of the Faculty will advise in the new program.

WILLIAM PRIMROSE, VIOLIST

William Primrose, violist, closed the University concert series in Bailey Hall April 13 with a varied program of classic and modern selections which included Pianelli, Arthur Benjamin, Schubert, Brahms, Bach, and Spanish composers, as well as the "Soliloquy and Dance" by Roy Harris, University Composer-in-Residence, with Mrs. Harris at the piano. The artist has appeared in Ithaca as a member of the London String Quartet, and this first solo appearance here brought him praise as an interesting and accomplished "musical personality."

forced him to reside at the Clinton House instead of in Cascadilla Place, and also to lecture sitting down with the afflicted member wrapped in swaddling clothes and pillowed on a Clinton House ottoman.

By reason of these things, Grandfather's repetition of Froude's lecture in Andrew D's spacious bedroom was naturally given in the Oriol College variant of the Oxford dialect with Grandfather's foot swathed in a quilt from the Presidential couch and propped high on the Presidential writing desk. The lecture was punctuated at frequent intervals by screams of gout-pains from the afflicted lecturer. Teefy Crane told your reporter the first time we ever met, that the act wowed 'em and laid 'em on the floor in rows!

Goldwin Smith was commonly accepted as Exhibit A in the galaxy of stars that glistened in Cascadilla Place. His younger colleagues deferred to him and walked delicately in his presence. But not after the night Grandfather did Froude and they'd seen the late Regius

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

SPRING DAY Carnival this year will be a country fair, May 1, on Alumni Field after the baseball games with Princeton and the track meet with Syracuse. It will be run by a committee of the Junior Class appointed by the Student Council and headed by Robert W. Ballard '44 of Trenton, N.J. There will be no parade and no University holiday.

HOTEL EZRA CORNELL annual banquet May 1 will be in the auditorium of Martha Van Rennselaer Hall, instead of in Willard Straight Memorial Room as formerly. Dinner speaker is F. Harold Van Orman, president of the American Hotel Association, and a dance will follow at Willard Straight. James H. Barrett '43 of Old Forge is managing director of Hotel Ezra Cornell this year. Profits will go to purchase War Bonds.

PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS for purchase of War Savings Bonds now amount to more than $12,000 a month for more than 1,000 University employees, Treasurer George F. Rogalsky '07 announces. Through the efforts of a Faculty committee headed by Professor William M. Sale, English, 150 purchasers were added to the roster in a recent week.

CHIMES RECITAL arranged by the Music Department and the music committee of Willard Straight Hall from 4:30 to 6 April 14 coincided with the regular monthly meeting of the University Faculty. Protests from Boardman Hall across the way were of no avail, and students who had gone to the Clock Tower to see Chimemistress Phyllis F. Dittman '43 and Chimemaster Robert H. Frankenfild '45 play were not disappointed.

DINGHY SAILORS from the Cornell Corinthian Yacht Club tied with the US Naval Academy for fifth place in the Eastern Intercollegiate championship regatta off the US Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., April 17 and 18. The Coast Guard led the nine colleges entered. One Cornell boat was skippered by Robert I. Ward '44 of East Orange, N.J., with Taylor H. Keller '44 of Rochester as crew; skipper of the other was Ralph Bolgiano, Jr. '44 of Towson, Md., with Joseph C. O'Dea '44 of Gardiner as crew.

VISITOR to the Campus for several days last week was Hudson P. Rose '84. With Professor Charles L. Durham '99, Latin, Emeritus, he visited the Molly Merrill Rose memorial rooms in the tower of Myron Taylor Hall which he has fitted out as a University guest suite from the furnishings of his and the late Mrs. Rose's home at 940 Park Avenue, New York City. At tea at the President's House, Mr. Rose recalled that he had Weaver '45.

GUILFORD PRIZE of $120 for English prose composition has been divided this year between John H. Detmold '43 of Long Island City and Aaron Zucker '44 of Brooklyn. Both are students in Arts and Sciences. Detmold's essay is a literary criticism of A. E. Housman; last spring he won the Barnes Shakespeare Prize. Zucker's entry, "In the Hills of Idaho," is an autobiographical essay.

MESSINGER LECTURES by Professor Carl Becker, University Historian, on "The Founding of Cornell University" opened April 19 with "Life and Learning in the United States." Second lecture April 21 was on "The Morrill Land-grant College Act." Four more are to be given on Mondays and Wednesdays.

VICTORY BOOK campaign on the Campus has brought donation of more than $1600 in dividend slips from The Co-Op and Triangle Bookstore. Committee headed by Maxine L. Katz '45 of Manchester, N.H., has thus been able to purchase and send $160 worth of new books for men in the armed forces.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL will be headed next year by Edward D. Eddy '44 of Ithaca. Joseph J. Driscoll '44 of Ithaca is vice-president and Peter W. Stone '45 of Staten Island is secretary-treasurer.

Van Loon is lonely, he says, few persons understanding his spoken words because of his "five-track mind" which makes him sound as if "five men were talking at once about five unrelated subjects." Boyle says that Van Loon regards himself as "a cultural émigré from Europe's storied past, unaccountably stranded in an American present but determined to make the best of it." He likes to tell his friends that while lecturing on Modern European History at Cornell in 1915-16, "No one liked me but the students." THE OFFICE OF DEFENSE TRANSPORTATION
JOSEPH B. EASTMAN, Director

Mr. Walter C. Heasley, Jr.
Acting Alumni Secretary
Alumni House
3 East Avenue
Ithaca, New York

Dear Mr. Heasley:

My attention has been called to the action taken by the Cornell 1943 Alumni Reunion Committee in abandoning class reunions this year. I understand that such a policy was adopted out of recognition of the need to conserve on transportation, and that the funds normally consumed in connection with class reunions are to be recommended for the purchase of war bonds.

I wish to take this opportunity to commend this spirit of leadership on the part of the Cornell alumni. Our transportation job is getting more and more difficult as the war is prolonged, and we know that during the coming months every possible conservation must be made in civilian use of transportation facilities. We are asking everyone to conserve on transportation voluntarily, and I am sure that through the following of the example which you and your associates have set, substantial savings in transportation can be made.

My congratulations to Cornell.

Very sincerely yours,

Joseph B. Eastman
Director
