The practice of leaving some gift to the University as a class memorial which has now become general, was begun by the class of '72, which planted a row of elm trees on each side of President's avenue and of the northern half of East Avenue. The placing of the memorial was made part of the Class Day exercises, and the trees are now fulfilling the purposes intended of them, to help beautify the campus and to serve as a reminder of '72's interest in Alma Mater.

The class of '73 followed the initiative of '72 by erecting the fountain in front of McGraw Hall. The expense of this was borne jointly by Mr. Cornell and the members of the class. Owing to the scarcity of drinking accommodations on the campus in those days, the fountain proved most welcome. In recent years the need of its presence has not been felt so strongly, and the stream of water has been running only occasionally.

From '74 to '78 the projects for class memorials failed of materialization, each class discussing various plans, among them the gift of books to the Library and the erection of a memorial window, but finally doing nothing. The class of '79 revived the custom by placing on the south wall of Sage Chapel a bronze tablet to the memory of Bayard Taylor. The medallion for this tablet, containing the dead poet's profile, was made by W. R. Donovan, the sculptor. The decision of the class to do honor to the poet, author and journalist, who had died in Germany August 19 of the year before, was most appropriate. Almost from the establishment of the University Bayard Taylor became one of its warmest friends, and kept his interest in it throughout his life. He was non-resident professor of German literature from 1870 to 1877.

The next class to leave a memorial was that of '83, which on its Class Day presented to the University a portrait of Professor William Dexter Wilson, D.D., LL.D., which now hangs on the northern wall of the Library reading room. The subject of this portrait was born in Stoddard, N. H., in 1816, was educated at Harvard, and at the opening of Cornell in 1868 was made Professor of Moral and Intellectual Philosophy. He held that position until 1886, and has since been Professor Emeritus.

The class of '84 also unveiled and presented a portrait as part of its Class Day programme. The subject was Professor Charles Chauncey Shackford, A.M., and the painting may be seen in the Library next to that of Professor Wilson. Professor Shackford was born in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1815, graduated from Harvard in 1835, and came to Cornell in 1871. At the time of the presentation of his portrait he was head of the department of rhetoric and oratory. He was retired, as Professor Emeritus, in 1886, and died December 25, 1891.

The gift of the class of '85 was a cast of the statue of Augustus Cæsar, which is now to be seen, in good condition and properly noted as a class memorial, in the Museum of Casts. The statue is one of the best known and most imposing of those which are found in cast collections.

Of all the class memorials the one with which the undergraduates are best acquainted is probably the '86 Memorial Prize in Declamation, established by the class of '86. The prize is the income of a fund left by the class, and at present amounts annually to about $30. The '86 Contest is held every spring, the speakers being chosen by a number of successive competitions from the

When the Sage residence was acquired and endowed as an infirmary, this part of the functions of the fund was dropped, and the income is now used simply for the benefit of sick students who are in need. It is administered by the Women's Relief Guild, the fund itself, amounting to $500, being in the hands of the University treasurer.

With the subject of the '92 memorial is associated one of the most interesting and saddest of stories connected with Cornell, the story of the life and death of George Pease Witherbee, '93. A splendid student and a fine athlete, of character above reproach, Witherbee was widely Establishment of the School—Its Faculty, Methods of Work—What the School has Accomplished.

In 1886 a special committee of the Board of Trustees reported unanimously in favor of the early establishment of a Department of Law at the University. The report stated that there were at that time 2686 students in the forty-seven law schools of the country; that in Columbia there were but 26 students from New York State outside of New York City and Brooklyn; that of the forty students in the members of the classes in public speaking. This contest being of more general interest in its nature than either the oratorical or debate contests, is very popular, and is one of the important events of the collegiate year.

After 1886 no memorials were left until the class of '90 decided to renew the custom. A vote on the nature of the memorial showed a very general desire for a boathouse for the navy. Accordingly work was begun in May, 1890, when the piles were driven beside the Inlet, and the house was built from plans drawn by Professor C. F. Osborne of the College of Architecture. It has been of the greatest benefit to Cornell's navy interests, and has every spring been the meeting-place each afternoon of large numbers of students, alumni, and visitors watching the evolution of the crews which have brought Cornell so much renown. It has long since been outgrown, however, and larger quarters must soon be secured.

The '91 memorial consists of a fund, the income from which is devoted to the needs of poor students who fall sick. It was collected some time after the class had left the University, and at first was devoted in part to the maintenance of a free bed for students at the City Hospital.

known and liked throughout the University. On August 28, 1893, while he was sailing on Lake Champlain accompanied by six boys, the party was surprised by a sudden squall. The yacht was overturned and sank immediately. Witherbee, instead of striking out for the shore, went to the help of one of his companions, and while engaged in the work of rescue was himself drowned. President Schurman, in his address to the students the following month, asked that some memorial to the brave young man be erected. Members of the class of '92, which had left no memorial, took up the suggestion; and by the fall of 1894 the Witherbee Club House, for the use of the athletes at Percy Field, had been completed.

The class of '93 established the prizes for the Interscholastic League, giving three cups to serve as perpetual trophies in baseball, football and track athletics. These trophies are competed for annually by the schools of the league, and do good service in attracting and holding the attention of the young athletes to Cornell. The cups are of silver, are valued at $200 each, and were made by Tiffany, of New York.

Albany law school nearly all were from Albany and the immediate vicinity; and that an examination of the catalogues of other schools led to the conclusion that not more than forty students of law from New York state, residing outside of New York, Brooklyn and Albany, were receiving their legal education in the law schools. The committee therefore concluded that a law school at Cornell would, without entering into any considerable competition with existing schools, supply a means of legal education to a large body of students who were pursuing their legal studies in law offices.

The Trustees accepted the report of its committee and unanimously voted to establish a law school. The Faculty chosen were: Hon. Douglas Boardman, Dean; Harry B. Hutchins, secretary; Charles A. Collin and Francis M. Burdick. The school opened on September 23, 1887, and enrolled for its first year 55 students of whom 9 were graduated. The numbers in attendance rose rapidly. The fifth year there were 123 students; the tenth year 252. As had been anticipated the larger part of these students came from New York state outside of the New York City district, although there have always been a considerable number from other states. In the meantime law schools have multiplied and there are now upwards of 10,000 law students in the law schools of the United States.

The school was first housed in the third story of Morrill Hall. It soon outgrew these quarters, however, and in 1891 the trustees voted to erect a new building for its exclusive use. This was dedicated in February, 1893, and was named Boardman Hall in honor of Judge Boardman, the first Dean of the School. At the same time Mrs. Boardman and her daughter, Mrs. Williams, presented to the school the rich and remarkably complete library purchased of the estate of the late N. C. Moak, of Albany. This library, together with the previous collection and the subsequent generous additions gives to the school a law library of nearly 30,000 volumes. Only one law school in the country has a larger collection.

Boardman Hall, the home of the school, is a large three story structure, 202 by 58 feet, built of Cleveland sandstone with interior finish of oak and practically fire-proof. It contains on the first floor three commodious lecture rooms and necessary cloak officer, retired in 1895 and was succeeded by Hon. Cuthbert W. Pound. Professor Collin retired in 1895 and was succeeded by Henry W. Hardon who after a year of service was succeeded by Edwin H. Woodruff. In 1898 Henry S. Redfield was appointed Professor of Practice and Procedure, and in 1899, Frederick D. Colson was appointed Assistant in the Department of Practice and Procedure. The present Faculty consists of Dean Finch, Professors Huffcut, Pound, W. A. Finch, Woodruff and Redfield, and Assistant Colson, together with Judge Alfred C. Coxe, of the U. S. District Court, Lecturer on the Law of Shipping and Admiralty, and Albert H. Walker, of the New York Bar, Lecturer on The Patent Laws of the United States.

In 1898 the title of the school was changed to "College of Law" to conform to the usage throughout the University.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ENTRANCE.

Down to 1897 students were admitted upon the presentation of the Regents' law student certificate but since September, 1898, they have principles as they are found operating upon actual or hypothetical states of fact. The solution of legal problems as presented by clients to practitioners is the chief business of the lawyer. To fit the practitioner to solve the problems as they are presented, is the business of the law school. One emphatic indication that the college has in mind this rational end is the fact that all of the questions given at the periodical examinations are stated in the form of hypothetical cases, calling upon the student for a statement of the point involved, his holding upon the point, and his reasons therefor. Thus theory and practice go hand in hand. During the earlier part of the three year course, and especially during the first year, a textbook and a book of cases are used together, the one to give the fundamental and systematic view of the subject, the other to show the law of the subject in actual operation and to drill the student in the proper use of legal material. During the latter part of the course more stress is put upon the study of legal material as found at first hand in the cases. The work of the later years of the course is supplemented by the work of the club courts in which students prepare and argue cases.

PRACTICE DEPARTMENT.

In one particular the college has taken what may fairly be regarded as a pioneer step among Eastern law schools. It was seen that with the practical disappearance of opportunities for useful office study, the student ought to be able to get in the law school the instruction in practice and procedure which formerly he obtained in the office. To this end there was appointed a Professor of Practice and Procedure with twenty years experience at the bar. He and an assistant devote their entire time to this work, which extends through the whole course of three years. The work is organized in such a way as to require the student to prepare a very large number of procedural papers. These are discussed in the class-room by students and professor, defects pointed out, and the essentials of a proper pleading, petition or other paper are stated and emphasized. Every paper passes through the hands of the professor or assistant and is carefully read and criticised. In so far as possible the object of the department is to duplicate the work of a busy office but to do it by a systematic development of the whole field of practice. The department is believed to be unique and its success has amply fulfilled the expectations of those who created it.

WORK ACCOMPLISHED.

The college instructs in some branches of law a considerable number of students from the Department of Arts and Sciences. These students by taking one year of law while in that Department are enabled to secure the A.B. degree and the LL.B. degree in six years. During the present year 244 students were instructed in the college, of whom 66 were from Arts and Sciences.

At the close of the present year the college will have conferred the degree of LL.B. upon 685 students during the thirteen years of its existence, or an average of 53 a year. Its average attendance of those enrolled as students of Law has been 163, and of Arts students (during the nine years they have been received) 42. It has therefore instructed an average of over 200 students annually. This is fully up to the expectations of the committee that recommended the foundation of a College of Law in 1886, and seems to justify the faith they expressed in the future of the School.

The 1900 Class Book made its appearance last week and has met with quite general approbation. The volume contains about three hundred pages of heavy smooth-finished paper and is bound in a rich maroon cover, on the front of which is neatly engraved in gilt a Cornell seal and the words "1900 Class Book." The book is dedicated to the memory of Clifton Beckwith Brown, '00, who fell at El Caney, and whose photograph with signature forms the frontispiece.

Following the dedication Mr. Garretson has contributed a concise and racy history of the class, after which come the photographs of the faculty. Following are the cuts and sketches of the class members. Then come statistics and photographs of the various athletic teams, immediately after which are a few pages devoted to the publications. After mentioning the class societies and clubs several pages are given up to various stunt pictures, most of them well printed and evidently selected with care. The fraternity houses follow and the book closes with a list of the class members.

rooms. On the second floor are ten good sized rooms used as offices and club court rooms. On the third floor are the library rooms with accommodations for forty thousand volumes and three hundred readers.

FACULTY OF THE SCHOOL.

Upon the death of Judge Boardman in 1891 the Hon. Francis M. Finch, then a Judge of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, was made Dean. Judge Finch retired from the bench January 1, 1895, and has since given all his time to the work of the school, lecturing upon The Statute of Frauds, Insolvency and Bankruptcy, Preparation and Trial of Causes, Legal Ethics, and the History and Evolution of the Law. His lectures are marked not only by the ripest legal learning but by a literary charm and finish of which he is the consummate master.

The original faculty was increased in 1892 by the appointment of Professor William A. Finch, now the Professor of the Law of Property. Professor Burdick retired in 1891 and was succeeded by Charles E. Hughes who remained for two years and was in turn succeeded by Ernest W. Huffcut. Professor Hutchins, who as Secretary and later as Associate Dean had been the chief executive been required, as a minimum, to present certificates of graduation from an approved High School in a four year course or to present a Regents' Academic Diploma or sixty-count certificate or to pass the entrance examinations for the course in Arts. Down to 1897 the course of instruction extended through two years, but beginning with that date the course was lengthened to three years for all students. These two increased requirements coming in two successive years naturally resulted in a decrease in numbers, but the authorities have steadily kept in mind the original pledge given in 1886 "to establish the school upon a basis of such breadth and excellence of scholarship as will recommend it to the favor of the profession."

METHODS OF INSTRUCTION.

The College has never wedded itself to any one of the so-called "methods" of legal instruction. It announces its purpose to be to prepare students to deal quickly and intelligently with legal problems, and to this end to furnish a thorough grounding in legal principles, but always accompanied by a study of the prin-

RACES AT POUGHKEEPSIE.

Events and Entries for the Big Regatta on the Hudson.

Arrangements for the regatta held under the auspices of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association are now practically all completed. The regatta will be held on the Hudson river course at Poughkeepsie. The program consists of a 'varsity four-oared race, a freshman eight-oared race, and a 'varsity eight-oared race. All these races will be rowed during one afternoon, the afternoon of Saturday, June 30th. This is an innovation. In past years the practice has been to row the freshman and 'varsity eight-oared races on different days, sometimes with a day between. It is believed the plan adopted this year will meet with the approval of spectators and oarsmen alike.

The four-oared 'varsity race will be rowed first, at four o'clock in the afternoon. Pennsylvania and Cornell are expected to enter crews for this race, and possibly Columbia. This race will be for two miles. Mr. Davidson Kennedy, Pennsylvania, '79, recently presented a silver perpetual challenge trophy to the Intercollegiate Rowing Association for this race, the winner each year to hold the cup until defeated, but the cup never to become the exclusive property of any one crew. A cut of the Kennedy Cup appeared in THE ALUMNI NEWS two weeks ago.

The freshman eight-oared will be rowed next, at five o'clock. Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin have entered crews for this race. This race will also be two miles in length. This is the first time that Wisconsin has sent a freshman crew east, and its performance will be watched with great interest.

The 'varsity eight-oared race will be rowed at six o'clock. This will undoubtedly be the biggest aquatic event of the season, surely in the number of crews taking part in it, and probably also in the interest taken in it. Five universities have signified their intention of entering crews: Columbia, Cornell, Georgetown, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin. Syracuse had intended to enter but was compelled to withdraw and content herself this year with the Francis Club race, noted elsewhere in this issue. It is gratifying to all lovers of rowing to note the entry of Georgetown and Syracuse into aquatics, and it is hoped that their work this year will be of such a high character that they will be encouraged to continue the development of their navies. The 'varsity race will be for four miles.

The Stewards of the Rowing Association have been most fortunate in procuring excellent men to serve as the officials of the regatta. The referee will be Mr. Richard Armstrong, Yale, '95. Mr. Armstrong officiated last year in the same capacity. The timekeeper will be the well known Harvard athlete of days gone by, Mr. Wendell. The judge of the finish will be Mr. Fred R. Fortmeyer. Mr. Fortmeyer has been prominent for several years in the affairs of the Amateur Rowing Association.

An observation train will be run as usual on the tracks of the West Shore Railroad. Experienced train men will be stationed on the car in the middle of the train, and it will be the duty of these men to keep that part of the train opposite the foremost boats in the race. Tickets on the observation train will be sold for $2.50 for all three races. The observation train will be divided up into sections, and a section allotted to each college participating in the regatta.

Francis Boat Club Crew to Meet Syracuse and Hobart.

Friday's race at Syracuse between the Syracuse and Hobart 'varsities and the Francis Boat Club crew from Cornell will be rowed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon over a two-mile course on Lake Onondaga, starting near Pleasant Point and finishing past the Syracuse Yacht Club boat house.

Much interest in the contest has been aroused. An observation train of double deck trolley cars will be run, affording an excellent view of the entire race, while in addition to the referee's and other official boats, it is expected that some twenty boats, owned by members of the Syracuse Yacht Club, will be in use.

The officials for the race are as follows: S. L. Fisher, Cornell, '99, referee, Rev. Carl Swartz, Syracuse, and L. W. Emerick, Cornell '91, judges on boat; F. E. Wade, Yale, W. F. Lewis, Syracuse, and H. E.

Beyer, Cornell '01, judges at finish; L. C. Smith, J. A. R. Scott, Syracuse, and C. H. Fay, Cornell '01, timekeepers. The referee's boat will be the Venice, owned by L. C. Smith of Syracuse, formerly owned at Ithaca as the Clover.

Syracuse's crew has been handicapped somewhat in its practice. In the first place, rowing is entirely new at that university, and interest is taken almost solely by those in actual training. Coach Sweetland has had no launch, and several times, owing to rough water, the shells have swamped and the men been forced to swim back to quarters. It is expected, however, that this race will be a considerable incentive to interest, and that next year will see rowing matters in good shape.

This race will finish the rowing for this season at Syracuse. It had been the intention of the boating authorities there to enter a crew at Poughkeepsie, but last week it was definitely decided not to do so.

Hobart's crew, which entered for the race at the last moment, has always trained for pleasure, the only races in which it has engaged having been interclass events on Seneca Lake. The Hobart undergraduates, however, are enthusiastic in their aquatics and will make a good showing.

Assistant Wardenship at Sage.

The appointment is announced of Miss Jane S. Watson, Professor of Ancient and Modern History in Wells College to be assistant to the Warden of Sage. This announcement comes as a noteworthy and gratifying testimony to the attractiveness of the Sage College positions, when not only the Wardenship but the assistantship also can be filled from among the full professors in a college faculty. Of the two vacancies thus created in the Wells College faculty one has been filled by the appointment of Grace Neal Dolson, Ph. D., Cornell, as professor of philosophy. The other, it is to be presumed, has been filled by the appointment, noted in the Yale Alumni Weekly, of Dr. Walter Irenaeus Lowe, hitherto instructor in history in the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, to be Professor of History and Political and Social Science in Wells.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1900.

OWING to the press of news matter this week we are delayed twenty-four hours in publication. We trust that our subscribers will think the delay justified. The issue of next week will be the last of the second volume. In order that it may contain a complete account of Commencement Week, it will not be published until Saturday, June 23.

MR. WARNER'S REPORT.

With this issue we send to our subscribers the report of Hon. John DeWitt Warner, one of the two alumni trustees retiring in June last. We had wished to present the report of Miss Thomas as well, but both reports are this year of somewhat wider scope than is usual, and our facilities are not yet equal to the task. We hope, however, beginning next year, to print the reports of both retiring trustees and to do so early in the year. These reports are often valuable to Cornellians, quite as much for their dissent from various matters of University policy as for their approval and explanation of other matters. Too often, in the past, the alumni have entirely lost sight of their trustees after election, owing to the extremely limited circulation of their reports. It is distinctly the business of the ALUMNI NEWS to remedy this state of affairs. No news is more certainly within our scope than that contained in official surveys of the University's affairs written for the alumni by the alumni trustees.

ALUMNI WHO DO AND WHO DON'T.

We suppose that most of the alumni who are attending the thirty-second annual Commencement on the Cornell campus are already subscribers and regular readers of the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS. It is a safe supposition, for it is the same men, in whom is ever present a lively interest in alma mater and in old college friends, who may be expected to return to the campus whenever they can, and to support heartily a publication which weekly brings them seven pages of the liveliest news of the doings of the trustees, the faculty and the students of the University, and at least one page,—the best of all,—stuffed full and running over with news of the doings and whereabouts of the Cornell students of old time.

For the majority of you, therefore, the ALUMNI NEWS has only the hearty welcome of old friends. But there are yet, and doubtless will be for years, loyal Cornellians whose interest in all these things is of the keenest, but who do not know what the ALUMNI NEWS is, and what it may be to them. For these alumni we have a word of suggestion. Now that the opportunity offers, it will pay you well to look over the files of our old numbers, and to ask your friends to whom the NEWS has been going this year and a half whether they would now try to do without it. We might well afford some space now to the history of our achievements, but the space is needed for news, and others are ready to speak for us. We will for the present take our motto from Shakespeare, and say "We are advertised by our loving friends."

THE FOUNDER OF THE NEWS.

We cannot, however, let pass this occasion to hang a "floral tribute," composed of the finest mixed flowers of our editorial rhetoric, on the name of Herbert Blanchard Lee, '99. It is now permissible to state what everyone connected with the ALUMNI NEWS knows well—that it was an undergraduate named Lee, who first conceived the idea of a Cornell alumni organ as a practicable matter. It was Mr. Lee's brain that worked out the details, and it was his energy and hard work which set the paper actually going. It is little over a year now since Lee's chick was hatched, and we submit that today it is able to crow as lustily as the best. It is seldom that the faith and energy of one man, working single handed to launch a new project are so soon and so completely justified by events. We propose to all Cornellians that they inscribe on the tablets of memory the name of Herbert Blanchard Lee.

SUPPORT THE CREWS.

For the past few years the alumni outside of Ithaca have contributed from twelve to fifteen hundred dollars to the Navy fund. This year, although appeals have been made to every alumni association in the country and to many individual alumni, only three hundred and fifty dollars have been received by the Navy Committee. Mr. Courtney and the crew candidates have realized ever since the training began this season that this is a critical year in our Navy history, they have realized that the crews must be victorious this year if Cornell is to retain its reputation as the leading aquatic university in the country. They have been putting forward every effort to bring this result about, and will continue to do so until the finish line is crossed on the day of the races this month. Probably no crew candidates have worked harder or more faithfully from the first day of January down to the present time than the men who sit today in the Cornell shells. They are prepared to go down to the Hudson the latter part of this month and row the race of their lives. The men in Ithaca who have watched their work all through the season are proud of them, and are awaiting the result of the races with much complacency. From the crew standpoint the outlook is certainly encouraging, and yet the Navy manager is confronted with a deficit of about one thousand dollars, money which the experience of past years showed him he was justified in expecting from the alumni, and which he must get from them immediately in order that he may make the necessary arrangements to transport the crews to Poughkeepsie and to keep them there during regatta week. Is it possible that our alumni have no more loyalty than to desert the Navy management in this emergency? If every subscriber to the ALUMNI NEWS will send to Mr. Robert H. Treman, Graduate Treasurer, Ithaca, N. Y., one dollar, and send it at once without waiting to see if somebody else won't send it for him, not only will this deficit be made up and the loyalty of our alumni demonstrated in a practical way, but the crew candidates will be shown that their hard work is appreciated. They will go down to Poughkeepsie feeling that they have the whole body of the alumni back of them, interested in them, and not feeling that they have been deserted. The moral effect of a display of loyalty on the part of the alumni at this particular time, when the crew men are putting on the finishing touches of a most exhaustive season of work may mean the winning of the races on the Hudson. Come, let us do our share towards winning those races. How can we consistently expect the crews to win, how can we rejoice with good grace over their victories, unless we are willing to help them in the only way that lies in our power? Come, let us send in our subscriptions at once. One dollar from each subscriber of the ALUMNI NEWS will do; but for fear that some may fail, let every man that can, send in as much more as his circumstances will permit. The last issue of the ALUMNI NEWS will be published next week. The editors want to be able to announce editorially in that issue that our alumni have come forward generously to the support of the Navy, and that, as a consequence, the present existing Navy deficit has been wiped out. The time to send in your subscription is now. Don't wait.

Alumni Opinion.

THE ALUMNI NEWS:

As an alumnus of Cornell who is especially fond of seeing a good game of baseball, I wish in behalf of myself and many spectators, to protest against the unjustifiable and annoying practice of shouting and yelling almost continually during the games at Percy Field. It is a species of jockeying that should be prohibited in any civilized community, and especially in a college town. No one would object to reasonable applause for skillful plays, or an occasional college yell, but to keep up a continual noise for the evident purpose of annoying a visiting team and causing them to make errors, is not only disgusting to fair minded spectators, but is a practice long since abolished even by horse jockeys in racing contests.

If the young gentlemen who exhibit themselves as leaders in the howling performance could realize what superb asses they made of themselves they would never perform again. The practice should be prohibited, 1st, because it is unfair treatment of a visiting team who are really guests of the home team for the time being, 2nd, it tends to develop a spirit of rudeness and unfairness in hundreds of young men who engage in it, 3rd, it is very annoying to many of the spectators who have paid an admission fee to see a clean and well played game, 4th, it tends to degrade the games in the public estimation, and keep many away who would enjoy a good game, and whose presence would aid in the financial support of college athletics.

Professor Tyler's Address at the Centennial of the University of New Brunswick.

Cornell University decidedly carried off the honors at the Centennial of the University of New Brunswick, which was held at Fredericton in that province during the last three days of May. Cornell sent two delegates, Professor Moses Coit Tyler, from the faculty and the Rev. Dr. Synnott from the board of trustees. Delegates were also present from nineteen colleges of Canada, seven of the United States, including Harvard and Cornell, and from the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge in England, Dublin in Ireland, and Edinburgh and St. Andrews in Scotland. The honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred upon forty-two distinguished gentlemen including Dr. Synnott and Professor Tyler.

Congratulatory addresses were then made by Dr. Peterson, the chancellor of McGill University, by Professor Adami of Cambridge University and Professor Tyler of Cornell.

DR. M. C. TYLER.

It seems, however, that some of those present felt that this was not enough prominence to give to Cornell, or rather to one of Cornell's delegates, Professor Tyler. Accordingly, we find one of the delegates from Cambridge, the Rev. John de Soyres, writing to the St. John Globe as follows:

AN AMERICAN VISITOR.

To the Editor of the Globe:

SIR:—It is a subject for regret that no special recognition was offered, in the province of the Loyalists, to the distinguished American historian who did us the honor last week of accepting an honorary degree at our University. Dr. Moses Coit Tyler, in his "Literary History of the Revolution," was the first of Americans to do justice to the merits and difficulties of the Loyalists. We can well understand that Dr. Bridges, who performed the office of introducer with dignity and efficiency, must have longed to express, whether in Latin or English, his own appreciation of the merits of such eminent men in their different lines as Dr. Tyler, Principal Peterson and Professor Adami; but was prevented on account of the absolute impossibility of finding anything to say about many of those others, whom the extensive sympathies of the Senate had added to the list.

Those who had the privilege of listening last Tuesday to Dr. Tyler's masterly address, in substance as in expression by far the best of the numerous utterances of the Centenary, must have realized the grace and charm of his personality, and will have shared with me the regret that the descendants of the Loyalists found no opportunity of expressing to this eminent historian, save by the formality of an honorary degree, their sense of his greatness and their gratitude for his vindication. * * *

Yours faithfully,
JOHN DE SOYRES.

St. John, June 2.

Chancellor Thomas Harrison of the University of New Brunswick, to whose courtesy we owe this clipping writes to President Schurman in the accompanying letter:

"The enclosed extract from the St. John Globe will show how completely Dr. Tyler carried off the laurels.

"Rev. J. de Soyres who wrote it was the representative of the University of Cambridge and a keen critic. I have heard many express the opinion that Dr. Tyler's address was very able and very finished. You will see from the programme that he had formidable competitors.

"I thought at the time and still think that both in substance and in form his address was the best."

COMMENCEMENT AT THE MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Presentation of Flags. Roll of Honor and Announcement of Prizes.

On Wednesday evening, June 6, at 8 o'clock, there occurred in Carnegie Hall, New York, the second annual Commencement of the Cornell University Medical College. Thirty-two men and twenty-one women, constituting the class of 1900, received their diplomas and the degree of M.D. from the hands of President Schurman, and became Cornell alumni, entitled to a voice in graduate affairs and equally responsible with the graduates of any other college of the University for the fair name and prestige of Alma Mater.

Already the class of 1900 has contributed to our prestige. From a class of fifty-three, thirty-four men and women have received hospital appointments in New York and vicinity. Most of these appointments were based upon competitive examinations in which our students were pitted against representatives from other well-known medical colleges in New York and elsewhere. All the appointments were made in recognition of distinctive merit in the work of the recipients.

The Commencement Exercises began with a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson. Music followed, rendered by the 7th Regiment Band. Then came the conferring of the degree Doctor of Medicine; and the members of the class of 1900 filed across the stage to receive their diplomas and their little bow of greeting and farewell from Dr. Schurman.

After more music, Dr. William M. Polk, Dean of the College, read the roll of honor, which bore the names of Frank Clark Yeomans, Gertrude Ward, Edward H. Hicks, Shirley N. C. Hicks, Jacob Gutman, Coryell Clark, David Gingold, Aaron Joshua Rosenberg, Joseph Elias Weinburg and Joseph Storer Wheelwright.

Another musical selection was followed by the introduction into the program of the formal presentation of Cornell and American flags given to the undergraduates of the Medical College for their new building by the undergraduates at Ithaca and the Medical Faculty in New York. Mr. J. B. Nolan, '00, the representative of the Ithaca Cornellians presented the Cornell banner in their behalf. This gift, he said, was more than the mere expression of good fellowship. It embodied the ideal, cherished at the home of the university the ideal expressed in the refrain of one of our student songs—an ideal and a message sent from the undergraduates

"on the hill" to their comrades in the city—"We honor thee, Cornell."

Mr. Nolan was followed by Dr. W. Gilman Thompson who presented the American ensign in behalf of the faculty of the College. Dr. Thompson emphasized the growing cordiality and good fellowship between the undergraduates at Ithaca and in New York, and the genuine Cornell loyalty evident among the students of the Medical College. These sentiments were manifested, he declared, in the Students' Association recently organized at the College, an organization with the avowed purpose of establishing a close bond between the University and the college, and of fostering the Cornell spirit among our medical students. Dr. Thompson declared the faculty heartily in sympathy with these sentiments and added that they had presented the American banner, companion in size and beauty to the Cornell banner, as token not alone of this cordial interest in undergraduate affairs, but also as an emblem of that further mark of a good Cornellian—enthusiasm for the national flag and appreciation of the dignity of American citizenship.

Both flags were received in behalf of our student body by Dr. N. G. Evans of the graduating class. He spoke briefly but earnestly of the gratitude of the medical students for gifts made with such expressions of good fellowship and good will. He declared, in behalf of his fellow students of the Medical College, that the ideals typified by the two flags should be, like the emblems themselves, a part of the new college.

Following the presentation of the flags, President Schurman introduced the Rev. Dr. VanDeWater, '74, who delivered the address to the graduating class. President Schurman then announced that a prize of $150 had been awarded for general proficiency to Dr. Frank Clark Yeomans, and a second prize of $50 to Dr. Gertrude Ward. The donor is Mrs. Charles B. Alexander. The exercises closed with a benediction pronounced by Dr. Stimson.

The officers of the class of 1900 of the Medical College are:—

President, Guerdon Conde Buck; vice-president, Viola Jane Bailey; secretary, John D. Trezise; treasurer, Henry J. Fischer; grand marshal, Ludwig R. VonRoeder; sergeant-at-arms, James Treat Gorton; executive committee, George Crocket Becket, chairman; William H. Sutherland, Arthur A. Landsmann, Mary Hess Brown, Gertrude Ward.

The stage of Carnegie Hall was artistically decorated, and with its flowers and palms, and display of the carnelian and white, it formed a most effective background for the picture made by the faculty in the full robes of their various degrees, and the more sombre but not less dignified gowns of the graduating class.

Despite the size of the auditorium, Carnegie Hall was filled and by an audience which responded heartily to every Cornell sentiment.

1901 Alumni Trusteeship.

As the Hon. D. F. VanVleet, of Ithaca, whose term of office as Alumni Trustee expires next year, has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election, and as it has been customary to have the local representation in the Board of Trustees remain practically unchanged in numbers, the friends of Mr. Charles Hazen Blood, '88, of Ithaca, have announced his candidacy to succeed

Mr. VanVleet next year. Mr. Blood entered the University after graduating from the Ithaca High School, and received the degree of Ph.B. in 1888 and afterwards LL.B. in 1890. He is now completing his second term as District Attorney of Tompkins County, is a prominent member of the Bar of Ithaca and has delivered lectures before the Cornell Law School on Criminal Procedure. He is also a Director in the Ithaca Trust Company, Ithaca Savings Bank, and Ithaca Conservatory of Music. His active interest in all the athletic and alumni interests of the University make him particularly well fitted to fill the position of Alumni Trustee.

His report upon this work will be made to the Arkansas State Survey. A short time ago Professor Branner, who occupies the chair of geology at Stanford, and who has recently returned from Brazil, gave a lecture on "American Trade with Brazil" in which he pointed out reasons why the English and Germans get the trade. The main reason he assigned was that American manufacturers refuse to cater to the tastes of the country, but wish to make the people accept goods put up in the American style.

Varsity Baseball Team.

BASEBALL SUMMARY.

Scores of Games Already Played
--The Remaining Games.

The baseball team is absent this week on its last trip, with a schedule that provides for several games in the West. The game with the All-Interscholastic team at Ithaca last Saturday was the last on the home grounds except the Commencement Week game with the Carlisle Indians next Tuesday.

In reviewing the games already played, it must be admitted that the work of this year's team has been rather erratic and has shown a lack of experience and head work. The team has manifested, too, a tendency to get the "rattles" at critical times. The weakest feature of their playing has, however, been the batting. In this Coach Jennings' instructions seem to have brought the least result. The team has been weakened by the loss of Captain Bole who has been unable to play, by reason of a lame knee, since the Fordham game. It is hoped that he will be able to play on the Western games, yet even this is doubtful. Newton is at present acting captain.

Out of twenty-eight games played the team has won fourteen and lost fourteen. Following is a list of the games played and the scores:

The team will play four more games as follows: June 14, Oberlin College, at Oberlin; June 15, University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor; June 16, University of Michigan, at Detroit; June 19, Carlisle Indians, at Ithaca.

The last game has been substituted for the game scheduled with Pennsylvania.

All Interscholastic Baseball.

The team of players picked from the Interscholastic league teams, and captained by Grant, of Ithaca High School, whose nine won this year's championship, put up a good game of ball against the 'Varsity, on last Saturday, but were defeated by a score of twenty to one. For the first three innings the visitor's battery, composed of Roberts and Galvin from Buffalo Central High School, were very well supported and shut out the 'Varsity, making one run in addition. In the fourth and fifth innings, however, the playing of the school men fell off. They often hesitated at critical moments through lack of confidence in each other, as was natural since they had had no previous team practice. In each of these innings the 'Varsity made seven runs by a series of long hard hits. Though their opponents played together better during their last four turns in the field, the Cornell team finally won out easily.

Lyon pitched his usual good game for Cornell and received the average support. Patterson was replaced by

Cross at center field in the fifth inning.

Northfield.

Now that the college year is about drawing to its close, a large number of students throughout the country are looking forward to the student Y. M. C. A. conferences held at Northfield, Lake Geneva, Pacific Grove and Ashville.

The Northfield Conference which possesses most interest for the Eastern Colleges, will be held this year from June 29th to July 8th, and ought to be of special interest to Cornellians. Besides a delegation of ten men and five women from the University, four preparatory school students, with possibly two from Cascadilla, will accompany the party, while Cornell's alumni will be represented by John R. Mott, '88, and Harry Wade Hicks, '98. Mr. Mott has been chosen to preside at the conference this year, a duty heretofore performed by the late Dwight L. Moody. Mr. Hicks is a member of the executive committee, as is also Mr. H. W. Rose, who will probably be General Secretary of the Cornell Christian Association next year. In this connection it will be of interest to know that Mr. Rose presides at both the Lake Geneva and the Pacific slope conferences.

was established the next year and since then the '94 Stage has been one of Cornell's important annual events. The prize is the income of a fund left by the class, and at present amounts to about $25 annually. The contest is held at the beginning of the winter term, all students of the University being eligible to enter the preliminary competitions by which the speakers are chosen. As the intermediate step by which the intercollegiate debate teams are selected, and as the goal of all debating in the University, the '94 Stage has regularly attracted to it the most capable men of the University.

The class of '95 presented to the navy, as its memorial, the Henley shell which was taken to England with the crew which left May 29, 1895. The shell is now at the boat-house and is used occasionally in practice work.

With the class of '96, began the custom of making cash additions to the Alumni Hall fund, which has now become the regular form of class memorial. The class placed the treasurer of the University and Messrs. Rammelkamp and Huffcut, as trustees, in charge of a fund of $450, which at the end of the last fiscal year, August 1, 1899, had become through the accruing of interest, $529.73. The terms of the gift require that the trustees shall employ the money toward the erection of a University Club building or Alumni Hall, should the plans for such a hall materialize within fifteen years. At the expiration of this time, if nothing has been done, the fund is to be devoted to any suitable class memorial. The class of '97 took similar action, leaving with the treasurer the sum of $705.17, which now amounts to $787.95.

The class of '98 also voted a memorial sum to the Alumni Hall fund, but the payment of class taxes was delayed, the money was not raised, and '98 is the only recent class without a memorial. The law class of that year, however, took independent action in regard to a memorial, and placed a seat of carved oak on the ground floor of Boardman Hall near the cloak room. The seat is very convenient, and is much appreciated by the students.

The class of '99 adopted the decision of the classes immediately preceding it, and added its memorial fund to the other sums raised for the Alumni Hall. $500 was the amount of the contribution. The class of 1900 has voted $1000 to the same purpose, and is at present engaged in raising the amount through its taxes.

Cornell Legal Directory.

Mr. E. P. Allen, B.L., '92, LL.B., '94, who has a law office at 724 Powers Building, Rochester, N. Y., issued about a year ago a Cornell Legal Directory, containing a list of Cornell lawyers. The list has proved so useful to Cornell practitioners that he has felt warranted in preparing for publication next fall a new edition to contain the names, arranged alphabetically and also according to places, of all Cornell lawyers, whether graduates of the College of Law or not. The Faculty of the College of Law heartily approves Mr. Allen's undertaking, and it is to be hoped that all those who should be included in the list will furnish him freely the required information in response to the request which he intends to make soon.

CORNELL TRACK TEAM.

THE TRACK TEAM.

Prospects for Next Year—Review of Season's Work.

The outlook for next year's track team is certainly very encouraging. While valuable men are lost in Wilson and Deming, Walton and Purcell are both doing well in the high hurdles and Frederick's work in the pole vault is excellent. In the main, the team will be composed as it is this year, with the addition of a few men who are showing good development. The meets in which the second team has participated have done wonders toward bringing forward new material and raising the general average of the track work.

In detail, the prospects for next year's team are about as follows:

In the sprints we lose nobody. All the sprinters have shown improvement this year, and will probably show more. In the quarter mile we lose Taylor, who is going to Columbia, but Hastings remains, and also Warren, who ran very close to Taylor in the Princeton meet. Hastings will also be a good man in the half mile, and so will Bellingier, when he recovers from the injury which kept him from running this year. In the mile, we will have Berry, McMeekan, Gallagher and Morrison, all capable of running inside of 4-40. These men are all available for the two mile as well. Walton and Purcell in the high and Lyon in the low hurdles are doing well, but some more material will have to be developed for the latter event. Warner, Cleghorn and Wales will put the shot, and Wales is showing much promise as a hammer thrower. Kelly, who has done 21 feet, 8 inches in the broad jump, will not return, but we will have Bates, who has spring and form but was unable this year to master his runway—a difficulty he will probably overcome. In the running high, Lueder and James have both done 5 feet 10 in competition. Longnecker and Frederick ought to be good men in this event before they leave, though they will hardly attain championship form next year. Besides Captain Kinsey, Frederick is the only promising pole vaulter, having done 10 feet 8 in practice. Carol, who gave great promise, broke his ankle this season and may not be able to vault again.

Trainer Moakley expresses himself as well satisfied with the work of this year's team in every particular, and is much encouraged by the improvement of most of the men. He considers the team so finely balanced that, although we have no probable champions, there are few colleges in the country which could beat us. In the case of Princeton, of course, the meet was won by the work of her star men, Jarvis and Cregan. As these men and most of the winners in the Intercollegiate meet leave their respective colleges this year, our chances next year should be particularly good. At present Cornell has easily the finest lot of distance runners in the country.

A summary of the meets in which the team took part this year is as follows:

Syracuse, at Syracuse, May 5. Won by Cornell, 70-34.

Intercollegiate, at New York. Cornell, seventh in thirteen teams.

Princeton, at Elmira, May 30. Won by Princeton, 66-38.

The meets in which the second team took part were:

Elmira Free Academy, at Elmira, May 12. Won by Cornell, 77½-34½. All Ithaca Prep. Schools, at Ithaca, May 22. Won by Cornell with 78½ points.

Senior Sunset Meeting.

The annual Senior sunset meeting held under the auspices of the University Christian Association, took place on the slope west of McGraw Hall Sunday evening. About 300 from the Senior and other classes were present, making probably the largest meeting of its kind ever held at Cornell. James H. Gould, '00, retiring president of the Christian Association, had charge of the meeting.

EVENTS OF SENIOR WEEK.

BACCALAUREATE PREACHER.

The Baccalaureate Sermon this year will be preached in Sage Chapel, June 17th, by the Reverend Dr. George A. Gordon, pastor of the "New Old South" of Boston. Dr. Gordon is a native of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, a graduate of Bangor Theological Seminary and of Harvard. He was a member of Harvard's first Board of Preachers (1886) and a favorite college preacher then and since. Bowdoin, Yale, and Harvard have successively honored him with the D.D. He has been Preacher at the Summer School of Theology of Mansfield College, Oxford University, and special lecturer at Yale, but is now coming for the first time to Cornell.

MASQUE CAST.

The Masque, in their presentation next Monday evening of, "The Man of Destiny," by Bernard Shaw, and the comedy, "Mr. Bob," by Rachel E. Baker, will be represented by a very strong cast.

In the first mentioned play, H. R. McClain will take the part of Napoleon, "The Man of Destiny." "The Lady," who becomes involved in a matter of stolen dispatches, will be played by Miss E. H. Valentine, '02, while the part of a lieutenant of hussars, likewise involved in the difficulty, will be taken by Davis Hawley, '00. C. B. Kugler, Jr., '03, will play Guiseppe, the Italian innkeeper. The above production deals with an historic incident during the French invasion of Italy, four days after the battle of Lodi.

The second play of the evening will be "Mr. Bob," a comedy of college life. In this "Philip Royson" will be presented by C. W. Cross, '01; "Mr. Brown," by F. K. Purcell, '01; "Miss Rebecca Luke," a maiden lady whose idiosyncrasies are the hinge of the action, by Miss VanHoesen, Sp.; "Catherine Rogers," by Miss Jessie Wilson, '02; and "Marion Bryant," by Miss Bertha Downs, '01. The parts of "Jenkins," a man-servant and "Patty," a maid-servant, will be played respectively, by W. H. Miller, '01, and Miss E. H. Hirsch, '03. Miss Wilson is said to be especially clever in her part, and the fine acting of Messrs. Cross and Purcell in comedy characters is well known.

PLANS FOR THE SENIOR.

Arrangements are practically completed for the 1900 Senior Ball, which will take place at the Armory on Tuesday evening next. The decorations for which Rothschild Bros. have contracted promise to be unusually pretty. In addition to the Armory itself, the plans call for the use of a tent 40x40 feet to be erected on the north side of the building.

The music will be furnished as in recent years by the Lyceum Orchestra and the Ithaca Band. Dancing will commence at 9 o'clock sharp, the committee announcing further that no blind extras will be given.

The catering has been let to Alberger. Liberal financial expenditure has been made in the department and in view of the arrangements made, it is believed that a large improvement on former Seniors will be made.

The programmes arrived the first of the week and were put on sale Monday. They may now be obtained at the Co-op and the Corner Bookstores. The committee also announces admission to the gallery, $1.

MUSICAL CLUBS' CONCERT.

An entirely new program has been made out for the Senior concert, and the clubs are practicing faithfully to make it a brilliant success. A new feature will be the Cornell Drinking Song, sung by the composer, E. A. Peterman, '00.

Make Up of the Francis Club Crew.

Following are brief sketches of the members of the Francis Club crew which races Syracuse and Hobart Friday. It should, in this connection, be stated that the number of candidates from which the eight were picked was very limited, since by no means all the men at work on the Inlet have joined the club.

William B. Kugler, '02, stroke, of Philadelphia, prepared at the Brown Preparatory School of that city. Kugler is taking Arts. He is 21 years old, weighs 150 lbs., and is 5 ft. 7 in. tall. He was last year a freshman substitute.

Edward D. Toohill, '02, is No. 7. He is from Auburn Academic High School and in the Arts course. He is 20 years old, 145 lbs. in weight and 5 ft. 11 in. in height. Toohill occupied the same seat in the 1902 freshman shell.

Edward H. Powley, No. 6 and captain, is a sophomore in Mechanical Engineering. He is from Ransomville, N. Y., and prepared for college at De Veaux School, Niagara Falls. Powley's age is 21, weight 160, height 5 ft. 10 in. He was captain and No. 6 of the 1902 freshmen.

C. L. Edmonston, No. 5, is a sophomore in Electrical Engineering.

He is from Montclair, N. J., and prepared at Montclair High School. He is 20 years old, 160 lbs. in weight, and 6 ft. tall.

Bronson H. Smith, No. 4, is 20 years old, weighs 158 lbs. and is 6 ft. in height. He is from Brooklyn, and is a freshman in Mechanical Engineering. He prepared at Cascadilla, rowing at No. 4 last year on the school crew.

Charles B. Brown, '03, No. 3, is taking Electrical Engineering. He is from Montclair High School. He is 18 years old, weighs 150 pounds and is 5 ft. 9 in. in height.

Henry L. Chase, '02, Arts, rows at No. 2. He is from New York city, but prepared at Cascadilla. Chase's size 20, weight 150, height 1 ft. 11 1/2 in. He rowed in the freshman boat last year.

Percy W. Tinan, '03, bow, is in Arts. He prepared at Painesville, Ohio, High School. He is 19 years old, weighs 147 pounds and is 5 ft. 7 in. tall.

Edward T. Magoffin, '00, coxswain, is from North Tonawanda having prepared at the high school of that place for the Arts course. Magoffin steered the 1900 freshman crew. He is 21 years old, weighs 110 lbs. and is 5 ft. 4 1/2 in. in height.

The trustees of the Delta Chi fraternity, which was recently incorporated, are considering plans for the erection of a chapter lodge.

The Athletic Council.

The last regular meeting of the Athletic Council for the year was held last Saturday evening. The following men received election to offices under the athletic associations: F. E. Jackson, '00, manager of the navy; D. R. Thomas, '01, manager of the baseball team; J. H. Blair, '01, manager of the track team; W. J. Norton, '02, assistant manager of the football team; and H. B. Plumb, '01, president of the Interscholastic League. The elections of E. A. Kinsey, '01, as captain of the track team and E. R. Alexander, '01, as representative of the wearers of the "C," were confirmed. Professors Dennis, Pound, Lee, White, Huffcut, and Mr. Treman were elected as the six resident graduate members of the Council. As a result of the passage of the resolutions by the wearers of the "C," the following committee was appointed to confer with the student body as to the mode of election in the future of the six graduate members: Professors Dennis, Pound, Lee, and Messrs. Alexander, Willis, and Thomas. Professor White was elected advisory member for the navy, Professor Pound for baseball, Professor Dennis for football, Professor Lee for track. Professor Huffcut and Mr. R. H. Treman were re-elected president and graduate treasurer of the Council respectively. E. R. Alexander was elected secretary. The election of graduate manager was postponed until the meeting to be held on Wednesday, June 20, at 2:30 P. M.

The Council authorized the renewal of the contract with John Moakley as trainer. The Cornell Golf Club and the Francis Boat Club were recognized and authorized under the By-Laws. The By-Laws of the Council were then revised and ordered printed. The principal changes made were the incorporation of the eligibility rules which were recently adopted by the University Faculty and which were published in No. 30 of the ALUMNI NEWS, and the insertion of the provision, that no person shall hereafter be eligible as captain or manager who is a graduate student or a student in his fifth year at the University.

Last Tuesday at one o'clock the wearers of the "C" met and adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas, we, the wearers of the

Cornell 'Varsity C, believe that the time has come when a closer connection between the student-body and the Athletic Council of Cornell is imperative; and

Whereas, we believe that this can be brought about only by giving the student-body a larger voice in the election of said Council; therefore be it,

Resolved, That we, the wearers of the "C" do respectfully request the Council to adopt a system whereby the faculty and graduate members of the Council be elected by the wearers of the "C" for a term not to exceed two years.

This week there has been put on sale a second edition of the Cornellian, an extended notice of which was crowded out of our columns at the time the book first appeared three weeks ago. The book is bound in silk finish linen, with lettering in two colors and in gold. The volume opens with a fine steel engraving of Dean Crane to whom the dedication is made in appreciation of his recent services as acting president of the University. There follows a wood cut drawing by Straight, that forms a fit introduction to the antique effect carried out throughout the book.

The statistics department as usual comes first. In the faculty, upper classes and fraternity sections, there are evidences of careful compilation. The fraternity pages are set off with vignettes of the chapter houses, which make a pleasing novelty.

Under "athletics" one finds the usual pictures of teams and crews, and in addition special articles, including a historical sketch of the Athletic Council by Professor Huffcut, and biographies of John Hoyle, "Jack" Burns and "Nat" Sherman.

In the literary department there is an unusually strong collection of pieces in verse and prose. A pleasing feature here is the appearance of contributions by alumni, James Gardner Sanderson, ex-'97, Miss Ruth Putnam, '78, and "F. A. N.," among others, furnishing matter.

Artistically, the volume is up to any standards yet set in college annuals. The half tones are well produced, and the drawings by the half dozen or more student artists add much to the attractiveness of the volume. Altogether, this year's Cornellian must be admitted one of the best ever issued.
