CORNELL UNIVERSITY SUMMER SESSION

July 7 to August 15, 1941

Teachers now in service will be interested in the new plan of work for the Master's degree. The wider field of concentration permitted by this plan renders it especially suitable for advanced work by teachers of such subjects as biological or physical sciences, social studies, and foreign languages. If you know of teachers of these or other subjects who are planning to work for the Master's degree this summer, won't you please send us their names and addresses? Send them to

BARRISTERS BUSY IN MYRON TAYLOR HALL

By Louis C. Boochever '12

Business is brisk in the law offices of Whiteside, Bookhout, Dahmen & Didinsky, who specialize in trusts and estates. Members of the firm are hard at work on a case in which residuary legatees of a large trust left to a widow have challenged her right to establish further trusts instead of gifts as provided in her husband's will. Senior counsel, Professor Horace E. Whiteside '22, leaves the case largely to the younger members of his firm. They are third-year students in the Law School. The firm is, in fact, a section of Professor Whiteside's "problem course" where students work on Trusts and Estates.

The problem course as given in Myron Taylor Hall is one of Cornell's unique contributions to the technique of legal education. Every third-year student in the Law School must take one problem course, and many elect two or more.

Work on Actual Cases

Students are given the facts of cases from the active files of law offices, just as some one in the office has been given them and with the same purpose: namely, to offer a practical solution of the client's difficulty. The students' task is to analyze the facts into the legal propositions they involve, to look up the applicable law, and to report the results for class discussion in which all the students and the professors join. The general problem may be so large that several aspects are parcelled out to groups of the entire class, so that all are working simultaneously for the same "client" and all are interested in the outcome of the whole case.

Only because classes are small has Cornell found it possible to devise this new feature of legal training. Problem courses change from year to year. They have included Taxation, involving income, estate, and gift taxes; Federal Practice; Election of Remedies, that is selection of the more suitable among several methods of litigating a given problem; Public Control of Business; and Trusts and Estates, dealing with establishment and administration of trusts created by will or by deed. Others have been offered in the Legislative Process, in Legislative Drafting, and in Procedure. In all of them, students apply to specific cases the general foundation they have previously learned. They correlate the material acquired from special courses already taken and from work in the library, bringing to the student the whole field of law touching an actual situation.

Students work on an actual case in Trusts and Estates, as in a law office. Senior counsel at head of the table (right) is Professor Horace E. Whiteside '22. Members of his law firm, facing him, are Ernest A. Dahmen, Jr. '38, Bernard Didinsky '39 (standing), and Richard J. Bookhout '39.

This innovation is but one of many advantages in the Law School. The tradition of distinguished teaching which has characterized the School from its very inception in 1886, in a few rooms of an upper floor of Morrill Hall, was continued in its later quarters in Boardman Hall. Now, Myron Taylor Hall in its ninth year of occupancy is playing its part in turning out men who are "well-trained, large-minded, morally-based lawyers."

Dean Robert S. Stevens, after his lecture on Equity, talks it over with R. Smith Oliver, University of Rochester '40, Douglas S. Moore '41, and Nial Sherwood, Jr. '41.

With its beautiful building, unexcelled facilities, and an outstanding Faculty, the Law School gives intimate and individual instruction of a quality which is increasingly reflected in the large percentage of Cornell lawyers who are successful in Bar examinations and subsequently in practice. There is much secrecy about the relative success of the various law schools in preparing their students for the Bar. While no comparative tables are issued by the examiners, information indicates that Cornell graduates have achieved a record which places them among the leaders of the country.

Students Learn to Reason

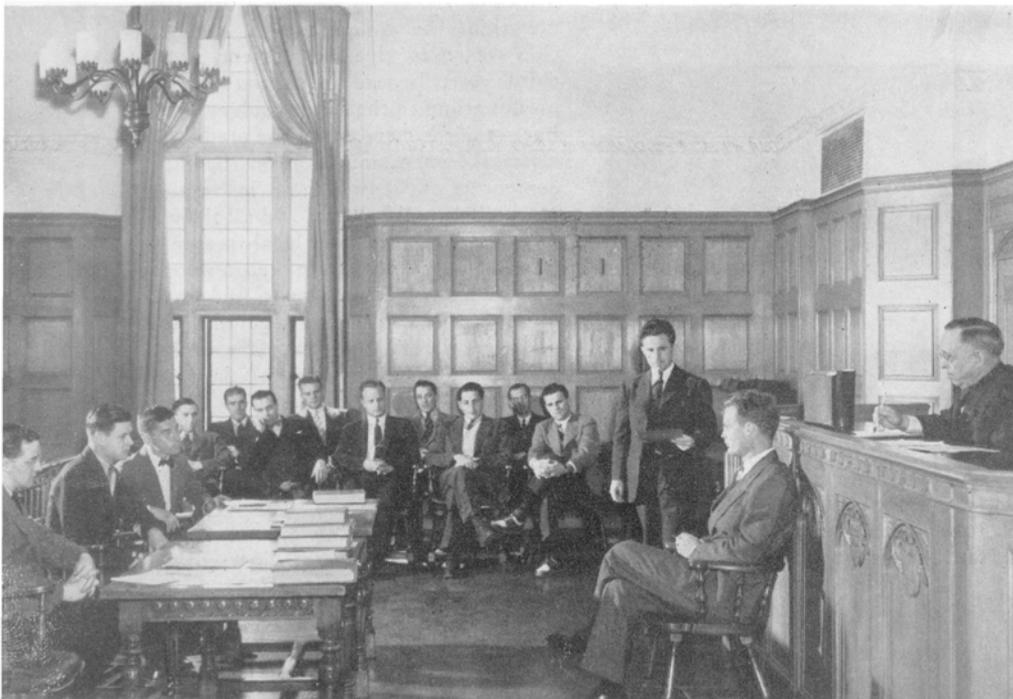

One factor contributing to this remarkable success is another Cornell innovation: the comprehensive examination which is given at the end of the third year. Instead of taking separate examinations in the specific subjects they have studied, members of the graduating class take an examination on the entire content of the Law School instruction. No student will have studied all the subjects offered, yet his legal reasoning power is supposed to have been developed sufficiently to enable him to find an intelligent solution to any legal situation of the sort he will meet in practice. These examinations occupy several days and experience with these tests helps greatly to prepare the candidate for his Bar examinations later.

Highly selective admissions keep the enrollment around 200. This year, the 192 students in the Law School received Baccalaureate degrees at fifty colleges and universities, more than half of them

Faculty Applies Teaching

From his earliest association with the Law School, the student is impressed with the fact that the professors are endeavoring to combine instruction in legal theory with the practical approach to everyday human problems. The Faculty is composed of men who have won distinction at the Bar and who have established themselves as authorities. Many textbooks and articles in the law journals attest their scholarship. Because the law of a given topic may vary from State to State, they point out these differences, giving special attention to the New York variations. Emphasizing the common-law background which makes for underlying unity, they prepare their students for practice in any State.

School Gives Broad Training

The law is taught here spaciouly, avoiding the trade-school tradition. Cases and other materials are assigned to students before they come to class. In the classroom, positions are taken or abandoned only for stated reasons and in open discussion. Judicial decisions and legislative enactment alike are set against the social, economic, or political conditions which motivate them. In short, the Cornell Law School is a modern school of the front rank.

After a general introduction to the law and having finished certain prescribed courses, the student in his second year is given wide latitude in subjects he may elect. In his third year, he has a wider choice of offerings and takes a number of problem courses. One of his classes may be the Practice Court conducted by Professor Lyman P. Wilson. Here a simple case is tried, from service of process to preparation of brief, through all the court procedures to the decision of the trial court. Each man in the class works on four cases during the term, rotating in the various functions.

Help To Find Jobs

This is another example of what can be done when groups are small. At few other law schools do students get such individual attention. Professors are always accessible for conferences, and students have a basis of understanding and friendship with their instructors. This intimacy has another distinct advantage when the law School graduate is looking for a job. The excellent placement system of the School has the cooperation of alumni committees in the larger cities who sponsor the candidate and give him introductions to a large number of offices. The professors, who have many friends in legal firms, are in position to help an applicant land a job, largely because of their intimate knowledge of the capabilities of the man or woman whom they have had in their classes.

Students Know Each Other

It would be a perversion of the truth to portray the Law School students as a grim lot, glued to their desks in the spacious Library. Men and women who work in Myron Taylor Hall are noted for their joie de vivre. They have their Law School Association which runs the annual Barristers' Ball and School smoker. They have their "bull sessions" in comfortable and beautifully appointed lounges for men and women. They take part in intramural sports; play squash on their own court in Myron Taylor Hall. They have their social gatherings sponsored by their several legal fraternities. Dean Robert S. Stevens and other members of the Faculty frequently entertain students in their homes. In addition, they have active participation in the student affairs of the rest of the University. Law students all know each other well. Coming from many and varied colleges and universities, they engage in much friendly banter and persiflage about the relative merits of various colleges.

Have All Advantages

Study of the law is a serious business. When it is done in one of the best-equipped buildings in America; when a glance out of the window brings to view the hills and valley and Lake; when professors are friendly, helpful, and interested in each individual student; when the curriculum is in tune with the times and the teaching methods are in the van of the profession; when students are a representative lot but mostly of superior academic attainment; when the quality of the graduates is widely recognized and the product is sought by leading law offices: then can it be said that Cornell is approaching the best in legal education.

Such is the Cornell Law School, this May day of 1941!

BROTHERS HEAD CLUBS

Brothers became presidents of two widely-separated Cornell Clubs when John S. Fair, Jr. '28 was elected to head the Cornell Club of Philadelphia, Pa., at the annual meeting April 24. His brother, David R. Fair '32, is president of the Cornell Club of Hawaii.

John Fair succeeds Robert B. Patch '22 in the Philadelphia Club. New vice-president is Earle W. Bolton, Jr. '26, Tinius Olsen II '35 was re-elected secretary, Donald E. Maclay '17 is treasurer, and Charles L. Macbeth '28, athletic director. Patch became a director of the Club, as did Willson H. Patterson '09, Frank C. Podboy '23, Charles B. Howland '26, John F. Macomber '29, Paul K. Vipond '34, and Henry S. Godshall, Jr. '36.

NOW IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

Relatively few undergraduates register for Ornithology, but Cornell is, I suspect, the birdiest of all the universities. Part of that is the enduring influence of Louis Fuertes and Albert Brand, part the pervading presence of Arthur Allen and George Sutton, but mostly it's because the country in and around Ithaca is a peculiarly birdy spot.

Hereabouts, one need not own a pair of binoculars, a notebook, and an identification chart to feel oneself becoming birdy. One takes his warblers, his orioles and tanagers in stride, but no amount of repetition prepares a man for meeting so many wilderness birds inside the city limits: swan, wood-ducks, grouse, brant, grebes, and loons.

It always comes as a shock to go down the Lake with the crews in the twilight and discover that the vast hawk wheeling and soaring over Esty's has a white head, is a bald eagle; to observe that the big crow flying low over the Six Hundred has a red topknot and is, by George, a piliated woodpecker. A piliated woodpecker may not be technically a rare bird, but the man who has seen one is!

But the bird news of the moment deals with Canada geese. Not the ominous wedges that move south in the November twilight to the accompaniment of half-heard honks in the high sky, but these more intimate birds that this time of year come in from Cayuga Lake at day-break and breakfast back of the house.

In the fall, the Canada geese go by Ithaca as if it were a flag-station in small print, but in the spring they stop and visit quite a while. One raft of a thousand, perhaps, has been here nearly two months now. They spend most of their time out in the middle of the Lake, but break up at the first green glow of dawn into small detachments to feed on adjacent hill farms.

The other morning, something was evidently annoying the platoon of Canadians who were breakfasting in a last year's cornfield on Dr. Parker's farm. There was no shooting and the geese were not sufficiently alarmed to fly away, but they'd get up once in a while and mill around in doubt and confusion. We went up to see. It was nothing but Cornellians—a dozen, perhaps, and half of them students—who'd gotten up in the dark and driven ten miles to lie on their stomachs in the wet grass and see for themselves what Canadian geese do. That was rather nice, we thought.

It's a common error to think of a university as a place where they fit a boy to hold down a job. There's that element in the complicated picture, of course, but for best results you should strive always to remember that it's the university's chief function to keep a boy from being just a job-holder: to create curiosities in him and a desire for knowledge that out of knowledge may come understanding. Once in a while that effort succeeds, and you have one single life that is enough to justify abundantly all the fuss and bother of keeping a college going.

No one can tell you how much progress Cornell is making at any given time along the lines indicated. But I'd say it was a pretty encouraging sign when a handful of dumb students are willing to forego their morning sleep, cut their eight-o'clocks, and lie on their stomachs in the wet grass just to find out what a Canada goose actually does when he eats his breakfast.

Law School Library Occupies Spacious Wing in Myron Taylor Hall

About ATHLETICS

LOSE TRACK MEET

The track team lost to Pennsylvania, 45-90, in Philadelphia May 10, the first time since 1933.

Captain Robert C. Randall '41 in the 440-yard run, Nathaniel E. White '41 in the two-mile run, and Warwick McCutcheon '41 in the hammer throw, were the only Cornell winners. Cornell's best showing was in the two-mile run, where Everett W. Jameson, Jr. '43 finished second and Robert A. Beck '42, third. Cornell performers were shut out of the two dashes and the high and broad jumps.

Beetem of Pennsylvania set up the meet's one new record: a discus throw of 153 feet $\frac{1}{8}$ inch. This bettered the old record of 151 feet $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches set by John F. Anderson '29, the 1932 Olympic discus champion, in 1929.

SEVEN CREWS RACE

By one-fifth of a second, or two feet more or less, the Varsity crew lost to Syracuse May 10 in their first race on Onondaga Lake since 1934. The crews rowed two miles in the late evening, delayed more than an hour by wind and rough water. In the two other races, shortened to $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles, the Cornell Junior Varsity won by five lengths and the Freshmen lost by three lengths. The times appear in "Scores of the Teams."

The Varsity race was started at 8:25, Syracuse going into a half-length lead in the first 600 yards. At the mile, Syracuse was a length ahead, rowing 34 strokes to the minute. Cornell held to a steady 32 that began to produce results. Gradually the Cornell shell crept up and finally, with a quarter-mile to go, went ahead of Syracuse. When Cornell had a deck-length lead, Syracuse stepped up the pace to 38 then 40 strokes a minute and pulled up even. In the last fifty feet, Syracuse gained its narrow margin of victory.

There was virtually no competition in the Junior Varsity race. Syracuse started ahead, but faded quickly, and Cornell rowed a steady pace to cross the finish line five lengths ahead.

The Freshmen race was rowed in rough water, and both crews splashed badly in the early stages. Syracuse went ahead a half-length in the first half-mile, and gradually pulled away by rowing a slightly higher beat than Cornell. Once, with less than a mile to go, Cornell rallied to reduce the Syracuse lead, but the eventual victors simply stepped up the beat until the threat was ended.

The Varsity 150-pound crew defeated Rutgers by six lengths over the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths on the Raritan River at New Brunswick, N. J., May 10. Cornell was timed in 8:59, Rutgers in 9:27.6. The Freshman 150-pound crew failed to finish in another race with Rutgers when one of the oarsmen disabled the shell by putting his foot through the bottom.

In races on Cayuga Inlet May 10, a second 150-pound crew defeated the second crew of Lafayette High School of Buffalo, and the Lafayette "A" crew defeated the third lightweight eight. Both races were one mile.

ARMY WINS LACROSSE

The US Military Academy lacrosse team defeated Cornell, 17-6, on Lower Alumni Field May 10. The Campbell brothers again headed Cornell scorers, Richard L. '41 getting three goals and Seth J. '44, two.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE ENDS

The "Reds" defeated the "Whites," 20-13, in an intrasquad football game before Cornell Day visitors after the Varsity track meet on Schoellkopf Field May 3. The game climaxed spring practice, although four drills in passing and kicking were held last week.

New names dotted the line-ups and familiar faces were few and far between. Both teams depended principally on running attacks to gain ground, the "Whites" marching sixty-three yards in one scoring advance and the "Reds" moving eighty yards for another.

These teams started, with many substituted from the squad of seventy that has been learning fundamentals this spring:

"Reds": Left end, Stacy C. Mosser, Jr. '44; left tackle, Whitney C. Doe '43; left guard, Francis G. Paul '44; center, James L. Blanchard '43; right guard, Frank E. Barnes, Jr. '44; right tackle, Robert H. Anderson '44; right end, Joseph S. Pattison '44; quarterback, Walter F. Pfeffer '44; left halfback, Charles P. Weiss '44; right halfback, Howard W. Blose '43; fullback, Henry S. Dragon '42.

Promising Freshman halfbacks this year are two Negroes, Samuel R. Pierce, Jr. of Glen Cove and Charles R. Robinson of Madison, N. J. Pierce was on the Dean's list for high scholarship in the College of Arts and Sciences the first term. Robinson is likewise an excellent student in the College of Agriculture. He is the son of Dr. Aubrey E. Robinson '20; plans to follow his father in the Veterinary College. A brother, Aubrey E. Robinson, Jr., is a Sophomore in Arts.

HOLD BASEBALL LEAD

The baseball team lost and won on a week-end expedition, dropping a 2-0 decision in five innings to Princeton at Princeton May 9 and defeating Columbia, 7-2, at New York City May 10.

Cornell finished the week still in first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League. A non-league game with Colgate on Hoy Field May 6, Cornell lost, 8-2.

The Princeton game was interrupted in the sixth inning by a thunderstorm. Princeton scored its first run in the second inning off Philip Smith '42 on singles by MacCoy and Perina and Pearson's sacrifice. MacCoy scored the run. In the third, with Leo Hamalian '42 pitching, MacCoy scored again on a hit, an error, and Pearson's double. Robert C. Ochs '42 hit for two bases in the first half of the sixth, but it was cancelled by the storm as the game record reverted to the last half of the fifth inning.

Cornell took advantage of Columbia's errors and the wildness of the home pitcher, Ladin, to win in New York. Ladin issued eleven bases on balls, but held Cornell to four scattered hits. His teammates committed six errors.

Walter J. Sickles '41, Cornell's leading pitcher, held Columbia to four hits and struck out seven batters. Ronald E. Stillman '42 scored the first run in the first inning on a base on balls, a wild pitch, a sacrifice by Ochs, and another wild pitch. Columbia tied the score in the second inning and went ahead, 2-1, in the fifth.

With one out in the seventh, Cornell produced two runs without a hit. Ladin walked the first batter. Then, in succession, came a two-base error, two fielders' choices in which all runners were safe, and another error, this one at the plate. Cornell scored four more runs in the ninth on two hits, including a double by Stillman, two bases on balls, two sacrifices, and another home-plate error.

Standing of the League teams:

	W	L	PC
Cornell	6	2	.750
Dartmouth	3	2	.600
Princeton	3	3	.500
Pennsylvania	3	3	.500
Harvard	3	3	.500
Yale	2	3	.400
Columbia	2	6	.250

In the Colgate game, played on a muddy field, Cornell committed six errors. Smith and Raymond Jenkins '42 gave nine hits. Colgate broke a 2-2 tie with four runs in the eighth inning on three hits, two errors, and a sacrifice. Cornell scored its two runs in the third inning on two walks and hits by Ochs and Frank K. Finneran '41.

WIN TWO AT TENNIS

With a new line-up, the tennis team won two matches last week, defeating American University, 9-0, on the Cascadilla Courts May 8 and Penn State, 7-2, at State College, Pa., May 10. A match with Syracuse, scheduled on the Cascadilla Courts for May 7, was cancelled by rain.

Captain Kennedy Randall '41 continued at No. 1 and won both matches in straight sets. Howard S. Dye '41 was advanced to the No. 2 spot against American University, but John T. Riday '41 filled that position against Penn State. Both won. John E. Slater, Jr. '43 played at No. 3 and turned in a pair of victories. Others used in singles were John R. Dingle '42, Jerome I. Lieberthal '42, John M. Hansen '42, and Warren H. Fisher '43.

GOLFERS DROP THREE

Varsity golf team lost three more matches last week in the southern division of the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association. At State College, Pa., May 9 and 10, Cornell lost to Princeton, 4-5; to Pennsylvania, 1-8; and to Georgetown, 1-8.

Harry L. Bill, Jr. '41 won singles matches against Princeton and Pennsylvania and shared another point with Thomas W. Milligan '44 against Georgetown. Bill and Milligan also scored a best-ball point against Princeton, as did Captain John C. Sterling, Jr. '41 and Sidney B. Slocum '41 in singles matches.

FROSH LOSE ALL

Freshman teams were defeated in four engagements, exclusive of rowing, last week, with Penn State the victor in three of the contests. (See scores above.)

The track meet, one of the closest ever held on Schoellkopf, was decided in the final event, the broad jump, in which Landis and Nevill of Penn State placed first and second, respectively. Nevill alone scored 2.1 points, winning the high and low hurdles races and the 100-yard dash, and placing second in the 220-yard dash and the broad jump.

Double winners for Cornell were Howard W. Blose of Dayton, Ohio, in the shot put and discus throw, and John L. Haughwout of Montclair, N. J., in the high jump and pole vault. John F. Kandl of New York City won the mile run and finished second in the 880-yard run. Charles W. Pressler of Lakewood, Ohio, won the 220-yard dash and placed second at 100 yards.

VARSITY "C" BANQUET

Winners of the "C"—255 for this year—were guests of the Athletic Association at the third annual Varsity "C" Banquet in Willard Straight Memorial Room May 7. It was dedicated to the University of Pennsylvania, whose director of athletics, H. Jamison Swarts, was guest of honor.

Presiding as toastmaster, James Lynah '05, University Director of Physical Education and Athletics, said: "By this token-sincere tribute is paid to wearers of the Red and Blue with whom Cornell has enjoyed its longest continuous relationship in football and an ever-growing association in a wide area of athletic competition. The ties which bind our institutions spring from mutual respect and confidence, and from those acts of genuine friendship and fine sportsmanship which have stamped our relations through the years."

President Edmund E. Day expressed appreciation of the relationship and said that intercollegiate competition fits into the educational program of the University. He added that he would advocate more candid and open treatment of problems between rival institutions.

Swarts discussed noted figures in sports in the two institutions and pointed out that there have been no "quarrels" between Cornell and Pennsylvania.

Election of managers and the names of those who received the "C" in the basketball, boxing, wrestling, swimming, hockey, skiing, fencing, polo, and rifle-shooting we shall publish shortly. Winners of awards in fall sports and last spring have already appeared.

FUND GIFTS INCREASE

Cornell Alumni Fund reports for ten months of the current fiscal year, contributions of $53,657.12 from 3,895 subscribers. Goal for the year ending June 30 is $125,000 of unrestricted gifts to the University, with Class committees working to enlist contributors. Some 1,500 alumni in eighty committees are now busy soliciting their Classmates for Cornell.

Since May 1, the Alumni Fund office at 3 East Avenue has seen almost daily increase in the number of gifts received. In the ten months to May 1, twenty-two Classes have been credited with more than $1,000 each, and fourteen Classes each have more than 100 contributors.

First in amount given is the Class of '92, in which Robert T. Mickle is Alumni Fund representative and chairman of the committee. Next comes the Class of '15, with $1,862.24, Frank A. Gerould and Ruth Darville, chairmen; followed by '10 with $1,767.26, Harold T. Edwards and Mrs. Merton A. Darville (Isabel Shepard), chairmen; '09 with $1,553.38, Creed W. Fulton, chairman; and '00 with $1,498.80, Christopher W. Wilson, chairman.

In number of contributors, the Class of '16 leads all the rest with 146. Richard J. Foster, Jr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Moore (Helen G. Irish) are its chairmen. Second place May 1 was held by the Class of '36 with 130, Wallace W. Lee, Jr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Brunn (Marion R. Blenderman), chairmen. Next three highest were the Class of '18 with 124, Henry W. Roden and Mrs. James C. Huntington (Joanna M. Donlon), chairmen; '13 with 121, Walter A. Bridgeman and Bessie G. Secrest, chairmen; and '17 with 115, John C. C. Gardiner, chairman.

LETTERS

Subject to the usual restrictions of space and good taste, we shall print letters from subscribers on any side of any subject of interest to Cornellians. The ALUMNI NEWS often may not agree with the sentiments expressed, and disclaims any responsibility beyond that of fostering interest in the University.

MORE BASEBALL "GREATS"

TO THE EDITOR:

I note with interest Louis E. Johnson's letter in the April 17 NEWS, and also recall his interesting article of last year regarding Cornell baseball players of distinction. Johnson mentioned the assistance given him by Howard Cobb '95 and "Tar" Young '99. I knew Howard Cobb very well; probably better than many Cornellians, as he grew up in Ithaca and my native home was just a few miles west of town. The late Fordyce Cobb '93 (Howard's cousin) and Howard were the Ithaca High School baseball battery, and what a battery they were! Upon entering Cornell, Fordyce did not play baseball, but Howard started on the Varsity as a catcher, and a very able one he was. He then switched to pitcher, where he performed outstandingly. Consequently, I strongly believe that Howard Cobb belongs in Johnston's "Oldsters" group, and am sure many Cornellians will agree with me.

I also noted that in the "Oldsters" Ed Young '94 is placed as "utility." I knew him well also, and cannot conceive of his playing any other position than catcher. By this I do not mean to infer that he should have preference over Harry Taylor '88, who was without question the greatest of all Cornell catchers. I might add that if my memory is correct, Ed Young was in his Senior year captain of the baseball team, captain of the football team, and also found time to be leader of the Glee Club. Then for years Ed was catcher for the alumni when they played the Varsity at Commencement time on Percy Field.

Another who justly belongs in the "Oldsters" group is that excellent outfielder, John W. Towle '94. He was an outstanding fielder, batter, thrower, and general all-around player.

But in my estimation the best all-around player of all time was George ("Caddy") Cadmus '92, of Brooklyn. He was an excellent player in any position, from right field to catcher. Cornell then had an excellent pitcher whose name I do not recall, and "Caddy" started as catcher. The following year, Cornell was short of pitchers. No one knew that "Caddy" could pitch, but he proved to be a "whiz" and later it developed that he could play any position in the infield or outfield. And in listing catchers of yesteryear, "Artie" Field '91 should not be overlooked.

In 1885 or '86, Cornell had a very outstanding team. Its manager was Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor '86, one of Cornell's most famous students who afterwards went into the US diplomatic service. During 1893 he was Minister or Ambassador to Spain. Cornell had a top-notch battery—Newbury and Hall—considered about the best of college teams. Newbury was a brother of the late Professor Spencer B. Newbury, Chemistry, know to many of us of the '90s.

In those years, the famous original New York Giants—Buck Ewing, Delephantys, and all—generally paid a visit to Ithaca. One year, Newbury was just too strong for the Giants and the Varsity defeated them. During the game, what a furor was created when the Giants' pitcher accidentally hit Newbury at bat! Also on that team was a shortstop named Diamond, said to have been excellent big league timber but he decided to go into business, instead.

One more detail I am sure will be remembered by the "older timers." That was the annual Faculty-Varsity game played on the Quadrangle. It always drew a large attendance of students and town and gown. I recall only two of the Faculty team, the beloved Professors Benjamin Ide Wheeler and Horatio S. White. What a combination of shortstop-second base they were! Professor White was a graduate of Harvard, or else I would suggest him as the best all-time Cornell second baseman. He was far ahead of any college player that I ever saw, during my time.—HENRY BREWER '94

VETERINARIAN WRITES

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to take this opportunity to commend the article in the ALUMNI NEWS on the Veterinary College. The veterinary profession has made great strides forward in the last fifty years, but articles such as this are needed to acquaint Cornellians and others of its present position.

For the last year I have been practicing with Dr. John V. Hills '12, who has been located here in Gowanda for thirty years. Many people seem surprised to learn that there is such a thing as a young veterinarian, or a veterinary student, or that it took five years of college to become a veterinarian. However, I like the work and can see from direct experience that there is need in every medium-sized community for a qualified veterinarian.

HEADS NEW DIVISION

Professor Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, Agricultural Economics, has been appointed by Governor Herbert H. Lehman as the first State Commissioner of Commerce. He heads a new Division of Commerce established by the State Legislature to serve as a clearing house on industrial problems, promote new business in the State, and seek to curb any exodus of business and industry. It combines the former State Planning Council, of which Professor Catherwood was appointed chairman in 1936, and the State Publicity Bureau, and will have separate bureaus of industry, planning, and publicity headed by deputy commissioners.

Professor Catherwood has been at Cornell since 1927, that year having received the MS and the previous year the BS at University of Illinois. While he was in the Graduate School he was an assistant in Farm Management and instructor in Agricultural Economics; became assistant professor of Business Management in 1930, professor in 1936, and two years ago was appointed professor of Public Administration in the Department of Agricultural Economics. With leave of absence from the University, Commissioner Catherwood began his new duties in Albany May 1.

CORNELL ENGINEERS MOVE

Whitman, Requardt & Smith, who have conducted engineering practice in Baltimore, Md., for many years, have moved their offices to their own building at 1304 St. Paul Street. An additional office has been opened at 11 North Pearl Street, Albany.

Last August, the firm was awarded the first negotiated fixed-fee engineering contract let by the US Army, at Edgewood Arsenal, Md. Construction cost will approach $20,000,000.

Sixteen Cornellians are with the organization, headed by Ezra B. Whitman '01, University Trustee. Others are Howard W. Underwood '01, Gustav J. Requardt '09, Benjamin L. Smith '14, Theodore W. Hacker '16, Frederick B. Mullen '16, Murray G. Waters '22, Richard F. Graef '25, Henry W. Hedde '25, Harold E. Kunsch '27, A. Russell Vollmer '27, Roy H. Ritter '30, Roger T. Powers '35, Robert M. Reindollar, Jr. '38, and Earl D. Causey '40.

"It is our experience," says Requardt, "that Cornell graduates are as good as those from any other school, and they suit our organization better in that we have studied from the same textbooks and, being familiar with Cornell symbols and formulae, we can start our discussions quicker because of the non-necessity of arguing about preliminary set-ups."

MRS. LYNNA CHRISTENS NEW VARSITY SHELL ON BOATHOUSE FLOAT

Fenner

Breaking a bottle of Cayuga Lake water over the bow of "The Cayugan" is Mrs. James Lynna (Elizabeth E. Beckwith) '03, wife of the Director of Physical Education and Athletics. Coxswain Charles E. Boak '41, son of Alumni Trustee Thomas I. S. Boak '14, holds a hammer over the frail shell, watched by Commodore John W. Kruse '41, son of Walter O. Kruse '12, Manager John W. Hickenlooper '41, and Coach Harrison Sanford. Varsity oarsmen proudly holding the shell, in the positions they row, are (from stern to bow): Stroke W. Nicholas Kruse '42, brother of the Commodore, John G. Aldworth '41, William W. Dickhart III '43, Franklin P. Eggert '42, John C. Perry '41, Stanley W. Allen, Jr. '41, DuBois L. Jenkins '42, and Richard G. Davis '41.

HOTEL EZRA CORNELL A Brilliant Success

Weeks of planning by the student board of managers and hard work by most of the undergraduates in Hotel Administration gave enjoyment to the 350 guests who attended the sixteenth annual Hotel Ezra Cornell in Willard Straight Hall May 9 and 10.

But a surprise announcement of a gift of $10,000 for scholarships in Hotel Administration was entirely unforeseen and most pleasing to "the management." Frank Andrews, president of the New Yorker Hotel and of the New York City Hotel Association, presented to Professor Howard B. Meek the Ralph Hitz Memorial Fund, named for the late president of the New Yorker. He made his announcement at the dinner which climaxed Hotel Ezra Cornell Saturday evening in the Willard Straight Memorial Room.

Besides the presence of leading hotelmen of the United States, Hotel Ezra Cornell this year signalized the hospitality of Pan-American nations with presentation of their countries' flags by Senor Cayetano de Quesada, Cuban consul in New York City; Mark Egan, proprietor of the King Edward Hotel, Niagara Falls, Canada; and Senor V. H. Moscoso of the Mexican Touring Association. Principal speaker at the banquet was Franklin Moore, president of the American Hotel Association and managing director of the Penn-Harris Hotel in Harrisburg, Pa. President Edmund E. Day spoke of the importance and growth of the Department of Hotel Administration at the University, and Professor Meek responded briefly. Toastmaster was Richard E. Holtzman '41 of Millersburg, Pa., managing director of Hotel Ezra Cornell.

As guests entered the lobby of the "hotel-for-a-day," they saw an unusual and beautiful fountain in a huge copper basin set in a mound of growing flowers. Varicolored lights played on shimmering sprays of water shot into the air in eleven different combinations of volume, height, and pattern. This was the nine-years' labor of Dr. Clarence S. DeLong of Reading, Pa., whose son, Robert D. DeLong, is a Sophomore in Hotel Administration. In a corner was a dinner table set entirely with glass, including tablecloth, dishes, service utensils, and even the menu printed on glass. As favors at the dinner, guests received specially bound souvenir copies of the book, Our Cornell. After dinner, many were entertained in the Willard Straight Theater with a concert by the Glee Club, and later they crowded Memorial Room for the gala Hotel Ezra Cornell dance until three Sunday morning.

Many Cornellians were among the visiting hotelmen who came for the week-end. Four hundred undergraduates, members of the Faculty, and visitors were addressed by Joseph P. Binns '28, manager of the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Ill., to start the program Friday afternoon. At the annual picnic which followed at Taughannock, a hotly-contested softball game was won, 17-9 (it is said), by a team from even-year Classes captained by Albert E. Koehl '28, defeating an odd-year team with Professor John Courtney '25 as captain. Grohmann Cup for the winner of the annual golf tournament was presented to David M. Connors '34 of New York City, by H. Victor Grohmann '28.

Cornell Society of Hotelmen at its annual meeting Saturday morning elected directors from odd-year Classes to serve for two years. These are Dr. Alfred L. Olsen '25 of Ithaca; Edward T. Schimmel '27, Schimmel Hotels Co., Omaha, Nebr.; B. Franklin Copp '29, Stouffer's Restaurants, Cleveland, Ohio; Ernst Clarenbach, Jr. '31, Hotel Medford, Milwaukee, Wis.; Lynn P. Himmelman '33, Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco, Cal.; William H. Harned '35, Stephen Girard Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa.; Benjamin B. Adams II '37, Beechwood Hotel, Summit, N. J.; Alexander J. Kish '39, Hotel Administration; and Holtzman, managing director of this year's Hotel Ezra Cornell. Directors elected as first vice-president of the Society Professor Charles I. Sayles '26, Hotel Administration; second vice-president, Richard D. Vanderwarker '33, Hotel Sherman, Chicago, Ill.; and re-elected Professor Courtney secretary-treasurer.

CLASS OF '43 women have elected Betty Jane Bochstedt of Auburn to be their Junior Class president.

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

NAVY BALL will have three bands this year, the committee announced last week. Before Jimmy Dorsey and Charlie Spivak start to play for dancing, the ROTC Band will entertain for a half-hour starting at 10, with a special program for George L. Coleman '95, who retires this year as its director. Proceeds of the Navy Ball are used to take the ROTC Band to out-of-town football games.

"NO SMOKING" signs have been removed from many University buildings, and in their place have been installed urns of sand to receive half-burned cigarettes. The Department of Buildings and Grounds has become realistic!

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL at its meeting May 11 elected as president William D. Graham, Jr. '42, Delta Chi. Vice-president is H. Craig Allen '43, Sigma Phi; secretary-treasurer, Julius L. Hoyt '43, Chi Psi. Senior members of the judiciary board will be Harvey E. Schock, Jr., Pi Kappa Alpha, and Ormond M. Hessler, Delta Upsilon; Junior members, John E. Walker, Zeta Psi, and George B. Marchev, Delta Tau Delta. The Sun announced this as a sweeping victory for the "Theta Delt coalition."

FEEES for summer use of the new University golf course are announced by the Athletic Office as $15 for members of the Faculty and Administration; $23 for member and wife; $10 for regular students during the Summer Session; and $15 for Summer Session students. Students pay $5 for the spring term and $5 for the fall term. Greens fee for students is fifty cents; others, $1.

SAGE CHAPEL CHOIR broadcast from Station WHAM in Rochester May 10 on an NBC network. This was the first of six Saturday afternoon broadcasts sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs as a prelude to its "festival of American music" at its convention in Los Angeles in June. Sage Chapel Choir was also invited to appear in Los Angeles, but was unable to accept.

ORDER of the Ithaca Common Council to restore approximately $600,000 of University property to the tax-exempt rolls, reported here last week, was not accepted by the Board of Assessors. Assessor Henry C. Thorne '10, after conferring with the State Tax Commission in Albany, returned to report that "the Council is without constitutional authority to question the judgment in this instance." He said, "The items we thought taxable are still on the tax roll and it is now a matter for the courts to decide." Next day, the Common Council adopted a budget which calls for a city tax rate of $14.80 per $1,000 of assessment, the TRANSPORTATION for some of the distinguished guests who attended Hotel Ezra Cornell last week-end was arranged with that quintessence of courtesy that all good hotelmen strive for but few attain in such perfection. A "Hotel Ezra Cornell" flagship of American Airlines brought seventeen of them from New York City to Syracuse Saturday morning and from the airport they were transported to Ithaca in limousines with a police escort through Syracuse. That evening, to enable guests to stay through the festivities, Lehigh Valley officials in Ithaca cooperated to reroute their crack night flyer from the main line along Seneca Lake to come through Ithaca and pick up a special New York City sleeper at 1:35 a.m.

highest in fifteen years. It provides a contingent fund of $40,576 to include possible expenses of the dispute with the University. The Council had provisionally accepted a University offer to increase its annual contribution from $9,250 to $12,000 in return for tax exemption on certain University properties. At the same meeting, the Common Council voted to reimburse Thorne for the expense of his Albany trip.

DELTA UPSILON chapter is mourning the death of William E. Perry, who had served the house since 1897. Even since his retirement seven years ago, he had come up the Hill to help at Reunion time and for the Faculty teas and other special functions. He died at his home downtown March 21.

ZETA PSI chapters in twenty-nine colleges and universities will send delegates to the ninety-fourth annual convention of the fraternity in Ithaca, June 26-28. Fittingly enough, this first convention of the fraternity to be held on a college campus comes to Cornell where Zeta Psi was the first to install a chapter. Frank B. Bateman '19, national trustee of the fraternity, is chairman of the convention committee.

SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER May 18 is Professor John C. Schroeder of Yale University.

LECTURES this week include Hans Jacob, a German refugee, "Some Aspects of the Fall of France," auspices of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, May 11; Professor George E. Moore of Cambridge University, "Some Forms of Skepticism," on the Goldwin Smith Foundation, May 12; and John M. Sitton, mural painter, "The Method and Technique of Buon Fresco," auspices of the College of Architecture, May 14.

WOODFORD PRIZE, the oldest at the University, was won in its seventy-first year by Herbert L. Abrams '41 of Brooklyn. His address, "Light in the Shadows," urged general tolerance of opinions, saying that law enforcement must be in the hands of proper officials, not of mobs. Abrams also won the '94 Debate Prize with his speech on the assigned question, "How Far Can Democracy be Tolerant and Survive?"

ABERDEEN-ANGUS show and sale in the Stock Judging Pavilion May 12 was largely attended by breeders and buyers. Our private scout reports that Myron M. Fuerst '30 of Pine Plains was there in his capacity as president of the Eastern Aberdeen-Angus Association, as were also his brother, Edward L. Fuerst '33, William G. Mennen '08, Philip L. Davidson '18, and Marcel K. Sessler '12 and Mrs. Sessler. Professor Robert B. Hinman, Animal Husbandry, was in charge for the University.

CCC CAMP which was established in 1935 on upper Mitchell Street to further work on the University Arboretum has been closed by the Government. Reason given is the decreasing number of applicants because of fewer families on relief and increasing employment.

WILLARD STRAIGHT HALL board of managers has elected Edwin M. Cronk '42 of Minneapolis, Minn., chairman for next year. Paul W. Leighton '42 of Twin Falls, Idaho, is the new secretary of the board.

FIRST PRIZE of $25, contributed by members of the Faculty for the winner of a student art exhibit in Willard Straight Hall, was awarded to Albert J. Mangones '41 of Port-au-Prince, Haiti, for his sculptured head entitled "The Blind." Fifty paintings, drawings, etchings, and sculptures were selected to be hung in the Willard Straight art gallery from more than 100 submitted. Among those given honorable mention was a still life in oils, "Plumber's Paradise," by Nicholas Drahos '41, all-American football player.

PAN-AMERICAN BANQUET at the Cosmopolitan Club was the occasion for announcing the engagement of Norman C. Morgan '41 of Hanover, N. H., to Maritza Leskovar '44, late of Czechoslovakia. Morgan is the son of Frank M. Morgan '09.

LAST REMINDER of the old Happy Hour Theater in Ithaca passed with the death, May 7, of Daniel H. Malone who used to run it. Its former location was remodelled last year into a huge, light reading-room for the Cornell Library.

NECROLOGY

PROFESSOR JOSEPH ELLIS TREVOR, Thermodynamics, Emeritus, died in his sleep May 4, 1941, at his home in Ithaca, 4 The Circle. At seventy-seven, he had been in good health, taking daily walks about the Campus. In 1888, he enrolled in the University for a special course in Chemistry, went to the University of Leipzig in 1890 and there received the PhD in 1892. That year he became assistant professor of Chemistry and was appointed professor in 1900. From 1908 until his retirement in 1934 he was professor of Thermodynamics. He founded the Journal of Physical Chemistry in 1896 and was editor until 1909; in 1927 wrote a textbook, The General Theory of Thermodynamics. Alpha Sigma Phi. Children, Karl R. Trevor '15, Mrs. Margaret Trevor Ford '15, Mrs. Roscoe H. Fuller (Barbara E. Trevor) '24, Bertram G. Trevor '28.

'89—EDWARD STANDISH WESTBROOK, April 20, 1941, in Santa Monica, Cal., where he lived after retiring from business in Omaha, Nebr., in 1934. He entered the Science Course in 1885 from St. John's Military Academy and remained three years. He entered a bank in Omaha in 1890 and later the livestock and grain business, becoming president of the Westbrook Gibbons Grain Co. and later vice-president and a director of Trans Mississippi Grain Co. Psi Upsilon. Son, Edward S. Westbrook, Jr. '31.

'91 PhB, '93 PhD—ALBERT ALEXANDER BIRD, March 26, 1941. He had practiced law in Cattaraugus for many years, and was Surrogate of Cattaraugus County. He entered the Optional Course in 1887 from Ellicottville, but transferred to Philosophy, and held the Cornell Fellowship in American History for two years in the Graduate School. Concerning THE FACULTY

STANTON GRIFFIS '10 has been reappointed by Governor Lehman to the University Board of Trustees for a five-year term expiring in 1946. He is chairman of the finance committee of the Board.

PROFESSOR CLYDE B. MOORE, Rural Education, has been elected president of the Ithaca Rotary Club, and Professor Benton S. Monroe '96, English, was re-elected archivist.

PROFESSOR JOSEPH A. DYE, PhD '25, Physiology, on sabbatic leave second term, is studying and doing research at the Medical College in New York on carbohydrate and fat metabolism in relation to the endocrine glands.

PROFESSOR KENNETH POST, PhD '37, Floriculture, described the work of the Floriculture Department on light, temperature, and sub-irrigation at florists' schools at the University of Illinois, March 3-5, and at Iowa State University, March 6 and 7.

REPORT of experiments made by Professors Oscar D. Anderson, PhD '29, Psychobiology, and Richard Parmenter '17, Psychology, at the University's animal behavior farm with fifty sheep and dogs is summarized in a recent Associated Press story. The animals show both the causes and possible cures for nervous disorders similar to those which afflict humans.

PROFESSOR ALEX F. GUSTAFSON, PhD '20, Soil Technology, is the author of a new textbook, Soils and Soil Management. Its aim is to help the beginning student with practical soil management; deals especially with causes of soil erosion and its control.

PROFESSOR ALLAN G. NEWHALL, PhD '29, Plant Pathology, and Frank L. Stark, Jr., Fellow in Plant Pathology, have been experimenting for three years on the use of tear gas in soil to destroy weeds prior to planting, and have progressed with the work to a semi-commercial stage.

DR. S. FELDMAN '25, instructor in the Psychology Department from 1920-39, is doing research in the Department now. He recently reported in the American Journal of Psychology eleven ages of man in comparison to Shakespeare's seven.

PROFESSOR GEORGE L. KREEZER, Psychology, Rutherford T. Walsh '42, and Mrs. M. T. Long, wife of Professor F. A. Long, Chemistry, presented a paper on "A Comparison of the Electro-encephalo-gram (brain potentials) in Human Epilepsy with Those Found in Noise-induced Seizures and Electrically-induced Seizures in Rats" at the annual meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association at Brooklyn College.

STORY OF HOME ECONOMICS

Professor Flora Rose, who retired last October as Director of the New York State College of Home Economics, writes the story of "Forty Years of Home Economics at Cornell University," in the Fifteenth Annual Report of the College.

This story occupies seventy-two pages of the 150-page Report, and starts even as far back as the Morrill Land-Grant Act of 1862, which expanded the educational horizon to include "such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts." Since farms and homes are integral parts of the same enterprise, it was natural that the study of home economics was associated with the study of agriculture.

Miss Rose gives main credit to Liberty Hyde Bailey as the first sponsor of home economics study at Cornell, and to Martha Van Rensselaer for pioneering in the beginning and promoting the ultimate achievements of the College whose building bears her name.

In 1907, Miss Rose joined the staff, and from then until Miss Van Rensselaer's death these co-workers carried forward the work in home economics which culminated, in 1925, in the establishment of a new College at Cornell. From 1932, the year of Miss Van Rensselaer's death, until October 15, 1940, Miss Rose was Director of the College.

This brief note about "Forty Years of Home Economics at Cornell" can give no idea of the spirit of Miss Rose's parting words about the great enterprise in which she played her own great part. Something of that spirit is shown, however, in the sentence with which the story is concluded:

"As home economics learns to use well the tools at its disposal, it has within its grasp the opportunity to play a part of far-reaching importance in re-shaping human relationships, in re-orienting home and family life, in giving to science and art a meaning in terms of daily living, in renewing respect for the manual labor that is conducted with care, thought, and intelligence—in short, in making human health, human conduct, and human welfare the outstanding goals of human enterprise."

The Report may be obtained upon request to the Office of Publication, Roberts Hall, Ithaca.—B.A.

Concerning THE ALUMNI

Personal items and newspaper clippings about all Cornellians are earnestly solicited.

'83 PhB—CHARLES R. BROWNING, retired merchant who lives at Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J., celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday January 20. He was captain of the Varsity football team and of the first Rugby team at Cornell.

'91 PhB, '97 PhD—EVERETT W. OLMSTED, member of the Department of Romance Languages from 1893 to 1914, spent last winter in Morelos, Mexico. He writes that he will be in Ithaca for his Fifty-year Reunion in June.

'93—WALTER F. BROWN has retired and is living at 1612 East Mabel Street, Tucson, Ariz.

'97 LLB—PARLEY P. CHRISTENSEN is a city councilman of Los Angeles, Calif., and may be addressed at the City Hall.

'00—STEPHEN T. DELAMATER lives in Bethesda, Md., and commutes weekly to New York City where he is a consulting engineer practicing in the field of depreciation. He has two sons, one in a South Carolina military school and the other in a Washington, D. C. preparatory school.

'05 AB—MATHILDA A. KOEHLER is teaching in the Stamford (Conn.) High School and lives in Springfield Gardens, Long Island.

'09 LLB—DUANE M. WARD is practicing law in Peabody, Kans., where he lives at 401 North Walnut. He has two sons, one in business with him and one an architect with the United States Engineers.

'10 CE—EDGAR R. CROFTS, formerly general superintendent of electrical operations with the Rochester Gas & Electric Corp., has been appointed assistant to the vice-president of the corporation, in charge of operations.

BOB MORSE is now permanently located in Ithaca, where he is practicing law at 521 Wyckoff Road. He is in charge of our Ithaca group and is making plans for our Class Reunion dinner Saturday evening, June 14.

The Utica district will be represented by ART COTINS, president of Moser & Cotins, Advertising, 10 Hopper Street, Utica.

NORM STAFFORD is with the Diemolding Corp., manufacturers of molded parts of plastic materials in Canastota.

GAY H. BROWN is counsel for the State of New York Public Service Commission, with offices in State Office Building, Albany. Gay never misses a Reunion.

MARSHALL VAN DERHOEF recently returned to this county from occupied France, where he has resided for fifteen years. "Merry" will tell us of some of his interesting and exciting experiences when we meet at Reunion time. His temporary address is care of YMCA, Jersey City, N. J.

DANA BURNET is busy writing movie scripts and has just completed a new picture, "The Great Commandment." He writes, from 9550 Cedarbrook Drive, Beverly Hills, Cal., that it will be impossible to be with us this June.

'12—ERNEST F. BOWEN is manager of The Anchor Stoker Co. of Worcester, Mass., where he lives at 36 Richards Street. His daughter, Conradene, was Class baby; is now Mrs. Bradley M. Cooper and lives in Wilmington, N. C. His other daughter, Patricia, was recently married to Leroy W. Davis and is living in Concord, N. H.

A recent issue of his fraternity chapter paper stated, "JOHN M. DEMAREST, who has been on our lost files for some time, has been found," with International Business Machines Corp. in Endicott. If the chapter had invested in a copy of 1913's Twenty-five-year Reunion volume, they would have found him long ago (adv.?).

And ALEXANDER LYLE crashed his chapter paper recently because he married Francis Louise Vose of Monterey, Mass. The undergraduate editor further records that Lyle "studied" Civil Engineering at Cornell and proves it by the fact that he is one now with the Carleton Co. of New York City.

'14 LLB—BYRON L. SWAN's daughter, Nancy, was married to Alan H. Anderson, son of Maxwell Anderson, playwright, in New York City March 17.

'14 ME—JOHN C. NULSEN for the last two years has been living at 915 Moulton Street, North Muskegon, Mich.

LAURIN ZILLIACUS is quoted in Hufvudsbladet (leading Swedish daily in Finland) March 14 in connection with a proposal to lengthen school vacation to permit school children to assist in urgent agricultural work. To judge from his picture in the paper, he has retained his hair to about the same extent as your Class secretary.

ALLAN W. CARPENTER is division manager of Ohio and Kentucky for the Franklin Life Insurance Co. at 632 Keith Building, Cleveland, Ohio. Carp is living temporarily at the Hotel Cleveland; his family will move to Cleveland from Swarthmore, Pa., July 1. He is married and has three girls: Joan, nineteen; Alison, sixteen; and Beatrice, six. He will definitely be back for Reunion.

It was a great surprise to get a letter from L. J. (WINDY) MEAD. He is with the Standard Vacuum Oil Co. in Nanking China, and is the proud father of two boys. He says, "Have fixed things so, the political situation not interfering, I'll be on hand for the Reunion June 13. The thirteenth always was my lucky day. I am returning herewith my measurement card together with check for $8 which will, I hope, reserve me one of those natty coats."

ALLEN FRICK has moved to 318 Lincoln Avenue, Ridgewood, N. J.

ANTHONY O. SHALLNA, former president of the Cornell Club of New England and a Boston attorney, reports that our State Department in a brochure dated February 1, 1941, lists all the foreign Consular offices in the United States, recognizing all the embassies, legations and consulates of foreign states now under control or domination of the totalitarian states. Shallna, who had received his exequatur from the State Department as Honorary Consul for Lithuania in Boston before the beginning of the Second World War, is still carrying on his work as formerly. Upon demobilization from the Army in 1918, Shallna had a scholarship in one of the first classes of the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University, where he studied Russian and prepared for the US Consular and Diplomatic Service.

GEORGE J. HECHT, known throughout the country as the publisher of Parents' Magazine, has done it again. This time he has launched True Comics, a new magazine for boys and girls of all ages. To quote George, "True Comics is an antidote for the lurid 'comic' magazines widely read by children in spite of the increasing protests of their parents and teachers." He adds, "We have no complaint against the comic strips printed in newspapers. Our fight is being waged against the so-called 'comic' magazines which for the most part are cheap, fantastic, and overstimulating for young minds."

In full color, True Comics will deal with exciting events of past and present history. The first issue in seventeen pages features the life of Winston Churchill as "World Hero No. 1." Succeeding numbers will follow with picturestories of "Simon Bolivar, South American Liberator," "Famous Failure" by Hendrick W. Van Loon '05, "The Origin of the Olympic Marathon," and many other interesting and instructive subjects.

Shirley Temple, Mickey Rooney, Gloria Jean, Virginia Weidler, and Janet Cantor (daughter of Eddie Cantor) are junior advisory editors of the magazine. Senior advisory editors are George H. Gallup, director, Institute of Public Opinion; Gertrude Hartman, authoress; Professors Arthur T. Jersild, David S. Muzzey and Daniel C. Knowlton; Clara Savage Littledale, and Van Loon.

Eleanor Roosevelt in her syndicated newspaper column, "My Day," recently mentioned True Comics with approval. Since he was business manager of the Cornell Era, George has published many magazines, all constructive, instructive, and interesting. He is president of The Parents' Institute, 52 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

'18, '19 AB—STANLEY N. SHAW is vice-president of Standard & Poor's Corp., 345 Hudson Street, New York City. It is just four weeks to our Five-year Reunion, and it's going to be a close race between our Reunion committee and Uncle Sam. The latter has really taken heavy toll of our brethren. Therefore, it is even more important that those of us who are not yet in uniform get behind this movement and assure its success. If you haven't sent in your Reunion card, please do so without further delay. This is very important to the Reunion committee in its plan making, especially costume ordering. We have received returns on 250 out of 1,000, with 25 saying that they will return in June. Some Classes would probably be satisfied with 10 percent, but not us! We are calling on you, PERFECT '36.

By George S. Smith, Guest Correspondent

While trying to get things lined up for a successful Alumni Fund campaign, I've had some correspondence with some of the guys we knew when, and so I'm about to pass on some of the vital statistics, or what have you.

ELLIOT HOOPER, who used to kick the ball around for Dobie and Snavely, writes from Worcester, Mass., on some Ingersoll-Rand stationery saying that he is working as a sales engineer in the Worcester area. Hoops goes on to say that he'd been to the wedding of GRAHAM MARX, who managed the crew, to ANN K. GROSE of Wells College and Detroit.

Before I forget, have you sent your dollar or so in to the Alumni Fund office? Howsabout doing it right now? We had only 78 guys out of a Class of over 900 give anything last year. And to compare with that, I'm living with a guy from Dartmouth '38 who reports that out of a '38 class of 517 men, there were 403 contributors to the Dartmouth Fund. It's not the amount; it's the fact that you gave something that counts.

DAVE SANDERS, who was largely responsible for the big Spring Day Circus three years ago, uses some of his company stationery to say that he is field assistant in the Chicago office of the Travelers Insurance Co.

And JACK STEWART, who worked for the Sun, is with the FBI somewhere.

Have Fun and Send in Your Contribution to the Fund!

1939 WOMEN

By Sally Steinman, Roving (?) Reporter

"Re-une in June—bug."

That was Sal Splain's idea for a motto for our First Reunion. I persuaded her to drop it because I figured that the '39ers would need no flag-waving to bring them to Ithaca in droves. Gee, skids, we've got a record Class, so we've got to have a record Reunion. Sal's idea of finding out about transportation is a good one. You may have a chance to ride in somebody's golden chariot, when right now you're thinking maybe you won't come because bus connections are so bad. None of that, now: "All out, it's a rout!"

My head aches from trying to think of pleasing costumes for you. Does this idea meet with approval? If so, we'll use it, and it will be $1: a big red purse into which you can pile all your junk, and a red jockey (ski) cap, both with '39 numerals. We can all plan to wear white dresses. Any dissenters will please yell now, to me at Manlius, N. Y.

"Now don't be a prune—let's ALL Re-une." See you in Ithaca in June!

CLASS OF 1940

Women

By Carol B. Clark, Class Secretary
47 Cedar Street, Binghamton, New York

CAY STRONG is writing for The Evening

Star in Washington. Mail goes to her home, 3440 Thirty-fourth Place, Washington, D. C.

GENEVIEVE CALLAHAN has gone from Framingham, Mass., to Westfield State Farm, Bedford Hills, where she has been appointed assistant matron.

BETTY SPINK has been sent by the Pennsylvania Central Airlines to Washington, D. C. She lives at 214 Courthouse Road, Arlington, Va., when she isn't flying.

JANET MELLON was married to Dexter B. Farnsworth, III in January. Her address is 9 Minetta Street, New York City.

MARGOT SPIEGEL manages Birney's Tearoom in Grand Rapids, Mich., and lives in Grand Rapids at 157 North Prospect Street.

Our most sincere congratulations to Mrs. PEG CATLIN LEONARD and Doctor ED LEONARD '34 for telling us about whom I believe is the first Class Baby, born April 25, named Charles Edwin. Address all three at Milbrook, N. Y.

JANET MUDGE, now in Yale School of Nursing, has announced her engagement to FRANK R. REEVES '38. He is on the faculty of the public schools in Campbell, and is taking postgraduate work in Syracuse University.

April 26 was the wedding date of PEG RICHARDSON and HENRY M. JEWETT '40. Jewett is with Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City. Members of the wedding party include Rachel Borland, FRAN BOYJOHN '41 and EILEEN GALLAGHER WARREN.

A note from GOLDYE GREENBERG proves she is quite happy about being accepted at Albany College of Medicine in the coming year. Right now she is doing research in bacteriology at the Brooklyn Jewish Hospital; address, 1934 Bergen Street, Brooklyn.

My work recently took me East again, and in Schenectady I had the pleasure of running into RODNEY HATCH. He had only been there a week, having returned from Iowa, I believe, to work for the Locomotive Corp. on some defense projects. He was about to assist in the launching of a new Army super-tank.

Unfortunately, in Hartford, Conn., I did not get the opportunity to see any of the many fellows working for Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, but did manage to talk with NORM BRIGGS who is very much enjoying his work in the airplane industry. I did run across HAM LEEDOM who is in the insurance business in Hartford.

A very interesting letter from "SQUARY" RIERA in Habana, Cuba, tells that he is in charge of a department selling portable air-conditioning units, radio and telephone communications equipment, etc. He is likewise getting ready for his forthcoming marriage to BARBARA HART, '41 ME, on July 3. Squary doesn't know of another '40 Cornellian in Cuba, and would like to hear from some of his friends.

Congratulations and best wishes are in order for MARGARET RICHARDSON and HAL JEWETT who were married April 26 in Flushing, Long Island. Hal is with the Pennsylvania Hotel in New York.

FRANKIE STEPHENS writes to report that he is now doing 4-H Club work in Jefferson County, with headquarters in Watertown.

Mrs. Edna Ewell of Pavilion recently announced the engagement of her daughter Carolyn Elizabeth to DUANE SCHULTZ. Duane is teaching agriculture in Central School, Greenwood.

JAMES LYNN writes that he is in Company A, 7th Q. M. Regiment, at Camp Lee in Virginia. He expects to be there until July. He also mentions that JOE DELL is at the same camp.

ALAN MACROBERT writes that he is in the Hospital Corps of the Naval Reserve and is at present stationed on the USS Seattle in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

CLARE LYKE is regimental motor officer for the First Regiment of Field Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C. Clare is being kept very busy but is well and greatly enjoying his work.

From the land of Sunshine ??? (How about that, BEW WHITE?) come greetings to all of us from RUSSELL CHIRON who is in the 52d Signal Battalion at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

BRUCE NELSON is now in the 8th Signal Co. at Fort Jackson, S. C. He was formerly with the General Electric Co. in Pittsfield, Mass., but in December was ordered to active duty. He spent a week at West Point and then went down to Fort Jackson where he is a radio officer.

HARRY SCHMUCK of Canton, Ohio, graduate of Mount Union College in 1937 and from the Cornell Law School in June, 1940, is one of five lawyers participating in a $50,000 counsel fee which was allowed by Judge J. L. Floyd of Canton in a litigation by Vinko Mlinaric v. Dime Holding Co. The fee was allowed for obtaining a settlement of the litigation in the amount of approximately $500,000. Congratulations, Harry! May your fellow Law Classmates of 1940 have similar good fortune.

Congratulations are in order for WILLIAM HEDGES of Pine Plains, who recently married Edith Humphry of Pleasant Valley. The couple will make their home in Pine Plains where he is Central Dutchess County herd supervisor.

THE BIG RED TRACK TEAM

DRINKS

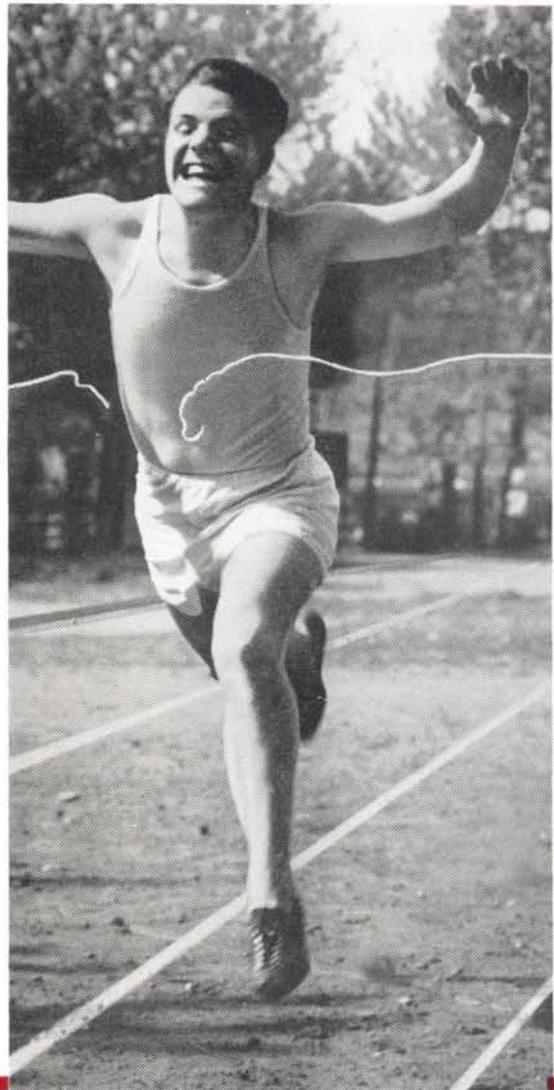

KNOX Gelatine

A runner streaks by and breaks the tape!
A high jump record is shattered! It takes staying power to win in track and field events.

Your "Big Red" trainer and coaches in many other colleges specify Knox Gelatine on their training tables. Of course, Knox Gelatine cannot make a team win. But coaches and trainers say athletes receiving Knox regularly do seem better able to keep up their endurance.

TRY DRINKING KNOX YOURSELF!

But you don't have to be an athlete to get tired. Why don't you try drinking Knox Gelatine to help keep up endurance? Knox is all protein, and tiredness is often caused by a lack of enough of the right proteins in the diet.

START THIS EASY KNOX-DRINKING ROUTINE TODAY!

Drink 4 envelopes of Knox Gelatine every day for 2 weeks, then 2 a day for 2 weeks. After that as you feel the need. Here's how to drink Knox:

1. Pour 1 envelope of plain, unflavored Knox Gelatine into a glass $\frac{3}{4}$ filled with water or fruit juice, not iced.

2. Let the liquid absorb the gelatine. Then stir briskly.

3. Drink immediately. If the gelatine thickens, stir again. Knox is tasteless, odorless.

At your grocer's in the regular 4 - envelope kitchen package or the money-saving 32-envelope package. Be sure it's plain, unflavored Knox Gelatine. Don't accept substitutes! For more information, write for free Knox booklet E, Knox Gelatine, Dept. 89, Johnstown, N. Y.
