CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS

Vol. XXII, No. 3

Ithaca, N. Y., October 9, 1919

October 9, 1919

WHEN President Schurman delivered his opening address of welcome to the students last Thursday noon, he announced that sixteen hundred new students had registered, an increase of 260 over the number a year ago, and 491 over the number two years ago. The number of old students registered was 2200, an increase of 513 over last year and a decrease of 47 as compared with 1917. The total registration was 3800, a net increase of 773 over last year and of 445 over two years ago.

IT WAS EVIDENT to many, however, that there was more than an ordinary number of students in town at that time. Rooms were at a premium, cafeterias crowded, and on all sides there were unmistakable signs that many more than 3800 students would be registered before the University settled down for the fall. The enterprising Sun announced on Monday that it had had a count made of registration cards turned in up to Saturday noon and that the enrollment was 4977.

THE MAXIMUM REGISTRATION of regular graduates and undergraduates was in 1915-16, when the final total was 5656. Assuming that the Sun's count was correct and that late registrations reach the normal number of seven to eight hundred, the University is threatened with the largest attendance in its history.

THE FIRST ATHLETIC RALLY of the season was held in Bailey Hall on September 30. Although few upperclassmen had returned, the hall was comfortably filled. Addresses were made by "Speedy" Rush, Jack Moakley, Romeyn Berry '04, Professor Horace L. Jones, Ph.D. '09, Francis T. Shiverick '20, captain of the football team, and H. M. McCabe '20, manager of the team. Professor Bristow Adams presided. Great enthusiasm prevailed, and over seven hundred undergraduates joined the Athletic Association at the close.

THE CAMPAIGN for members of the Athletic Association is being vigorously prosecuted. Graduate Manager Berry points out that three thousand members must be secured if the track team is to be entered in the Intercollegiate games and the crews in the Poughkeepsie regatta. On Tuesday morning about 2,750 tickets had been sold to undergraduates. Of 33 fraternities that had reported up to Saturday, 27 had one hundred per cent and the remainder had above fifty per cent.

THE FRESHMAN ADVISORY COMMITTEE maintained a booth in Morrill Hall from September 19 through the registration period and another booth in Goldwin Smith during the three days of registration.

THE FIRST ISSUE of The Widow for the year, a number of fifty-six pages, appeared on September 29. The cover is the work of Charles Baskerville, jr., formerly '19, who has returned, after seeing extensive service in France, to complete his course, and who was elected art editor during the summer session. B. T. Hill '19, who was art editor last year, is advisory art editor.

A NEW COURSE of unusual interest will be given at the College of Agriculture this fall. It will give practical instruction in the conservation of game, the care of wild ducks, grouse, quail, turkeys, fish, deer, etc., and in particular, the ringneck pheasant. The 165-acre game farm belonging to the college will be used as a laboratory, lectures will be given by members of the college staff, as well as by widely known experts in wild life conservation, and trips will be taken in the swamps and along the lake for the study of game in its native surroundings. A special short course offered this year, to extend from November 5 until February 13, is intended to fit men for practical game-keepers, and longer courses extending through the college year will also be given. The new courses are the result of an increasing interest in the conservation of wild life.

THE Sun has announced the following elections to the board for 1919-20: Peter Vischer '19, of Flushing, N. Y., managing editor; Franklin P. O'Brien '19, of Evanston, Ill., circulation manager; Walker Schoellkopf Schmidt '21, of Buffalo, assistant business manager; Willard A. Kiggins, jr., '21, of Elizabeth, N. J., assistant circulation manager; Ralph J. Edsell '21, of Cedarhurst, N. Y., associate editor.

THE "BERRY PATCH," a "celyum" in the Sun, formerly conducted by Alpheus W. Smith '19, and displaced last year by F. P. A.'s "Conning Tower," has reappeared. It is conducted by "C. D. Berry II."

GEORGE L. COLEMAN '95, who has been doing welfare work in England and France for the Y. M. C. A., has returned to Ithaca and has resumed charge of the University Orchestra and instrumental clubs.

THE INTERFRATERNITY ASSOCIATION is proceeding according to plans adopted in June. Cards are being mailed this week inviting freshmen to call on one evening of the week, beginning Thursday, October 9. Prior to that first call freshmen were not spoken to by fraternity men on any pretext, at least not legally. It was this feature of this year's rules which caused the split in the association in June. This fall but one fraternity refused to sign the agreement. Kappa Alpha, with the support of many of the resident alumni of other fraternities, is opposing the league's rules on the grounds that they are undemocratic and impossible of enforcement. No particular excitement is looked for.

ABOUT THE CLOSE of the third term of the College of Agriculture a number of the graduates held a so-called graduation banquet of the 1919 class of agricultural "Hangovers." The meeting took place at the Clinton House, and included a dinner. The welcome was given by Walter Measday, jr.; Professor Bristow Adams discussed the causes of "Hangovers"; Professor K. J. Seulke the results of "Hangovers"; and Professor Dwight Sanderson the removal of "Hangovers." Other principal speakers were Y. Russell Sun and Henry H. Luning, with singing led by Rodney W. Pease. The chairman of the committee in charge was George M. Stauffer.

THE FIELD ARTILLERY unit of the R. O. T. C. is open to sophomores and upperclassmen. A large enrollment is expected. The course is divided into three departments: ordnance and gunnery, the basic course; equitation, tractors, and motor transportation; and reconnaissance and orientation. There will also be work in calisthenics.

THE SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER for the coming Sunday is the Rev. Dr. William Pierson Merrill, of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York City.

Endowment Committee Meets Two Hundred Alumni and Friends of Cornell Meet in Ithaca October 11

The organization selected to conduct the $5,000,000 endowment campaign is gathering momentum. Arrangements have been completed for the reunion on October 11, when members of the National Committee will return to Ithaca to plan for the intensive drive October 20 to November 1.

The feature of the program for this occasion will be a dinner given by the Trustees of the University to members of the Endowment Committee. About two hundred guests are expected. The principal speakers will be President Schurman, Thomas W. Lamont of the firm of J. P. Morgan and chairman of the Harvard Endowment Fund Committee, United States Congressman Daniel A. Reed '98, J. DuPratt White '90, alternate chairman of the Endowment Fund Committee, and Judge Frank H. Hiscock '75, toastmaster.

In addition to the dinner the program for the day includes breakfast at the temporary commons near the residential halls; a tour of the several colleges under the direction of the deans; luncheon in the Home Economics Cafeteria; seats at the Cornell-Williams football game; and visits to favorite spots around the campus.

Throughout the country the chairmen of the local committees are choosing their assistants, assembling their lists of prospects, and holding luncheons and dinners. Professors D. S. Kimball and C. L. Durham and Andrew J. Whinery '10 are visiting these Cornell centres, telling of the needs of the University and assisting in the work of organization. R. J. Foster '16 has been appointed campaign manager for New York City where he is now attending to the details of organization. J. DuPratt White '90, who with Walter P. Cooke '91, is alternate chairman of the Endowment Committee, has set aside his business for the period of the campaign and is spending nearly all his time in Ithaca, week-ending in New York. The personnel of the workers in Ithaca has been increased by the arrival J. C. C. Gardiner '17 as assistant campaign manager with the duty of organizing a speakers' bureau.

Among the prominent non-Cornellians now serving on the national committee are Charles M. Schwab, Governor Albert E. Smith, General Leonard Wood, George W. Perkins, Albert H. Wiggin, Silas Strawn, Jacob G. Schmidlapp, and John H. Finlay.

The name of Dean James E. Creighton of the Graduate School was omitted through error in the list of the national committee as given to the ALUMNI NEWS for the issue of October 2.

Chicago is the first of the large Cornell centres to announce the completion of its organization. The committee there consists of John W. O'Leary '99, chairman, with four men as vice-chairmen, Henry J. Patten '84, B. J. Arnold '89, Frank Matthiessen '95, and E. E. Sheridan '11. In addition there are Erskine Wilder '05, executive secretary; Harold J. Wise '06, campaign manager, and a committee of a hundred others.

President's Annual Address Heavy Registration—A Changed World —Treaty Should Be Ratified

Before an audience which filled Bailey Hall, on Thursday at twelve, President Schurman delivered his annual address opening the work of a new year. After announcing an increase of over twenty-five per cent in the registration over last year he discussed certain national issues now pending. He spoke in part as follows:

"We have come into a new world—alike in our personal lives, our national affairs, and our international relations. Only those who recognize the change are fit guides for the future.

"As individuals we must work harder and spend less, we must be more earnest and devoted, we must think less of material possessions and more of moral and intellectual attainment, and we must learn as never before to subordinate personal pleasure to the calls of duty and the service of our fellow men.

"The nation, too, stands between two worlds—one dead, the other waiting to be born. In the interval chaos yawns before us. Appalling race riots, colossal and ruinous strikes, police deserting their duty, increases in prices and no decreases in taxes; these are our own portions at the present time; and not only is railroad transportation in England paralyzed, but predictions are freely made that within a week mines, shipyards, steel works, and factories will all be shut down and the industrial revolution be in full swing.

"Whence is our salvation to come? Through principles as old as the soul and intellect of man. Justice is the bond that holds the community together. And Justice means fair play to all—not privilege for any class. Neither capitalist nor labor organization shall exploit the community for its own benefit. The wage-earner is entitled to make the most of his life; so is the farmer, the trader, the teacher, the lawyer, the doctor. If the undertakers were to strike, who would bury our dead? If the teachers were to strike, who would teach our children? If the farmers were to strike, how should we escape starvation? All have the same right to strike as the industrial workers. But if all struck the result would be chaos and death.

"The modern state, with its complex economic organization, has out-grown the crude weapon of strikes. We must learn to substitute for them conferences of all interests concerned and the rule of reason and regard for the public welfare. No union-monopoly of any class can be permitted to exploit the rest of the community in its own selfish interest. Each is entitled to what he earns. And you have no right to take my earnings merely because you happen to be in a strategic industry and can exploit me.

"We are destined to enter also on a new international order. The relations between the nations must be put on a new basis. We have supped on the horrors of war till our souls are sick, and we loathe the very idea of competitive armaments and bellicose nations. We want peace and friendship and good will on earth. The way to that end is the same in international as in private life. It is to talk over our grievances and take counsel together as to the best means of removing them. A Society of Nations is the proper organ for that purpose.

"In my lectures on international law I have long been proclaiming that such a society was absolutely necessary to put the international affairs of the modern world on a proper basis. I have welcomed the plan of a League of Nations. I believe the essence of the League provided in the Peace Treaty is the provision it makes for automatic conferences in case of actual or threatening disputes between nations.

"The public, the Senate, and the President are substantially agreed in regard to the Covenant of the League of Nations embodied in the Peace Treaty. Let the President's oral interpretation of it to the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations be put side by side with the reservations formulated by Elihu Root, Charles E. Hughes, and William H. Taft; and if these is any substantial difference between them only the most critical and meticulous investigator will be able to discover it. And the public is in accord with these distinguished exponents of its sentiments. Why, then, should not the substance of that interpretation or these reservations be incorporated in a resolution of ratification which the Senate might adopt without delay. I believe the public wants the Peace Treaty ratified without any textual modification, and at the earliest practicable date. Let the new international order start as soon as possible."

THE SINN NAVAL LIBRARY

Bernard Albert Sinn of the class of 1897 has given to the University Library a valuable collection of books on naval history and biography, principally British and American. The volumes number more than six hundred; they are now being received and catalogued at the Library; a welcome addition, since this field has not hitherto been especially cultivated. Mr. Sinn's interest in ships and the Navy dates from his undergraduate days in Sibley College, where he wrote his thesis on "An Investigation into the Action of the Screw Propeller" and where he began collecting materials on the growth of the Navy of the United States. He is now a banker in New York.

DR. WITTHAUS'S ESTATE

The estate of the late Professor Rudolf A. Witthaus, of the Medical College in New York, according to a petition recently filed in the Surrogate's Court of New York County, amounted to $203,039.29. Dr. Witthaus bequeathed all his medical apparatus and scientific books to the University.

THE POLICE DEPARTMENT, after a year of prohibition under the local option and war time prohibition, announced on October 1 the number of arrests compared with that of the preceding year was 228 to 464. Of the decrease, 236, about two-thirds, or 169, is accounted for by the decreased number of arrests for drunkenness, a total of 58 being reported under the dry laws. Traffic law violations now rank first in popularity.

A Broader Health Program Individual Training for Every Student —Army Health Expert in Charge

The University this fall is starting an enlarged health program for students. The Federal Government has appropriated $32,000 to make the expansion possible. The University medical advisers and the Department of Physical Training, working in co-operation, will aim to provide for each student such training as will best fit his particular need.

Every freshman and sophomore will attend one lecture each week on health and preventable diseases. In addition to the physical examinations which have heretofore been given only to entering students, every undergraduate will receive each term a physical examination with follow-up conferences in regard to his or her health and living habits.

To take care of these examinations and conferences in the medical advisers' offices there will be eight physicians.

Students are urged as heretofore to consult with medical advisers whenever they are ill or indisposed. The advisers will be in their offices daily from nine to six. As in the past all first and second year students are required to take drill or physical exercise. Juniors and seniors are relieved from drill or physical exercise provided that in their periodical examinations they are found to be in a satisfactory physical condition.

In charge of this enlarged health program in the University will be Dr. Haven Emerson, who has recently returned from France, where he was for seventeen months chief of the Division of Communicable Diseases in the Surgeon General's Office of the Expeditionary Force. Dr. Emerson was formerly of the Health Commission in New York City.

He was born in New York on October 19, 1874. He graduated from Harvard College with the degree of A. B. in 1896 and took the degree of M. D. at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1899. For several years past he has been engaged chiefly in public health work.

TO DIRECT INTRAMURAL SPORT

Two well-known athletes, H. E. Whiteside, of the University of Chicago, and H. B. Ortner '19, of Buffalo, have been appointed assistants in the Department of Physical Training, to develop in particular inter-fraternity and inter-college athletics.

Whiteside played guard on the University of Chicago's football team from 1910 to 1912. More recently he has been football coach at Earlham. During the war he served as captain in the coast artillery in France.

Ortner was recently appointed coach of the basketball team for next year, succeeding Dr. Albert H. Sharpe. He has for some years been one of the prominent figures in collegiate basketball. He played on the Cornell teams for three seasons, from 1915 to 1919, with the exception of the season of 1917-18, when he was in the service. During the preceding season he was the second highest point scorer in the Intercollegiate League. He was captain of the team last year, and its most successful point-getter.

Student Activities Show Pep Come to Their Own as the Registration Approaches High Tide

With the registration of the largest freshman class in the history of the University, and the influx of an at present uncertain but probably large number of old students, the various undergraduate activities are not only being resumed, they are being re-created and broadened to meet the demands of a new era in the University's history, and a new enthusiasm on the part of those who enter for the first time, or who return, bringing with them the experience gained in various war activities, and in actual fighting at the front.

One of the first indications of the resumption of normal life was the publication of the Daily Sun, the Era, and The Widow, all three appearing on September 29, and all bearing the unmistakable stamp of the old Cornell, together with something of the new.

Competitions are in the air. Everywhere on the hill they are talked of, and the enthusiastic freshman may frequently be seen trying to find the Sun office quite prepared to accept the position of editor, or the Glee Club rooms, intending to become the club's premier soloist. The Sun competition opened with a meeting of fourteen candidates from 1922. Glee Club tryouts were held at the Musical Club rooms during the week. It was announced that an unusual number of vacancies were to be filled this year. Arrangements for the Christmas trip of the Glee and Mandolin Clubs have already been made. The trip, it was announced, will include Buffalo, Cleveland, Akron, St. Louis, Chicago, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, and New York. Try-outs for the Mandolin and Banjo Clubs were also held.

An unusual condition of University life this year is the registration of the largest number of women students ever known, so many indeed that great difficulty was experienced in finding houses in which to accommodate those who could not be placed in Risley or Sage. Freshmen women who registered on Monday paid over $600 in three-dollar fees for the support of the principal women's activities, including the Self-Government Association, Y. W. C. A., Sports and Pastimes Association, and the class organizations.

The familiar sight of freshman caps bobbing all over the campus comes as a welcome one to those who remember the days of the S. A. T. C., when uniforms were worn by freshman and upper-classman alike, when it was necessary to march to classes, to study at prescribed times, to do K. P., and, for the men in the Naval unit, to get "shore leave" whenever they wanted to go down town. The prestige of the upperclassman is restored with the reappearance of the frosh cap. No longer are there officers and privates, except during R. O. T. C. drill hours, but there are once more new men and old men, the unsophisticated, and the thoroughly initiated.

To the Widow board fell the distinction of staging the first fire of the season, a cigarette in an awning, and Nature did the rest. It is rumored that a seltzer bottle to the rescue sufficed to bring the flames under control.

With the resumption of normal University activity "The Biggest Little City" is trying to play its part. Boarding houses, which had dwindled during the lean days of the war, are becoming more popular as business propositions, and the merchants of the city are growing distinctly optimistic. Another indication that the University is again in full swing is the demand of the Journey-men Tailors' Union for a weekly wage scale and an eight-hour day.

Meanwhile the football season is in full swing, ushered in by an enthusiastic rally, and a large sale of season tickets; 250 candidates for the Cornell crews had registered up to the end of the first day, and practice on the Inlet has begun; track tryouts were held on Saturday after the Oberlin game, and the annual tennis tournament scheduled to begin on October 8.

CHICAGO CLUB STARTS SEASON

The Cornell Club of Chicago has started its season with the beginning of a series of luncheons at the City Club. On September 25 Professor C. L. Durham spoke at the club, and on the following Thursday, Lieut. Col. W. H. Carden '06, recently returned from service with the engineers, told some of his experiences in France.

On October 10 the annual meeting will be held at the Evanston Golf Club, and the occasion will be a Cornell Field Day, including, in addition to the meeting, golf, tennis, and baseball. The nominations given in last week's issue of the ALUMNI NEWS will be voted on at the meeting.

OBITUARY

Thomas W. Jaycox '73

Thomas William Jaycox died at his home in Denver, Colo., on September 8.

He was born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in 1850; he entered the Department of Civil Engineering in 1869, but left in 1872 to become a member of the Hayden geological expedition into the Northwest, making the trip through the territory now comprising Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, and the Yellowstone National Park. In recognition of his services with this expedition, one of the lakes in the Yellowstone National Park has been named for him. In 1880 he settled in Leadville, where later he was mayor, councilman, and city engineer. In 1903 he went to Denver, and two years later was made State engineer, holding this office until 1909.

Besides his widow, he leaves a son, Thomas William, jr., of Chicago, and two sisters, both residents of New York State.

Judge William H. Cuddeback '74

William Herman Cuddeback, Judge of the State Court of Appeals, died suddenly on August 17, while visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Joseph Merritt, in Goshen, N. Y.

He was born at Deer Park, N. Y., on March 25, 1852, and received his early education in Goshen. He entered Cornell in 1870, remaining four years.

In 1877 he was admitted to the bar at Poughkeepsie, and began the practice of law at Goshen, where he soon became a justice of the peace. For seven years he was a law partner of Henry A. Wadsworth. In 1885 he went to Buffalo, where he practiced his profession until 1898, when he was appointed corporation counsel, serving in that capacity for four years. From 1895 to 1897, he acted as head of the Democratic Committee of Buffalo.

In 1912 he was nominated by the Democratic Party for the office of associate judge of the Court of Appeals, and was endorsed by the Buffalo Bar Association and the State Bar Association. He assumed office on January 1, 1913, for a term of fourteen years. During the impeachment trial of William Sulzer, Judge Cuddeback attained prominence by voicing the declaration that public officers should not conceal external influences governing their conduct.

The Judge had been in poor health for the past four or five years, having suffered a stroke of apoplexy, and only a few months ago was stricken while at the Buffalo Club. He had been ill only three days when he died.

He was unmarried; his only surviving relatives are two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Merritt and Mrs. A. V. D. Wallace, and a brother, Augustus T. Cuddeback, all of Goshen. His nephew, Aaron Van Duzer Wallace, jr., was a student in the College of Civil Engineering from 1915 to 1918.

William H. Anderson '11

William Harrington, Anderson died at his home in Brooklyn on August 28, 1919, after a long illness resulting from an attack of influenza.

Anderson was born on March 14, 1889, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Anderson, of Brooklyn. He prepared at the Boys' High School, and entered Cornell with a State scholarship in 1907, receiving the degree of M. E. in 1911.

Soon after graduation he entered the employ of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, leaving during the next year to become an inspector in the testing bureau of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. He resigned this position to become associated with the Public Service Commission of the First District, and in the summer of 1915, went to Los Angeles as assistant engineer for the Board of Public Utilities. He returned to Brooklyn in March of this year.

He was married in 1917 to Miss Dorothy Hutchins, of Los Angeles, who survives him with his parents.

William G. Davis '17

First Lieutenant William Gurley Davis died of pneumonia in France on October 17, 1918.

Davis was born on August 29, 1893, and prepared for college at the Mexico, N. Y., High School, entering Sibley College in 1913, and receiving the degree of M. E. in 1917. He was a member of Eleusis.

He enlisted in the Air Service in July, 1917; later he asked to be transferred to the Engineers, and went to France as a first lieutenant attached to Company C, 541st Engineers. He had been overseas only two months.

Lieutenant Davis was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Davis, of Mexico, N. Y., and a brother of George W. Davis '01, and Cortland W. Davis '07.

Arthur G. Haen '18

Lieutenant Arthur Gerald Haen died of pneumonia at Mitchell Field, Hempstead, Long Island, on December 22, 1918.

Haen was born on September 29, 1893, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Haen, of Rhinebeck, N. Y. He prepared at the Albany, N. Y., High School, entering the College of Civil Engineering in 1914.

In June, 1917, he enlisted in the Air Service, and received his ground school training at the Government School at Princeton. For flying instruction he was assigned to West Point, Miss., and Mitchell Field, L. I. During the Red Cross drive in September, 1918, he made exhibition flights over the city of Rhinebeck.

Melville Kurzman '19

Seaman Melville Kurzman died of influenza at the Cornell Infirmary on October 19, 1918.

He was born on July 31, 1898, and entered Cornell from the College of the City of New York in 1917, in the course in agriculture. He enlisted in the U. S. Naval Reserve Force in September, 1918, and on October 13 was assigned to the Naval Unit of the Students' Army Training Corps at Cornell.

Kurzman was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kurzman, 514 West 114th St., New York.

Eugene W. Allen '20

Eugene Wex Allen died suddenly at the Buffalo General Hospital on August 17, of pneumonia following an attack of neuritis.

Allen was born in Buffalo on July 18, 1896, and received his education there, graduating from Lafayette High School with a State scholarship. He entered the College of Architecture at Cornell in 1916.

During his sophomore year he left college to enlist in Company E, 128th Engineers, and sailed for France on July 29, 1918. Upon his return to this country in July, 1919, he was sent to the Embarkation Hospital at Hoboken, N. J., to be treated for neuritis. Later he was transferred to Fort McHenry, Md., from where he was taken to Buffalo by his parents.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic E. Allen, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Everett E. Noble '20

Chief Quartermaster Everett Ewing Noble, of the Naval Aviation Service, died of gangrenous appendicitis at the Naval Hospital, Chelsea, Mass., on May 18, 1918.

Noble was born on February 4, 1898, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Noble, of Lander, Wyoming, and came to Cornell from Culver Military Academy. He was a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences when he left to enter the service in March, 1918.

Julius M. Clapp

Julius M. Clapp, known to Cornell students of the twentieth century as proprietor of the Empire State House-furnishing Company on East State Street, died at the City Hospital on September 25 at the age of seventy. Mr. Clapp came to Ithaca to educate his children. He was the father of Lawrence B. '04, Roger W. '15, and three daughters, Mrs. R. M. Chapman, Mrs. Mason Rogers, and Mrs. Harry E. Southard.

ALBERT W. SMITH '78

Behold in bronze his sturdy spirit caught!
For all the coming, fateful years he stands
Amid the growing good he planned and wrought
With glowing heart and brain and steadfast hands.

Undaunted, stern, with conquering mien he goes,
The hindering wind against his strenuous face,
To fight the battle with the stubborn foes
That bar the progress of the human race.

Upon the teeming earth at times appear
Rare men of nobler nature than the rest,
Who see the face of God and clearly hear
The call to some unselfish, life-long quest.

So he,—who lived in youth laborious days,
And who, revolting 'gainst a narrowing life,
Walked forth through lengthening miles by weary ways
In search of ampler field and sterner strife.

He saw the growing need of man and sought
The dreamer of the telegraph who planned
To set retarding space and time at naught,
And flash man's thought throughout a quickened land.

He caught the winged vision of the seer,
And harnessed it to work for human weal;
He fought with doubt, indifference, and fear,
And wrought man's betterment with patient zeal.

When fortune's face at length in favor turned,
When gold had brimmed his coffers, once again,
With scorn of ease, with beckoning pleasure spurned,
He sought new ways to serve his fellow men.

He wished to call great teachers, found fair halls,
Provide all means whereby the power of youth
Might be increased and trained to meet the calls
To all the higher things of life and truth.

Another bronze fronts this with thoughtful face,
Of him to whom privation was unknown,
Who'd fain with free and vital work replace
The sterile teaching of an age outgrown.

Fate brought these men together; joined their hands;
With common purpose, one in heart and mind,
They gave their lives and fortunes, power and lands
To work their righteous will for humankind.

This place where beauty moulds the heart of man,
In this fair land of valley, hill, and stream,
They chose whereon their fondly cherished plan
Should rise fulfilled beyond the dreamers' dream.

And they who come throughout the years to share
The founder's gift, shall feel the statue's spell,
And kindling at the founder's flame shall bear
Promethean fire; the spirit of Cornell.

A NEW DEPARTURE

It is most gratifying that the University is enabled, through a generous Government appropriation, to institute lectures in public health, a more thorough system of physical examinations than has hitherto been possible, and a scheme of compulsory exercises suited to the individual needs of the students. It is a movement which the bitterest opponent of compulsory drill can have no objection to, since the benefits to be derived are quite as important for an era of peace as for one of expected war. We have for some centuries heard about "a sound mind in a sound body"; but except when soldiers were needed, nearly everybody has thought that somehow, by hook or by crook, the sound mind would seek out a sound body for its abode. The draft officials demonstrated otherwise. Astounding physical deficiencies were revealed as well as the necessity of severer warfare upon communicable diseases. Fortunately the lesson of the draft has been heeded. There is no wiser use for money at the present time. It cannot fail to make the University into a great life extension society.

Unless we greatly mistake, too, the movement will have its influence on the intellectual life of the University. While the Morris chair habit has never been very prevalent here, cases of mental sluggishness, or inertia, or what you will, have not been unknown. Some cases, at least, of this sort should be corrected by the vigorous exercise which the examining physicians will doubtless prescribe for their charges.

A systematic attempt will be made to coordinate this compulsory exercise with intramural and inter-college athletics. This will provide everybody something to work for if he wants it and thus will to some extent mitigate the irksomeness of compulsion.

LITERARY REVIEW

Books and Magazine Articles

In Natural History for April-May, lately received, Dr. David Starr Jordan '72 writes on "The Red Salmon."

In The Journal of Geology for July-August Edward M. Kindle, M. S. '96, writes on "Inequalities of Sedimentation."

In The American Journal of Botany for July W. G. Farlow, Roland Thaxter, and Dr. L. H. Bailey collaborate in a memorial note on the late Professor George Francis Atkinson '85, and Professor Harry M. Fitzpatrick '09 contributes a bibliography of Professor Atkinson's publications. Professor Lewis Knudson, Ph. D. '11, writes on "Viability of Detached Root-Cap Cells."

The American Journal of Psychology for April includes an obituary notice of the late Professor John W. Baird, Ph.D. '02, and a monograph entitled "A Study of Tonal Attributes," by Dr. Gilbert J. Rich '15.

The story of the various American missions has been told by Professor Vernon Kellogg, '91-2 Grad., in a book entitled "America on Mission," which will soon be published by the Houghton Mifflin Company. Professor Kellogg writes in Science for September 26 on "Births and Deaths in the Civil Population of France in the War-Time." In Lille, for example, the birth-rate decreased forty-seven per cent from and the death-rate increased forty-five per cent over the pre-war ratio. Almost the same is true of Charleville. The former of these cities is in the center of an industrial, the latter in an agricultural region.

Jerome B. Landfield '94 writes in The Review for July 12 on "The Attempt to Discredit Kolchak." In the issue for September 20 he discusses "The Demand for Withdrawal From Siberia."

Francis W. Halsey '73 is the compiler of "The Literary Digest History of the World War," which the Funk & Wagnalls Company, of New York, are publishing in ten octavo volumes, containing approximately four thousand pages of reading matter and nearly a thousand illustrations and colored maps. The first edition, comprising seventy-five thousand copies, was to be ready for delivery in September.

Professor Ulysses G. Weatherly, Ph. D. '94, of Indiana University, contributes to The Indiana University Alumni Quarterly an article on "The Dynamic of Youth." It was a Phi Beta Kappa address delivered at Indiana on February 13.

The commencement address delivered in June at Indiana University by Professor George L. Burr '81 on "Loyalty and Liberty" is printed in the July number of The Indiana University Alumni Quarterly.

Professors Sidney G. George '05 and Ernest W. Rettger, '06-7 Grad., contribute to The Cornell Civil Engineer for May, lately issued, an article entitled "A Problem on the Hydraulic Resistance of a Bridge Over the Chemung River at Elmira, N. Y." James W. Routh '14 writes on "Street Development After the War." Routh is director of the Rochester Bureau of Municipal Research, Inc. Henry L. Howe, jr., '10, engineer in charge of the Rochester Engineering Laboratory, contributes a discussion of the article in the March issue on "The Organization of a Standard Municipal Testing Laboratory."

In the June number of The Michigan Alumnus Professor Louis C. Karpinski '01 writes on "Astronomical and Mathematical Rarities in the University of Michigan Library."

Garrett P. Serviss '72 writes in The Evening Journal for August 14 on "A Liberal Education the Vital Need of Man and Woman," basing his remarks on his visit to Ithaca for the Semi-Centennial Celebration. Even the most worldly-minded graduates, he found, had gained something from their touch of liberal education, and this something had passed on to their children as an inheritance. "Against the crushing and strifling effect" of the modern system of highly specialized technical education, "a liberal education offers the only breath of relief."

Professor George L. Hamilton writes in the April-June number of The Romanic Review, received on August 18, on "The Descendants of Ganelon and of Others."

In Science for September 19 Dr. C. Stuart Gager '02 presents "A Basis for Reconstructing Botanical Education." An anonymous writer, under the title, "The Retirement of Professor Edward L. Nichols," describes the physics conference and reunion held in June in honor of Professor Nichols. "The Philadelphia Meeting of the American Chemical Society" is described by Dr. Charles L. Parsons '88, secretary.

The Macmillan Company announces for publication early in October a treatise on "Plane Trigonometry" by Professors John W. Young, A. M. '01, and Frank M. Morgan '09, of Dartmouth.

In The Journal of English and Germanic Philology for April, lately issued, Professor Oliver F. Emerson, Ph. D. '91, of Western Reserve University, publishes "Two Notes on Jane Austen," and Professor Clark S. Northup '93 reviews Professor Stuart P. Sherman's "Matthew Arnold: How to Know Him" and Professor Raymond M. Alden's "Alfred Tennyson: How to Know Him."

Two professors of the History Department at Cornell, Professor Carl Becker and Professor Charles H. Hull, are mentioned as members of the National Board For Historical Research in an article in The American Review of Reviews for August by Joseph Schafer, who tells of the various services which these historical scholars rendered the country during the war. The Board, he says, formed "a kind of clearing house through which the country's resources of historical scholarship could be more readily brought to bear on problems incident to the war" and also inaugurated a nation-wide movement for the study of the war in schools. The same board was also responsible for the creation of the "House Inquiry," the group of specialists whose services proved so valuable during the peace negotiations.

WAR HONORS

Honors for Pochet

Second Lieutenant Henri Pierre Pochet, who entered Cornell in 1904, as a special student in the College of Agriculture, has been in the French army since 1914, and has been cited three times. He has received the Cross of War and the Military Medal.

His first citation was received in October, 1915, and carried with it the Cross of War. It reads as follows: "Sergeant Pochet has ever given to all the most beautiful example of coolness and energy, and in numerous circumstances has volunteered to fulfill the most dangerous missions."

His second citation, received on January 24, 1916, reads: "The Military Medal has been conferred upon Sergeant Pochet, who has proven himself a very brave non-commissioned officer. He has been at the front since the beginning of the war, and has always offered his services for the most perilous missions. He distinguished himself particularly during the days of 9 to 12 January, 1916, remaining in front of his men to give them an example, and to lead them on. Having decided to retake a line of trenches he attacked the enemy with the most obstinate energy under a most violent fire of grenades. The present recommendation authorizes the conferring of the Cross of War with palm.

J. JOFFRE."

The third citation is dated March 27, 1916. "The general commanding the 4th Army cites to the order of the Army Pierre Pochet, sergeant, an under-officer of rare sangfroid and of rare calmness. During the fighting of March 6, he, under an attack of liquid fire, rallied his entire section intact to the supporting trench, then immediately regained the terrain momentarily occupied by the enemy, and established a barrage twenty meters from the first line.

GOURAUD."

Medal of Valor for Taliaferro '20

Ensign Albert Pendleton Taliaferro, jr., '20, of the U. S. Naval Reserve Flying Corps, has received the Italian Medal of Valor for work done at Porto Corsini, Italy, where he acted as bombardment and patrol pilot and photographic officer.

Taliaferro is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Taliaferro, of New York, and is a member of the class of 1920 in the College of Agriculture.

ATHLETICS

Varsity Wins from Oberlin

The football team opened its season last Saturday by defeating Oberlin by the score of 9 to 0, a field goal by Captain Shiverick in the first period, and a touchdown, also by Shiverick, in the second period, representing the sum total of points made. The game was played under oppressive weather conditions, a midsummer sun baking the gridiron and making life uncomfortable, to say the least, for the perspiring players.

The first Cornell team played less than half of the game, numerous substitutes being sent in before the first period was over. The second half was played entirely by second and third string men. Some thirty substitutions were made in all.

Under the conditions the game had to be slow, but it proved fairly interesting, though unsatisfactory in failing to give any true conception of the strength of the Cornell squad. While the first team was on the field Cornell was on the offensive most of the time, though by skillful use of the forward pass Oberlin managed to work up to the twenty-five-yard line on two occasions, failing each time at a goal from placement.

In the first period Cornell launched a march from midfield which did not stop until the ball reached the ten-yard line. Here Captain Shiverick dropped back and kicked a field goal from the twenty-yard line. Early in the second period Shiverick broke loose on a spectacular run for a touchdown. He started from his own thirty-two-yard line, made a wide circle of Oberlin's left end, Milliken, and dashed for the goal line, eluding or shaking off several tacklers on the way. He failed to kick goal.

The second half was a fairly even battle, with neither team having enough punch to score.

The game indicated that the team had made encouraging progress in its early practice, but that much remains to be done before it is properly prepared for the Colgate and Dartmouth games, now not far off. Shiverick, Shuler, and Davies made favorable impressions, while Mayer, who had been regarded as a second string man, gave a good account of himself at right halfback. Line and end play was what might be expected at this time of the year, encouraging but individual, unfinished and rather loose.

The team uncovered nothing in the way of an offense, using only a few plays, perhaps three all told, with variations. No passes or intricate formations were attempted. Shiverick's punting was good for this time of year.

A crowd of about 4,400 persons watched the play.

Colgate Game Ticket Sale

The Colgate football game, which is to be played on Alumni Field on October 18, is expected to be a hard one for the varsity. Colgate football teams have been ranked high during recent years, and this year's team has had its usual early-season successes. Admission is one dollar. Reserved seats are $1.50, and may be secured early by mailing checks payable to the Athletic Association.

Wrestling Coach O'Connell Returns

Walter O'Connell, instructor in wrestling and coach of a number of Cornell wrestling teams that have won inter-collegiate championships, has returned to his duties in the University, after serving for sixteen months as an athletic director and Y. M. C. A. worker in France and other European countries.

While in France O'Connell had charge of athletic activities in several American divisional camps. After the armistice he took charge of the supply base of athletic goods in Paris. His work carried him into Belgium, Italy, England, and Germany.

Dartmouth Game Smoker

The Cornell University Club of New York will hold a smoker Friday evening, October 24, the eve of the Cornell-Dartmouth game at the Polo Grounds in New York City. All Cornell men are invited to attend the smoker, for which no charge will be made. The feature of the smoker will be stunts by Louis A. Fuertes '97 and Touchdown III. The Cornell Club extends a welcome to alumni, both visiting and resident. The event will offer an opportunity to inspect the new clubhouse, which is at 30 West 44th St.

For the information of those making inquiries, the advance sale of tickets for the Cornell stands will be handled by the Cornell Athletic Association, Ithaca, and by the Cornell University Club, 30 West 44th St., New York City. Seats are $2.20 each, including war tax. Boxes holding four are $11, including war tax. Checks or money orders for the tickets and ten cents for registration should accompany applications.

McGovern on Athletic Council

John T. McGovern, LL.B. '00, has been appointed by the New York Cornell Club as its representative on the Athletic Council. McGovern is a lawyer practicing in New York and during the administration of General Bingham was counsel to the Police Commissioner of that city. For a number of years he has officiated at the Intercollegiate Championships and other important track meetings. He has a wide acquaintance among the sportsmen of other colleges.

McGovern is a member of the New York Cornell University Club, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and the 7th Regiment Veterans' Association. For many years he has written the music for the Illustrators' Club show. During the war he served as 1st lieutenant in the Motor Transport Corps.

As an undergraduate Terry McGovern ran on the track and cross country teams and was the legal owner of Sykes, the most prominent bull dog that ever attended the University.

ALUMNI NOTES

'87—Miss Mary W. Pound, daughter of Judge Cuthbert W. Pound '87, of Lockport, N. Y., was married on September 6 to Ralph Comstock Taylor, a graduate of Yale and of the Harvard Law School. Taylor has been released from service as ensign in the Navy, and is now a member of the law firm of Kent, Cummings and Means, of Buffalo; they will make their home at 41 Inwood Place, Buffalo.

'90—William Stranahan served as a captain of engineers during the war, and is now superintendent and manager of the San Joaquin Valley Light and Power Company; he lives at 1136 Yosemite Avenue, Fresno, Calif.

'91-2 Grad; '09 MD—Thorstein Veblen and Carl McCombs are members of the faculty of the New School of Social Research, located at 465 West Twenty-third St., New York. Veblen is conducting two courses on the economic factors in civilization. Dr. McCombs, who is connected with the Training School for Public Service of the Bureau of Municipal Research, will deliver eight lectures on public health, including the promotion of child health, prevention of communicable diseases, industrial registration, and public health education.

'92 ME—At the last commencement of the University of Michigan Andrew Heatley Green, jr., general manager of the Detroit branch of the Solvay Process Company, received the honorary degree of Master of Engineering.

'95 BSc—George L. Coleman returned to Ithaca on September 1, after fourteen months of service in London and Paris with the Y. M. C. A.

'95 PhD—Announcement has been made of the engagement of Mrs. Hugh C. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., to Dr. Albert Ross Hill, president of the University of Missouri. Mrs. Ward is a prominent suffragist and war worker; she was one of five women selected to represent American women at the Peace Conference, but was unable to go to Paris.

'99 ME—William R. Miller, jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Miller, of Akron, Ohio, died at the Ithaca City Hospital on September 1; he was eighteen years old. Besides his parents, he leaves a brother, Robert.

Daniel Webster's Decision

THERE come only a few great crises in men's lives. A few great decisions, and the course of a life — for better or worse, for large things or for small — is determined forever.

Such a crisis came early to Webster.

He had struggled up out of the hard conditions of the farm and was reading law in the office of Christopher Gore in Boston.

One day there came a letter that seemed like a great ray of sunlight. His father wrote him that the clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, back in the home state had died. The Chief Justice had decided to offer the place to Webster.

It carried a salary of $1500 a year.

In great elation he went to Mr. Gore with the letter. And Christopher Gore, wise and successful man of the world, dashed his enthusiasm with a single question:

"You don't mean to accept it surely?" he asked.

The wise few who sacrifice the present for the future.

IN straightforward, kindly fashion he pointed out the truth to young Webster that the few wise men who make large successes in the world must learn to sacrifice the present for the future.

The fifteen hundred dollars looked large to the young man, but the place that went with it led nowhere.

And Daniel Webster had the wisdom to pass it by, and to make the struggle for larger training that leads to a really worthwhile success.

Comparatively few men in any generation have that wisdom; it is the business of the Alexander Hamilton Institute to discover those men and to put at their command the training that opens the way to commanding positions in business.

95,000 men enrolled

WITHIN the past ten years more than 95,000 men have enrolled with the Alexander Hamilton Institute; a very large proportion of them are college graduates.

They were men who realized that training is the key to large things, and who were willing to invest a little in money and time for the sake of their future.

They have been attracted to the Institute by the fact that it has only one Course; for ten years it has specialized in just one thing — training men for executive responsibility and success. To the man who knows one branch of business it gives the underlying principles of all business; to the man who has special training in one department it provides a grasp of the other departments.

These 95,000 men are the living advertisement of the Institute; the evidence that its Course is worth the investigation of any man who covets large rather than mediocre success.

If you are a college man in your twenties or thirties or forties, who realizes that the larger prizes in business go to those who prepare themselves to grasp them, the Alexander Hamilton Institute is for you; you will find an appeal in its practical character, and in its fine application of scholarship to business. If you are an older man, to whom young men turn for advice, you owe it to them to familiarize yourself with an Institution that has helped 95,000 men to larger success. A 112-page book has been published to tell the story of the Institute. It is full of interest, and it is free. It is called "Forging Ahead in Business." Send for your copy today.
