

900 Charged in Demonstrations Here

South Africa Divestment Is Focus

More than 900 individuals, most of them students, and at least three dozen faculty and staff members, have been charged with violating the campus code of conduct over the past week. They repeatedly refused to leave Day Hall at the 5 p.m. closing time, as part of daily anti-apartheid and pro-divestment demonstrations on campus starting Thursday, April 18.

The sit-in demonstrations continued on Friday and were resumed each day at noon on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week.

The protestors, who lined the Day Hall lobby and the corridors of the bursar and financial aid offices, were mostly non-disruptive during working hours. At closing time, though, most refused to leave the building to call attention to their opposition to apartheid and Cornell's investments in companies doing business in South Africa.

The students, staff, and faculty were charged with violations of the campus code of conduct for interfering with the normal functioning of the university.

Second offenders were charged with criminal trespass third degree, a Class B misdemeanor, and referred to Ithaca City Court, in addition to a second violation of the campus code.

Non-members of the Cornell community who refused to leave the building were charged with trespass and referred to City Court. They included one professor from SUNY Cortland and another from Ithaca College.

Third offenders will be suspended from the university, in addition to being charged with trespass. The number of third offenders was not known at press time.

If an individual is suspended by the president or his designee there must be a hearing within 48 hours by the nine-member review board of three faculty, three students, and three staff.

About 330 protestors, including two dozen faculty and staff, were taken into custody Wednesday. Last Thursday, 143 were taken into custody; Friday, 190; Monday, 211; and Tuesday, 130. Fourteen Cornell faculty members and one Ithaca College professor joined the protestors inside Day Hall Tuesday, marking the first time that Cornell faculty members had been taken into custody with the students.

On Monday, Cornell President Frank

President Frank Rhodes talks Wednesday afternoon with students gathered at the shanty town just west of Day Hall.

Rhodes urged students, staff, and faculty members to use their representation on the Board of Trustees to influence policy on South Africa investments. Currently there are five faculty-, four student-, and two staff-elected members of the board.

The university has already divested itself of holdings in three companies with ties in South Africa, Rhodes said. In keeping with university policy, the names of those companies are not made public. The university invests only in companies which abide by the Sullivan or similar principles.

As of Tuesday night, about 100 of the student protestors were believed to be repeat offenders.

Beginning Monday, about 20 protestors maintained a vigil in a shanty town on the lawn at the west side of Day Hall.

The shanty town was constructed behind Day Hall Monday by protestors using card-

Turner: Teachers Must Support Their Students in Moral, Ethical Expressions

Prof. James A. Turner, director of the Africana Studies and Research Center and one of the faculty members who was taken into custody with the students Tuesday, said his action was based on his conviction that teachers must support their students in expressions on moral and ethical questions.

"As teachers, we try to prepare our students to be whole people in dealing with those questions of moral and ethical values, and to be good citizens of the nation as well as the world," he said.

"It is regrettable that this issue continues to strain our community," he said, "when it is so evident that South Africa represents a serious danger to peace, not only internally and in Africa, but in the world.

"What is happening there tramples all that we value about democratic rights, even to the elementary right of citizenship. This is to say nothing of the genocide that also exists there."

He said the Sullivan Principles do not work and that less than half the companies who agreed to participate ever file reports. The Rev. Leon Sullivan has said that he is not committed to companies staying in South Africa forever, but he is willing to try and bring about changes in that country.

Question Raised: Would Divestment Truly Lead to Needed Improvements?

Large-scale foreign divestment from South Africa could damage that country's economy, possibly hurting all segments of the society, said Louis K.C. Chan, an assistant professor of finance in the Johnson Graduate School of Management at Cornell University.

"The question is, 'Will the potential economic costs of divestment be offset by the hoped-for political and moral improvements?'" he added.

"Investment creates jobs and benefits for the owners and users of capital, and for consumers," Chan said. "On purely economical terms, divestment might not be a good idea; politically and morally, it might be."

Frederick T. Bent, an associate professor of public administration at the Johnson School, suggested that American investment represents such a small portion of investment in South Africa that maintaining investments there in an attempt to change apartheid is not likely to have any affect.

"My personal judgment is to get out (divest) for moral reasons," Bent added, "but there may be an economic reason for divestment. One wonders if investments there are going to be worth anything in five years if the country erupts into violence and chaos."

Alison Lurie Wins Pulitzer

Alison Lurie, a professor of English here, has won the 1985 Pulitzer Prize for fiction, for her latest novel "Foreign Affairs."

She is the fifth Cornell faculty member to receive the prestigious award since 1966. Lurie, who is on leave this semester, is currently in London, England, and expected to return to this country the end of May.

The book, her seventh novel, is a story of an Ivy League professor of children's literature on a six-month sabbatical leave in England. (More details in next week's Chronicle).

3 Elected to National Academy

Three Cornell University professors were among 60 scientists elected to the National Academy of Sciences Tuesday during the academy's 122nd annual meeting in Washington, DC. The three are: Eugene B. Dynkin, professor of mathematics; Charles R. Henderson, professor emeritus of animal science; and Walter Isard, professor of economics and regional science. Tuesday's announcements brings to 35 the number of Cornellians who have been elected to the academy in recognition of their distinguished achievement in original research. The academy has a total membership of 1,453. (More details in next week's Chronicle.)

BENSON P. LEE

JOHN P. NEAFSEY

Alumni Elect Two Members To Board of Trustees Posts

Two alumni have been elected to the Cornell University Board of Trustees for four-year terms effective July 1.

They are Benson P. Lee, Class of 1963, and John P. Neafsey, Class of 1961.

Under revisions to the university charter made last year, eight of the 42-member board of trustees are to be alumni-elected, two each year for four year terms. Until the revisions, there were 62 members on the board, 10 of them alumni. Trustees chosen before the revisions will complete their five-year terms.

Lee and Neafsey were elected through mail balloting of some 133,000 living Cornell alumni. Burton A. Pierce, Cornell Class of 1951, chairman of the Committee on Alumni Trustee Elections, announced the names of the winners Tuesday.

Lee, of Cleveland, Ohio, is chairman and chief executive officer of Datalogics, Inc., an information management and computing services company in Cleveland. He is also CEO of Technology Management, Inc., also in Cleveland, developers of technology driven products. Lee holds a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Cornell, and M.B.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the Graduate School of Business Administration at New York University.

Neafsey, of Wallingford, Pa., is senior vice president and chief financial officer of Sun Company, Inc., engaged in the development and production of energy resources, primarily oil, natural gas, and coal. He holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Cornell and an M.B.A. from Cornell's Graduate School of Business and Public Administration, now the Samuel Curtis Johnson Graduate School of Management.

Emeritus Professors Group Meets May 2

The Association of Cornell University Emeritus Professors will meet at 4 p.m. Thursday, May 2, in the One World Room of Anabel Taylor Hall. Both present and prospective members of the association, plus spouses and friends, are invited. Despite the apparent restrictiveness of the association's name, membership is open to all academic staff who retire after at least 10 years of service, and also to administrators who are awarded emeritus status.

The program will include an illustrated lecture by John B. Heiser, director, about the Shoals Marine Laboratory, an instructional and research facility operated by Cornell in cooperation with the University of New Hampshire on Appledore Island, one of the Isles of Shoals, about 10 miles off the coast of Maine and New Hampshire.

The annual election of officers and members of the Executive Council of the association will also be held. Nominations from the floor will be invited.

The Week in Sports

Weekend Will Have Full Slate of Sports Events

This weekend will provide a full slate of sports activity. The baseball and men's tennis teams both have two contests at home, while the men's and women's lacrosse teams and the lightweight and women's crews also have home action. All of the contests involve important league action for the Big Red squads as the spring season begins to wind down.

The women's lacrosse team leads by taking on Dartmouth at 3 p.m. Friday on Schoellkopf Field. The men's tennis team also takes on Dartmouth that afternoon, in a 4 p.m. match at the Kite Hill bubble. There is yet one other Cornell-Dartmouth matchup during the weekend, as the lightweight crews from the schools compete for the Baggailey Cup on the Cayuga Lake Inlet Saturday morning. The men's lacrosse team entertains Princeton on Schoellkopf Field at 2 p.m. Saturday, while the baseball team has a doubleheader with navy starting at 1 p.m. The men's tennis team rounds out the action that day with a match against Harvard at noon. On Sunday, the women's crew competes against Ithaca College and the baseball team has a doubleheader with Princeton, also starting at 1 p.m.

The women's lacrosse team will be looking for its first Ivy League victory of the season when it takes on Dartmouth. The squad fell to 2-5-1 overall and 0-4 in the league when it lost to nationally ranked Harvard at home Sunday, 14-4. Senior Lyn Reitenbach is Cornell's leading scorer with 13 goals and nine assists, while freshman Mary-Beth DeLaney has six goals and 10 assists and junior Kate Howard-Johnson is 12-2-14. Starting goaltender Ellen Grant sports a 10.9 goals against average and a save percentage of .538.

Dartmouth is undefeated in league play thus far (3-0), and the Big Green is coming off an 8-5 victory over Yale on Saturday. Cornell defeated Dartmouth in Hanover last season, 12-9.

The men's tennis team is one of the hottest Big Red squads right now, having won seven of its last eight decisions. The squad is currently riding a four-match winning streak, as it defeated three state rivals this past weekend: Army (9-0), Ithaca College (9-0) and Rochester (7-2). The victory over Army also raised the squad's mark in the Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Association to 2-4. Senior Dave Merritt, junior Paul Meehan and sophomore Eric Cruz have the top singles records on the squad with a 12-4 slate each, while senior Mike Rytting is 11-5. Junior James Connolly has a 10-6 record and freshman Bruce Jervis rounds out the lineup at 9-7.

With its 11-5 overall record, Cornell has already exceeded its number of victories a year ago. The Big Red is looking to better its 1982 record when it went 14-5. Cornell is hoping to avenge last year's 5-4 defeat to Dartmouth. In 1984, Cornell lost a 8-1 match to the Crimson.

The baseball team will be looking to rise above the .500 mark in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League this weekend. However, it will not be an easy task for the Big Red, as Navy and Princeton are both among the leaders in the EIBL. Cornell stands at 12-16 overall and 5-5 in the EIBL after splitting two doubleheaders during the weekend. The Big Red defeated Brown 17-9 on the road Saturday, but then lost the second game to the Bruins, 4-3. On Sunday, Cornell again triumphed in the opener, defeating Yale 3-1; but it lost to the Elis in the nightcap, 10-2. The Big Red has now split five consecutive doubleheaders in the league.

Senior outfielders Mike Kalfopoulos and Dan Autiello continue to hit at a torrid pace for the Red. Kalfopoulos had a homer and five RBIs in the win over Brown, while Autiello was 2x2 in Saturday's second game.

DAN AUTIELLO
Men's Baseball

Both players are hitting over .400 for the season — Kalfopoulos at .427 and Autiello at .410. Kalfopoulos also leads the team in runs scored (26), doubles (14), triples (three), homers (five) and RBIs (30). Other top hitters for the squad are senior Nick Meitinis (.321), junior center fielder Joe Cossu (.318) and freshman third baseman Chris Hahn (.313).

For the Cornell lightweight varsity crew, 1985 has brought success; success that the program hasn't enjoyed in quite some time. The Big Red has a 5-1 record and it is ranked second in the East by the lightweight coaches. These achievements are all the more satisfying when you consider that the varsity crew had a record of 1-5 a year ago and had not won a regatta during the past three seasons.

The Big Red has defeated Pennsylvania, Rutgers, Yale, Columbia and MIT thus far. The victory over Yale as an important one, as the Elis won the prestigious San Diego Crew Classic earlier this season. This past weekend, Cornell handily defeated Columbia and MIT, topping the Lions by 9.4 seconds and the Engineers by 26.4 seconds to win the Geiger Cup. Saturday's race with Dartmouth is an important one since the Big Green is ranked fifth in the coaches poll.

New Lectureship Will Benefit Undergraduates

Although distinguished lecturers usually are chosen to share their expertise with faculty colleagues and graduate researchers, the Division of Nutritional Sciences has established a new lectureship especially to benefit undergraduate students.

Thanks to a generous gift from emeritus professor Dorothy M. Proud, undergraduates will have the opportunity to gain insights from a diverse and distinguished career in nutrition when Anita L. Owen, the president-elect of the American Dietetic Association, presents the first Proud lecture Monday, April 29.

Owen's lecture, "New Ventures in Dietetics: A Quest for Excellence," will consider how the future of dietetics will be affected by projected social and scientific trends. The lecture, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 120 Ives Hall on campus, is free to the public.

It is the policy of Cornell University actively to support equality of educational and employment opportunity. No person shall be denied admission to any educational program or activity or be denied employment on the basis of any legally prohibited discrimination involving, but not limited to, such factors as race, color, creed, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, age or handicap. The university is committed to the maintenance of affirmative action programs which will assure the continuation of such equality of opportunity.

President Frank Rhodes tested his green thumb last Saturday while officially opening Cornell-in-Washington's new home, the Cornell Center. While chairman of the Board of Trustees, Austin H. Kiplinger ('39) looked on (left), Rhodes transplanted Cornell Plantations ivy so it will grow on the center, which serves as home, office and schoolroom to students and faculty in Washington.

Public-Private Problems

Rhodes Renews Call For More Cooperation

President Frank Rhodes renewed his call for cooperation between private and public colleges during a speech at the University of Maryland in College Park last Thursday.

"If we are to maintain healthy competition based on the quality of our programs ... we must reaffirm the strengths of our dual system and support initiatives which, while sometimes difficult for individual institutions, can greatly improve higher education," Rhodes said.

In a speech delivered before representatives of private and public colleges, state government, and national education associations at the Institute for Research in Higher and Adult Education, Rhodes said there are six areas "that must form the basis for any cooperative action."

Educators, he said, must be willing to shrink, redirect, combine, or even close weak colleges; build on strengths and not develop unnecessary programs; insist on high standards of quality; preserve access to both private and public schools; reduce the "tuition gap" between private and public colleges; and develop greater public accountability.

"Unless we address these questions, I see little hope of moving beyond well-meaning platitudes and airy generalities into some pattern of effective partnership which will strengthen all of higher education," Rhodes said.

"These are indeed hard times for higher education, and they will likely get worse before they get better," Rhodes added, citing declining student populations, aging physical plants, and dated teaching and research equipment. "But stagnant uniformity and safe mediocrity are no substitutes for the bold experiment and the constant striving for which we must be advocates."

Rhodes praised the "spirit of collegiality and sense of shared purpose" between private and public colleges in Maryland. In New York, he said, there is a "national reputation for rancor" and a rivalry that "has degenerated into an unseemly scramble for resources."

"I fear that ... we may destroy whatever claim to special privilege higher education as a whole may once have enjoyed," unless New York State's private and public colleges work together to face tighter budgets and increased competition for private and government funding, Rhodes said. "We have been working to rebuild our partnership."

"We must all recognize the unique strengths of each sector," Rhodes suggested, highlighting the broad access and low price of public institutions and the independence and leadership of private colleges. Both private and public colleges "are essential for a truly healthy and responsive system of higher education," he said.

Alcohol Committee Plans Hearing on 21-Age

An open hearing will be held from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Wednesday, May 1, in Goldwin Smith Hall's Kaufmann Auditorium to discuss the Alcohol Policy Committee's proposed recommendations designed to deal effectively with a current proposal to raise New York state's legal drinking age to 21 and issues related to the use and abuse of alcohol at Cornell.

Over the last two semesters, representatives from the faculty, Student Assembly, Interfraternity Council, Cornell Dining, Residence Life, Public Safety, Unions and Activities, Dean of Students Office, ALERT, and Gannett Health Center have met 17 times to formulate recommendations for a comprehensive alcohol policy at Cornell.

A draft of these recommendations and a general outline of the issues can be found at several locations across campus: Uris Library, Mann Library, Catherwood Library, Veterinary Library and the Information Desk in Day Hall.

Trustees Approve Building Sites

300-Student Townhouses

The site for a 300-student townhouse apartment complex has been selected.

Scheduled for completion in time for the 1986 fall term, the two-story multiple units will be built in the North Campus area on a 12-acre site between Jessup Road and the university's parking lot A, and bordered on the east by Pleasant Grove Road.

The site selection, approved Tuesday by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees at its meeting in New York City, was the first step required before an architect for the project is chosen.

The townhouse units are a major component of the university's overall plans to rehabilitate existing student living facilities and to provide additional student housing.

The complex will comprise 70 to 75 units, grouped in 9 to 12 buildings arranged around a community center. The site will be landscaped to reinforce the sense of community and to assure that the complex is an attractive addition to both North Campus and the Village of Cayuga Heights, according to Harold D. Craft Jr., acting vice president for facilities and business operations.

The Jessup Road site provides an appropriate area for low density housing with convenient access to parking, transportation and recreation space. A small ravine with mature trees and a small creek will be preserved to maintain the natural beauty of the area, Craft said.

Parking/Athletics Facility

The building site for a combination parking garage and athletic facility has been approved by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

In addition, the trustees, meeting in New York City, April 23, selected local architect William Downing and Associates to provide site planning and design alternatives for the project. The multi-floor structure that may accommodate up to 500 cars and possibly include courts for tennis and other racquet sports is proposed for the area along the east side of Hoy Field where Bacon Cage is now located.

The new structure is not expected to be any wider than Bacon Cage and will not intrude on the baseball area of Hoy Field. Bacon Cage will be torn down and its field-house activities switched to various other sites on campus until a proposed new field-house is built.

The Bacon Cage site, which runs adjacent to the back of the west stands of Schoellkopf Field, was selected because it provides the best combination of car capacity and access, low profile, and potential for various possible combined uses with athletics.

The project combines the need for additional parking on central campus with the aims of the athletic master plan, which previously had been approved by the Board of Trustees, to provide improved athletic and physical education facilities at Cornell.

Native American Scholarships Established for Summer

Summer College will award two full scholarships for the 1985 session to Native American high school students who demonstrate outstanding academic ability in addition to financial need. The announcement was made by Robert D. MacDougall, dean of Cornell's Division of Summer Session, Extramural Study, and Related Programs, which will provide the funding for the annual scholarships.

The awards have been designated as Jerry M. Rivers Summer College Scholarships, in honor of her contributions throughout 22 years as a distinguished faculty member in the State College of Human Ecology at Cornell University.

A professor emeritus of nutritional sciences, she received a master's degree from Texas Technological University and was awarded a Ph.D. in nutrition and biochemistry from Pennsylvania State University. As a researcher, she has been a leading authority on vitamin C; as a teacher, she has served as undergraduate adviser and supervised 33 graduate theses. She developed a graduate program in clinical nutrition that began in 1976.

Rivers has participated on numerous college and university committees, most notably those concerning minority and Indian affairs. She was active in the development of Cornell's American Indian Studies Program, which held personal importance because of her Cherokee heritage.

Summer College is a six-week program that allows students to enroll in regular freshman college courses or specially designed courses in architecture, engineering, and law. Six to eight credits may be earned and transferred toward an undergraduate degree. Summer College also includes a three-week noncredit study skills course. Workshops on college application procedures are open to all Summer College students.

Summer College is open to students who have completed the junior or senior year in high school. Applicants must provide a transcript of high school grades, PSAT or SAT scores, and recommendations from teachers and guidance counselors and they must demonstrate strong academic ability, intellectual interest, and personal initiative.

To apply for the Jerry M. Rivers Summer College Scholarships, eligible students should contact their high school guidance counselors or request information from Margaret L. Haine, Cornell University Summer College, Box J, B12 Ives Hall, or call 256-6203.

Application deadline is May 10.

Bethe Wins NSB Award

HANS BETHE

Hans Albrecht Bethe, professor emeritus at Cornell and a renowned physicist whose 1938 discovery of the carbon cycle explaining why the sun and stars shine won him a Nobel Prize in 1967, has been selected to receive the National Science Board's prestigious Vannevar Bush Award. The 25-member NSB is the policymaking body of the National Science Foundation.

The award acknowledges outstanding contributions in science and technology that are significant to the national welfare and honors both the individual selected and the concept of the importance of science and technology to the future of mankind.

Bethe will receive a medal struck for the occasion and a citation at the board's annual dinner May 15 in Washington, D.C.

In announcing the award, Roland W. Schmitt, NSB chairman and senior vice president for research and development at the General Electric Co., said: "Hans Bethe is a great theoretician who knows how to be practical; a leader who has made unsurpassed contributions to the defense of our nation; and an educator not only of generations of students and colleagues, but of a nation eager to make wise use of the bounties of science."

Vannevar Bush, after whom the award is named, served as director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development in World War II. A principal recommendation of "Science — The Endless Frontier," the 1945 report Bush prepared at the request of President Roosevelt, was that a foundation be established by the Congress to serve as a focal point for the federal government's support and encouragement of research and education in the sciences. The NSF was established on May 10, 1950.

M. VIVIAN WHITE

ASTM Honors M. Vivian White

Mary Vivian White, associate professor of design and environmental analysis, has been named a 1985 recipient of the Award of Merit by American Society for Testing and Materials.

White received the award for her pioneering work in the areas of Committee D-13 Textiles Care Labeling Standards, consumer standards development, and standards-related education. She was also cited for outstanding service to ASTM at the task group, subcommittee, society and international levels.

The Award of Merit, and the accompanying honorary title of fellow of the society, were established in 1949 by ASTM. The award recognizes distinguished service to the cause of voluntary standardization through productive service to ASTM, marked leadership, outstanding contributions, or publication of papers.

Rhodin Named Humboldt Senior Scientist

THOR N. RHODIN

Thor N. Rhodin, professor of applied and engineering physics at Cornell University, has been named an Alexander von Humboldt Foundation senior U.S. scientist. He will conduct research for one year at the University of Munich in West Germany.

Rhodin, a specialist in the electron physics of metals and semiconductors, will conduct synchrotron radiation studies on electron properties of metals and semiconductors, starting Sept. 1. His time will be divided evenly between Munich and work at Cornell and Brookhaven National Laboratory.

He is one of more than 20 Cornell professors to receive the prestigious Humboldt fellowships sponsored by the Federal Republic of Germany since 1972.

Before coming to Cornell in 1958, Rhodin served on the scientific staff of the engineering research laboratory of E.I. du Pont de Nemours and Co., Inc. and was a member of the research faculty of the Institute for Study on Metals at the University of Chicago. He joined Cornell's School of Applied and Engineering Physics. In 1977, he received a joint appointment in the graduate field of chemistry.

He is associated with the National Research and Resource Facility for Submicron Structures and the Materials Science Center. He has been a National Science Foundation visiting professor at the University of Cambridge; a NATO lecturer at Namur University, Belgium; a visiting professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and a visitor sponsored by the Japanese Society for the Promotion of Science.

Mircea D. Grigoriu associate professor of structural engineering here since 1980, has been awarded tenure, effective February 1. Grigoriu is an authority in the areas of structural systems, probabilistic models for loads and load combinations, random vibration, and stochastic mechanics. He is a member of the department of structural engineering in the College of Engineering's School of Civil and Environmental Engineering. Grigoriu teaches both undergraduate and graduate courses in the general area of structural analysis and design, and has been in charge of graduate admissions for the department of structural engineering.

Demonstrations

board, plastic, pieces of wood, and other materials. Sixteen people, including about 10 Cornell students, slept at the shanty town that night, according to protestors. Wednesday morning there were nine shanties and two tents, an increase of three shanties and one tent from Monday afternoon.

Two Sessions Set For Community Talks

Administrators and trustees are scheduled to meet with members of the university community next week in two separate sessions, including one that has been planned for several weeks.

The Proxy Review Committee of the Board of Trustees will listen to community concerns Thursday, May 2, beginning at 8 a.m. The site for that session will be announced later.

Monday, Senior Vice President William G. Herbster and others will take part in a 7:30 p.m. meeting in Noyes Center. That session is sponsored by the University Unions Board and other organizations.

Protestors said that 26 demonstrators, including 20 Cornell students, slept in the shanty town Tuesday night. The group plans to maintain the shanties until Cornell divests from companies that do business in South Africa, the protestors said.

"This is our home until Cornell divests," said Kurt MacLeod, 22, of Penn Yan, a junior in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell. The shanty town was formed to represent the housing conditions for blacks in South Africa, he added.

The protestors' supplies include a camping stove and various food items, including tea, coffee, and peanut butter and jelly, said Gregory Holbein, 22, a farm business management major from Auburn, NY. No alcohol or drugs are permitted in the shanty town because "we don't want to distract from what we're trying to do," Holbein explained.

One of the shanties, called the "Inhumanities Library," is being used to distribute statements explaining the protest and the purpose of the shanty town.

As of Wednesday, at least 10 protestors were participating in a hunger strike, according to Holbein, who said he was among those refusing all solid food and consuming only liquids to protest apartheid and Cornell's investments with companies in South Africa.

Penalties in the Cornell judicial system range from a written reprimand, to a fine and/or community service, to probation (for students), to temporary and/or actual suspension. Community service penalties can range from three to 80 hours. The most severe penalty for faculty and staff members is dismissal from their position with the university. Faculty and staff members may be suspended from their duties without pay for up to a month, but retain other rights, such as the use of their office and university libraries.

Question Raised

Any American divestment from South Africa would need to be accompanied by U.S. sanctions, including severe trade restriction, to weaken apartheid, Bent added. Such sanctions, at least by the Reagan administration, are highly unlikely, he said.

A third Johnson School professor said that American divestment alone will have only limited impact if the securities sold by American interests are purchased by others outside the U.S.

The professors were asked for their opinions after sit-ins by students and others at Cornell protesting apartheid and the university's investments with companies doing business in South Africa.

Faculty Plans Open Divestment Meeting

The full University Faculty will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 1, in Bailey Hall to discuss the issue of whether or not the university should divest from firms doing business in South Africa. Dean of the Faculty Joseph Bugliari said the meeting is open to any interested members of the community.

Now a thing of the past, but in 1938 the Waiters' Derby was a highlight of HEC, as these five students demonstrate as they race for the finish line under the elms in the Arts Quad.

During the 1930s and '40s, many HEC festivities took place in Willard Straight Hall.

Hotel Ezra Cornell To Have Its 60th

The annual Hotel Ezra Cornell will take place this weekend at the School of Hotel Administration. This is the 60th such event for the school. Here are some photographs of HECs in years past.

Ice sculpture has been a traditional visual treat amid the culinary presentations at HECs through the years.

Alice Statler, widow of the famed hotelman E. M. Statler, both key benefactors of the hotel school, is seen with President Deane W. Malott at an HEC dinner during the 1950s.

A culinary display in the shape of a royal crown was a highlight of the 1960 HEC.

Calendar

All items for publication in the Calendar sections, except for Seminar notices, must be submitted (typewritten, double spaced) by mail or in person to Fran Apgar, Central Reservations, 531 Willard Straight Hall at least 10 days prior to publication. Seminar notices should go to the Chronicle office, 110 Day Hall. Items should include the name and telephone number of a person who can be called if there are questions, and also the subheading of the calendar in which it should appear (lectures, colloquia, etc.) ALL DEADLINES WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED.

*—Admission charged.

Announcements

Brown Bag Luncheon Discussion

There will be a brown bag luncheon discussion hosted by the Africana Studies and Research Center in the Hoyt W. Fuller Room at 310 Tripphammer Road. The second discussion is on Friday, April 26, entitled "Then and Now: Random Reflections," with J. Saunders Redding, the Ernest I. White Professor of American Studies and Humane Letters Emeritus.

Notice of the Flora Rose Prize

Nominations for the $250 1984-85 Flora Rose Prize in memory of Professor Flora Rose are being accepted for a Cornell junior or senior who "shall demonstrate the greatest promise for contributing to the growth and self-fulfillment of future generations." Letters of nomination may come from any person in the Cornell community. Please include names of two other individuals (one should be faculty or staff) who can comment specifically on the nominee's qualifications. Send nominations to Barbara Morse, N101 Martha Van Rensselaer Hall, by May 3. A faculty committee will submit a final recommendation to the Dean of the New York State College of Human Ecology.

Luncheon Discussion Group

Marie-Noelle Bourguet, "Public Disorder and Private Order in Napoleonic France." Marie-Noelle, who teaches at the University of Reims and edits Histoire et Anthropologie, became a permanent and highly valued member of the Cornell intellectual community during her tenure here last year as a WSP Fellow. She arrived at Brown this month for a short visit, and an invitation from us awaited her. Her studies of the construction and classifying of a French population on the part of officials and statisticians have methodological implications stretching far beyond early 19th century France. The luncheon discussion will be at 12:15 p.m. in Uris 153, on Friday April 26.

Exhibits

The Lagoon Cycle:

California artists Helen and Newton Harrison's epic work comprises more than fifty large-scale panels divided into seven sections or lagoons. It features a discourse between two characters, a Lagoonmaker and a Witness, who begin exploring the ecological implications of cultivating Sri Lankan crabs as a world food source and end by imagining what it would take to survive the ecological disasters ahead. The topics include observations on the scientific method, the marketplace, world food supply, and environmental reclamation. Images range from views of lagoons in Sri Lanka to close-ups of crabs, hand-colored aerial and satellite photographs, and maps. The exhibition was organized by Thomas W. Leavitt, director of the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art, and Penny Bealle, graduate assistant; at the Johnson through June 2.

McDonald Paintings

Michelle C. McDonald will present her masters degree candidacy painting thesis exhibition in the Hartell Gallery, Sibley Hall on the Arts Quad from 4 p.m. Sunday, April 28, through 5 p.m. Saturday, May 3.

McDonald has researched the psychological implications of body language and she has reinterpreted her finding in paintings she calls Abstract Figurations. She relies on the natural abstracting function of memory to emphasize character, gesture, and expression. The show will consist of 18 paintings and drawings.

McDonald earned her bachelors degree in fine arts at the Rochester Institute of Technology in 1972. She studied psychology at the University of Rochester, has taught art therapy for emotionally disturbed children for BOCES and has been a recreation director for the city of Oneonta.

The Lagoon Cycle

Helen and Newton Harrison's "Lagoon Cycle" (1972-1984), is an epic piece of over fifty large-scale panels divided into seven sections, or lagoons. The work features a discourse between two characters who explore the ecological implications of cultivating Sri Lankan crabs as a new food source. Images include views of lagoons in Sri Lanka, close-ups of crabs, hand-colored aerial and satellite photographs, and maps. The exhibition will travel nationally after the Ithaca premiere. This exhibit will be presented from March 23 through June 2, at the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art.

'Rhythmic Connections'

"Rhythmic Connections: Mathematics, Music and Biology" will be discussed by Jay Hilfiger in Barnes Hall at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, April 25.

This will be the last public meeting in connection with the Common Learning Course on Rhythms, and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Both musicians and biologists use the concept of rhythm but not always in similar ways. Hilfiger will make some observations on and speculations about the relationships between biology and music, and he will discuss mathematical and statisti-

In honor of the 70th birthday, on June 2, of Robert Palmer, the University Orchestra will play his Symphony No. 2. Professor-emeritus of music at Cornell after a teaching career of nearly 40 years, Palmer has composed numerous distinguished works. The Second Symphony was written in 1966 and displays his gift for pungent harmony, powerful climaxes and, especially, complex provocative rhythmic patterns.

Monosoff and Cranham will be soloists in Johannes Brahms' Double Concerto in A minor for Violin and Cello, Opus 122. A concerto for more than a single instrument was comparatively rare in the 19th. century. Brahms, who wrote his in 1887, intended the concerto as a sort of "peace offering" for Joseph Joachim, a distinguished violinist, from whom he had been estranged for some years. It contains many virtuoso passages for both instruments and rich Brahmsian harmonies.

Monosoff, a member of the Cornell music faculty, has performed extensively in this country, Europe and Israel, and has taught master classes in baroque violin. She has been invited to serve as a visiting professor at the University of Ferrara, Italy, later this spring.

Cranham came to Ithaca several years ago with her husband, Cornell music professor Roger Parker. A native of England, she was active as a performer there and on the European continent.

Student Composers' Works

Music by Cornell student composers will be presented in a free public concert at Barnes Hall at 8:15 p.m. Monday, April 29.

Composers represented on the program, students of Professors Karel Husa and Steven Stucky, are graduate students Daniel May, William Bradbury, Alfred Cohen, James Grant, Elizabeth Alexander, Tyler White and Boaz Tarsy; also undergraduate composer David McHaffey.

Their program includes pieces for the Cornell zart, Beethoven. Sponsored by the Department of Music.

Bringing their art and their religious experience together is the goal of the four Cornell artists pictured here, as are answers to complicated questions such as "What happens to creative people and to us in a world which does not easily understand creativity?" In an exhibit of paintings and sculptures now on display in the Willard Straight Hall Art Room, viewers can see how the artists (from left) Marian Van Soest, Gurdon Brewster, Jill Rogers and Susan Eyster have given form to their concerns. The exhibit, titled "Spirit & Substance," runs through Saturday, April 27.

cal models which may aid in understanding these relationships.

Hilfiger is the manager of statistical computing for Cornell Computing Services. He will be awarded his Ph.D. in music from the University of Iowa next month. He also earned a Master of Science degree in Biostatistics and a Master of Music degree earlier.

Chorale to do Schutz Motets

Motets by Heinrich Schutz will be featured in a concert to be given by the Cornell Chorale at 8:15 p.m. Friday, April 26, in the University's Sage Chapel. The concert will be one hour long.

In addition to tercentenaries of Bach, Handel and Scarlatti, this year marks the 300th anniversary of the birth of Schutz. The Cornell Chorale, conducted by Professor Thomas A. Sokol, will sing nine of his sacred motets. Soprano Marion Hanson will appear as soloist, accompanied by Daniel May, in two pieces by Mikolaj Zielinski, who is known to have lived in 1611. May will also perform a harpsichord solo, Praeludium, by Jan Poldbielski, who flourished in 1650.

The Cornell Chorale is a group of auditioned singers from the student body, faculty and staff here and the Ithaca community.

Violinist, Cellist with Orchestra

Violinist Sonya Monosoff and cellist Linden Cranham, will appear with the Cornell Symphony Orchestra at Bailey Hall Saturday evening, April 27. The 8:15 p.m. concert is open to the public free of charge.

To open the program, conductor Edward Murray has chosen the brilliant Roman Carnival Overture by Hector Berlioz. Drawn from material in Berlioz' opera "Benvenuto Cellini," the overture is full of vivacity and vivid orchestral color.

Chorus, solo harp, woodwinds, strings, solo voice, and string quartet.

The concert, part of the 17th Festival of Contemporary Music at the University, is being made possible by a generous continuing gift from Alumnus Sidney T. Cox. The final festival events are a colloquium by composer Elliott Schwartz on May 7 and a free public concert by the New England Piano Quartette on May 8.

Saturday

Theater

"Friends" Closes Drummond Season

Kobo Abe's "Friends", an absurdist play about a man held hostage in his own apartment by his wacky neighbors, closes the 1984-85 Drummond Studio season. "Friends" will be presented in the Drummond Studio Wednesday through Saturday, April 24-27 at 8:15 p.m. each day.

Ph. D. candidate Frank Bradley will direct "Friends". Bradley has previously directed "Better Living" for the Theatre Cornell studio season.

Admission is free of charge, and the limited seating in the studio will be given on a first-come, first-served basis. Information may be obtained by calling the Theatre Cornell box office at 256-5165.

Graduate Bulletin

Any add/drop or changes to course registration for spring semester 1985 may still be made with a petition and the $10 late processing fee through Friday, May 10.

All graduate students who are New York State residents and who will be registered during the 1985-86 academic year should apply to the New York State Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) for 1985-86. Any student receiving tuition assistance from Cornell University who meets New York state residency requirements should submit his or her application to the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation (NYSHESC) by July 1st to avoid delays in the processing of the TAP payment. Students who received TAP awards in 1984-85 should have had applications mailed directly to their addresses by NYHESC. TAP Student Payment Applications may be obtained by writing to the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation, Tower Building, Empire State Plaza, Albany, New York 12255, or from the Bursar's Office, 260 Day Hall or the Graduate Fellowship Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center.

Graduate students should be aware that for most academic year fellowships, the final payment will be on the first Wednesday in May. Students who will be supported by fellowships or assistantships during the summer term should contact the office administering the award to ensure that the necessary paperwork will be processed promptly.

Graduate students who are successful in the 1985 Graduate Summer Assistantship/Fellowship Competition and the 1985 Graduate Summer School Tuition Award Competition should be notified by the end of April. Lists of recipients will also be sent to the graduate faculty representatives at that time.

Latin American Coca Connection Topic for 2-Day Conference Here

The effects on Latin America from the production of coca and cocaine will be discussed from various social, political, economic, and scientific points of view during a two-day conference here today and Friday.

Among the 11 invited speakers will be Timothy Plowman, a specialist in the botany of drug plants and considered one of the world's leading authorities on the taxonomy and economic botany of South American plants. He is associate curator of botany for the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

A perspective from the U.S. government on aspects of the topic will be provided by John T. Cusack, chief of staff of the U.S. House of Representatives Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control.

Free to the public, the conference is titled "The Coca Leaf and its Derivatives: Biology, Society, and Policy." It is sponsored by Cornell's Latin American Program and 13 other Cornell units interested in aspects of the issue, in an effort to create an understanding of the complexities of the subject from a number of disciplines -- botany, anthropology, ethnohistory, sociology, political science, and law enforcement. All talks will include open discussion periods.

A schedule of the speakers and their topics for the two days is:

Thursday, April 25

-- 9 a.m. - 10:30 a.m., "The Origin, Evolution, and Diffusion of Coca in South America," Timothy Plowman, Field Museum of Natural History, 404 Plant Science;

-- 11 a.m. - Noon, "Coca and Cultural Identity in Andean Communities," Catherine Allen, George Washington University, 404 Plant Science;

-- 1:30 p.m. - 2:30 p.m., "Pre-Columbian Cultivation of Coca Leaf," John Murra, Cornell, 401 Warren Hall;

-- 2:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m., "Coca Production in 18th & 19th Century Bolivia," Herbert Klein, Columbia University, 401 Warren Hall;

-- 4 p.m. - 6 p.m., "Coca, Diet and Health: A Critical Perspective," Roderick Burchard, University of Manitoba, 401 Warren Hall;

-- 8 p.m. - 10 p.m., "Beyond the Frontier: ru," David Strug, Fordham University;

Friday, April 26

-- 11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m., "Recent Effects of Cocaine Markets on Bolivian Rural Society & Economy," Kevin Healy, Inter-American Foundation;

-- 2:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m., "The Colombian Connection: The Impact of Drug Traffic on Colombia," Bruce Bagley, School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University;

-- 3:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m., "From Coca to Cocaine: The Political and Economic Implications for Indians," Theodore Macdonald, Cultural Survival;

-- 4:30 p.m. - 5:30 p.m., closing discussions.

Conference Here Will Explore State's Migrant Labor System

To explore the evolution of the migrant labor system in New York state and to examine implications for immigrant reform and the meaning of changes on the future, a seminar on migrants will be held on campus April 30.

"Migrant Farmworkers in New York: Past, Present and Future," to be held from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. in 401 Warren Hall on campus, is sponsored by the Cornell Migrant Program, the State College of Human Ecology and Cornell Cooperative Extension.

Highlights of the program include Olaf Larson, professor emeritus of rural sociology, on a history of migrant labor in New York; Richard Morales, assistant director of the School of Human Services and director of the Center for International Education and Services at Rochester Institute of Technology, on a social-cultural perspective of the migrant population; Vernon Briggs, professor of human resources in the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations, on immigration policy and American agricultural workers; and C. Arthur Bratton, professor emeritus of agricultural economics on agricultural labor in the year 2000.

To wrap up the conference, a reactor panel will discuss the future of migrant farmworkers in New York State.

For registration information, contact the Cornell Migrant Program, PO Box 181, Alton, NY 14413, or call (315) 483-4092.

Archives Gets $50,000 Bequest

A $50,000 endowment bequest has been received by Cornell University's department of manuscripts and university archives from the late Carol J. Cline, a 1937 graduate of the university. A life-long resident of Dayton, Ohio, she died on January 31, 1985.

According to Thomas Hickerson, chairman of the department, interest from the endowment will be used for fund acquisitions and special projects not supported by regular allocations.

Hickerson said Cline had a "long and deep interest in the archives," having turned over to the department her own papers and many others concerning Cornell's class of 1937.

These include correspondence and a set of interviews with Cornell personalities taped in 1963 for "Carol's Corner," her daily radio program on WKET in Dayton.

"Her letters of the last several years are extremely moving, documenting her courageous struggle with cancer," Hickerson said.

As life secretary of her class, Cline compiled extensive records, including correspondence, programs, photographs, and memorabilia about reunions; questionnaires and biographical information for each reunion; and tape recordings of reunion events, Hickerson said.

Off-Campus Life

Now is the time to list your summer sublet. In order to post an available unit with the Off-Campus Housing Office, drop by 103 Barnes Hall between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays. In order to be listed, dwellings must be in compliance with the city housing code. A sample Sublease Agreement is also available.

Legal advising for off-campus housing matters is available, for registered students only, through Thursday, May 23. Fifteen-minute appointments are scheduled for Thursday afternoons between 2:30-4:15. To inquire about this service, stop by 103 Barnes Hall or call 256-5373.

The Off-Campus Life Committee of the Student Assembly, along with the Cornell PIRG, is conducting a housing survey in Collegetown. If you are a collegetown resident and have received a survey please complete and tape it back on your apartment door. Someone will pick it up in a few days.

The Collegetown Neighborhood Council will meet on Tuesday, May 7, at 4 p.m., meeting place to be arranged. Discussion items will include crime prevention, Collegetown development, and involvement of permanent residents and students in neighborhood organizations. These meetings are open to all members of the Collegetown community and interested members of the public.

Off-campus housing listings are available through CUINFO on Cornell's IBM and DEC-system computers. After logging onto your account, enter "CUINFO HOUSING OFF" and the listing menu will appear.

Off-Campus Housing Counselor applications are due back to 103 Barnes Hall by Friday, April 26. Training will occur during the week of April 29. For further information about the O.C.C. program contact Neff or Cindy at 6-5373 or stop by 103 Barnes Hall. Applications are available at the Straight Desk, 103 Barnes, and the Information and Referral Center in Day Hall.

The Off-Campus Life section of the Dean of Students Office is recruiting a graduate student assistant. The position will be available beginning August 1985. Responsibilities include assisting with recruitment and training of volunteers, neighborhood programs, development of audio-visual presentations and publications, covering the Off-Campus Housing Office during peak times, and advising students and groups about living off campus, renting, and resources in the Ithaca community. If you are interested in applying for this position, contact Judy VanDermark or Neff Casaburri at the Dean of Students Office. A cover letter and resume are required for serious consideration.

Brief Reports

Genetic Engineering Symposium Subject

A symposium on "Embryo Micromanipulation and Genetic Engineering in Animals" will be held as part of the third International Congress on Andrology in Boston, April 28-May 2.

Organized by Robert H. Foote, the Jacob Gould Schurman Professor of Animal Physiology in the State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, the symposium will attract physicians, veterinarians, and animal scientists from many parts of the world. Foote is recognized internationally as a leading authority on embryo transfer, artificial insemination, and animal reproductive physiology.

The Boston symposium, according to Foote, will discuss the current status of embryo transfer in cattle, focusing on techniques of evaluating the quality of embryos, embryo freezing, and the use of the embryo transfer technology to overcome certain forms of infertility.

Also to be discussed are the micromanipulation of embryos to produce chimeras and identical twins, the sexing of embryos, and current procedures to introduce genetic material into the germ line (to be inherited) through injection into embryos.

"The symposium will provide background for physicians who will be discussing in vitro fertilization and embryo transfer in humans at a subsequent meeting," Foote notes.

Greeks to Take Part In Brick Restoration

A coordinated effort by Cornell and Ithaca College fraternities and sororities will take place Sunday, April 28, when members of the groups take part in a project to recycle historic bricks taken out of Ithaca streets so that they may be used again.

Groups in the project are the Pan-Hellenic and Interfraternity Councils and the Black Greek Council and Lambda Upsilon Lambda at Cornell and the Ithaca College Interfraternity Council.

The project was developed jointly with the office of Ithaca Mayor John Gutenberger and involves continuing the work begun last fall by Historic Ithaca. Cleaned bricks will be used in the proposed repavement of the DeWitt Park Historic District, Stewart Park improvements, surfacing for a newly sited farmer's market or Collegetown development.

Work will be done at the Department of Public Works facility from 2 to 6 p.m.

Chrystall Memorial Prize Is Available

The Lieutenant David Chrystall Memorial Prize of approximately $250 is awarded annually to a member of the senior class for the best essay or treatise dealing with diplomacy, international relations or the preservation of peace.

Entries for 1985 must be submitted by May 15 to J. Victor Koschmann, Department of History, 327 McGraw Hall.

Town-Gown Wildflower Celebration Planned

Wildflowers in all their blooming glory will be celebrated in a series of walks and talks Saturday, April 27, in the woods and gardens of Ithaca and Cornell Plantations.

The town and gown wildflower day includes a 10:30 a.m. talk at Plantations headquarters by Elizabeth Sheldon of Ridge House Gardens on "Growing Wildflowers in Your Garden." In a 1 p.m. presentation at the same location, Elizabeth Lawson of the Cornell plant biology section will talk about "Strategies of Early Wildflowers."

Beginning at 2 p.m. at the Six Mile Gorge Wildflower Preserve (located along Giles Street at Six Mile Creek), Elizabeth Mulholland of Circle Greenway will speak on "Wildflower Rescue Strategies and Techniques."

A guided walk of the wildflower preserve leaves from the Van Natta's Dam parking lot at 3 p.m. Informal walks through the preserve are encouraged throughout the day.

The Mundy Wildflower Garden at Cornell Plantations will be the scene of guided walks at 11:15 a.m. and 1:45 p.m., with the garden open for informal walking throughout the day.

More information on wildflower day activities is available by calling 273-4295 or 256-3020.

Dr. Anolik Will Deliver Becker Lecture Monday

Dr. Ken Anolik, who received his bachelor's degree from Cornell in 1971, will deliver the James H. Becker lecture for the spring term at 4:30 p.m. Monday, April 29, in Kaufmann Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

His topic will be "Modern Medical Ethics."

While he was an undergraduate, and as a work-study student, he contributed to the analysis of archaeological remains from a slave cabin in Georgia. After graduation from medical school, he worked on Native America reservations in Nevada, Arizona and South Dakota. He is now a practicing internist in Northampton, Mass.

The Becker lectures, which are free and open to the public, have been created by an endowment to the College of Arts and Sciences by Mrs. James H. Becker.

Poet Ruth Stone Visits, Will Read from Work

Ruth Stone, poet and short story author, will read from her poetry at 8 p.m. Monday, April 29, in the Temple of Zeus, Goldwin Smith Hall.

Stone is the author of "In an Iridescent Time," "Topography and Other Poems" and "And Cheap," all from Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. She is also the recipient of two Guggenheim Fellowships, the Pen Award, a grant from the Academy of American Poets and a Radcliffe Institute Fellowship. In 1984, she joined the creative writing faculty at New York University.

The reading is sponsored by the Cornell Creative Writing Program, the Cornell Council on the Creative and Performing Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts. A reception will be held after the reading.

TV/Radio/Film Unit Plans Open House

Open House is planned for two days at the facilities of TV/Radio/Film in the basement of the north wing of Martha Van Rensselaer Hall.

Hours will be 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 26 and Tuesday, April 30.

The modern audio-visual facility is equipped to produce instructional programs, broadcast features and spots, public relations material and documentaries. Tours will cover TV studio, multitrack audio recording and postproduction studio, the Consumer Information Network, a high-speed audiotape duplication facility and a videotext frame-creation room.

On view at various times will be the 1984 Cornell football highlight film, a new public relations videotape for the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Cornell Plantations video with stereo sound track as well as other recent programs.

Refreshments will be provided.

Research Publicity Panel Plans Open Meeting Friday

The advisory panel on publicity for research at Cornell will hold its first open meeting at 3:30 p.m. Friday in 701 Clark Hall. The panel was named earlier this month by the Cornell Research Council.

Representatives of colleges and schools, centers, departments, programs, and laboratories are being invited to discuss various issues. Among topics are: which publicity functions can be done most effectively at the unit level or at the university level; what are the strengths and current unmet needs of units in the area of research publicity; and what are the concerns related to a more effective, coordinated research publicity program.

Energy Future Is Topic Of Engineering Symposium

Future sources and applications of energy in this country and around the world will be discussed tomorrow in Washington, D.C., when experts from government, industry and university laboratories gather for a Cornell-sponsored symposium.

General chairman of the symposium, one of a cross-country series to celebrate the centennial of electrical engineering education at Cornell, is Donald M. Kerr, director of Los Alamos National Laboratory and a 1961 graduate of the university. Cornell faculty chairmen are Ravi Sudan, the IBM Professor of Engineering and director of the Laboratory of Plasma Studies, and Robert J. Thomas, associate professor of electrical engineering and a specialist in electric power generation.

Edward L. Bernays Speaker at Dinner

Edward L. Bernays, who is regarded as the "father of public relations," will visit Cornell University to address the members of the Cornell chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America.

He will speak on "Engineering of Con-

SAGE CHAPEL

Congregational Minister To Give Sunday Sermon

Douglas J. Green, senior minister at the First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, will speak at Sage Chapel at 11 a.m. Sunday, April 28. His sermon topic will be "Pay Attention (Reflections on Being Too Busy)."

Before coming to Ithaca in 1979, Green served churches in southern Vermont and eastern Massachusetts. He is a native of Worcester, Mass., and has graduated from Worcester Academy, Franklin and Marshall College and Andover Newton Theological School.

Presently he is pursuing a doctor of ministry degree from Colgate Rochester Divinity School and studying psychotherapy at the Onondaga Pastoral Counseling Center in Syracuse.

Music for the service will be provided by the Sage Chapel Choir under the direction of Stephen May, acting university organist and choirmaster.

sent" at the banquet at 7 p.m., May 9, in the Statler Inn on the campus. The dinner is sponsored jointly by the Cornell chapter and the Chemung Valley professional chapter of the Public Relations Society of America.

The banquet and Bernays' presentation are open to the public, but reservations are required.

Bernays is a man of many firsts. He wrote the first book on public relations, taught the first university course in public relations, and was first to introduce the term "public relations counsel."

Tickets for the banquet can be obtained from Cornell's department of communication arts, 307 Roberts Hall, or by calling 256-2111. The dinner will cost $12.95 per person ($9.95 for Cornell PRSSA student members). The reception will take place in the Statler main lounge at 6 p.m., followed by the dinner in the west lounge at 7 p.m.

A Cornell Newsletter Published by Employees for Employees

Employees at Geneva discuss the new Select Benefits program after a BEN-EFAIR program held at the station there.

Select Benefits Program Explained at Geneva Station

By CHARIE ROBINSON
Approximately 180 employees of Cornell University's New York State Agricultural Experiment Station and Cornell Cooperative Extension attended two special sessions at Geneva on Tuesday, April 9, 1985 to learn about the new Select Benefits program, which will go into effect on July 1, 1985. Reaction to the program by employees was highly positive. Various facets of this select benefits program were explained by Lee Snyder, Director of University Personnel Services; Marilyn Paluba, Manager of Employee Benefits; Nathan Fawcett, Director of Finance for the Statutory Colleges; and David Yeh, Manager of Compensation. Two sessions were held during the day plus a special BEN-EFAIR after each session in which employees were given additional in-

3 Select BENEFITS options

- Before-Tax Health Care Plan Premium Contribution
- Medical Care Reimbursement Account
- Dependent Care Reimbursement Account

• Select Benefits informational meetings were attended by over 3000 on-campus employees during the first week in April.

- In addition, several departmental meetings have been scheduled throughout April. Nineteen more Select Benefits meetings will be held off-campus during April and early May.
- Three Contracts specifically addressing each of the options will be mailed to your campus address during April.
- More Select Benefits information and enrollment forms will be arriving at your home address during the first week in May.
- Remember, you can enroll in Select Benefits only during the month of May for the 1985 Plan Year. (Enrollment for the 1986 Plan Year will take place in November, 1985.)
- Endowed employees should contact University Personnel Services and Statutory employees should contact Statutory Colleges Finance and Business Office if you have any questions or did not receive information at the meetings.

Poetry Contest Committee Still Seeking New Members

Networking's Poetry Contest Committee is still seeking interested persons to serve. Help is needed to plan the contest, publish a booklet of poems, and host a reception for the winners.

Last year's First Annual Poetry Booklet is still on sale for only fifty cents. Mary Jane Curry's first prize poem "Pipe Dream" appears at left. If you are interested in serving on the Poetry Contest Committee, or would like to purchase a booklet, please call Linda English at 6-5274.

Pipe Dream
By MARY JANE CURRY

The summer I was thin
we were aboard the boat;
your uncle sipped gin and tonics. We stayed afloat with Broadway tunes
we hummed, note by note

until hoarse with sun; by the dunes we moored, grabbed sponges, dove like pelicans who croon and cruise the waters above, then swoop skim, attack. In thanks we scrubbed algae. I loved you differently then. The planks creaked only your name.

Our image, cleaning, yanks

this memory to my older brain;
after lunch, sea-sick
I rocked over waves, tame

as if caged; I wanted to lick the salt from my wounds, queasy and drowsy in the sun. A kick from the city, you said. Easy to laugh: the rocking motion of time strips away greasy drops of sweat, a potion of heat. I never told, but twice you divined a notion of love, planted like rice for a wedding. You knew as if steered by compass; a nice kid who could but coo denials of love. I scrub ingrained cages; I keep a zoo of former selves; a grizzly cub a chained and pleated peacock, a wild boar, snout in the grub of sea and sun where my heart's locked.

Hats off!

The Funny Side

Who is this man and what is he doing? This is Mike Kandrack, jack-of-all-trades. Mike keeps things humming around Bio-Chem, Wing Hall. One of the many things Mike does is to help with an experiment as he is doing in the picture. Some of the other tasks include keeping expensive research equipment working at top-notch speed. If it's broken, "Ole Bent Feather" will fix it. If it cannot be fixed, he will save it.

Self-Expression

"Please, I don't want to come to school today..."

By JAN THOMAS

On my way past I saw the dog;
Tail neatly tucked under him,
sitting ramrod straight,

and anxious eyes boring a hole through THE CLOSED DOOR -- waiting . . .
For that one person who could transform Rigid attentiveness into puppy-like delight.

"Won't you please come out now. I am waiting very hard."

When next I passed, I saw the dog had moved
A little closer to the DOOR.

Senses straining at each movement of that barrier;
instantly dismissing strange impressions;
Worried, uncomfortable, apprehensive .

"You did say, 'Wait here.' didn't you? I want to be sure I don't confuse the building or get the wrong person.
Please hurry - I miss you."

A few moments later, the dog had moved again.
Somebody had walked close to him and he had been AFRAID of getting in the way, of being yelled at;

of getting his tail stood on.
Now he settled on a strip of grass next to the road,
Eyes fixed on the closed door, but breaking the stare to glance quickly around him . . .

Defensive, embarrassed at being such a bother, uncertain what to do next.

"Please, please come out now and everything will be all right. I can smile at you and adore you and forget these fears that crowd me."

When I heard the car horn, I knew it was because of the dog.
He had backed onto the road to escape those relentless feet and shrouded figures, and yet remain

within sight of the DOOR.
Danger was on all sides now,
Breaking through his vigil and crowding his senses.

"I am frightened, and I think I might have missed you in the crowd. But I want to stay close in case you walk out the door and make everything all right again . . .

But there are so many people - I am confused and so sorry to have my paws stood on or bump my nose against legs. And the cars can't drive around me and honk their horns.

Oh, WHERE ARE YOU? Help me!"
I last saw the dog in the middle of the inter-class throng, Walking away from the DOOR to begin a search for that beloved face . . .

Looking over his shoulder all the way.
"Are you still there or did I make a mistake? Are you going to appear from behind a tree, ready to play, and I have to find the tree? I will search and if I can't find you,

perhaps I can get home safely tonight, or tomorrow, or . . .

Where are you?"

Leadership Leads

Leadership, like any other discipline, requires study and experience to be perfected. It is important, therefore, to note that there is nothing more impressive than ignorance. But according to Will Rogers, "Everyone is ignorant, only on different subjects."
That statement may be hard to accept in an educational institution, but, nevertheless, it deserves serious reflection.

Someone has said, "The thing which keeps people from developing into great leaders is that people of small (narrow) minds and big egos take strong exception when someone shows them what they have been doing wrong." Ego is the vital yeast which motivates leaders. But excess ego, like excess yeast, causes an abundance of excess air and poor results.

Many years ago the Chinese philosopher,
Lao-Tse, had this to say about leadership:
"As for the best leaders; people do not notice their existence; the next best, people honor and praise. The next, the people fear, and the next the people hate. When the best leaders' work is done, the people say, 'We did it ourselves'."

Perhaps we can all become more effective leaders as we learn to moderate ego with the modesty exemplified by the Chinese.

Task Force Announces Mother's Day Card Sale for 1985

A beautiful new edition of Mother's Day cards has been issued by the Tompkins County Task Force for Battered Women.
They are available at stores and tables all over town for $10 per pack of eight or $1.50 each. The 1985 card shows a fuchsia orchid with green foliage on a white card. The design, as in previous years, is by Margaret Corbit. Cards are available blank or inscribed with a simple Mother's Day message. All of the proceeds go to the Task Force. Call 277-3203 for more information.

MANAGING HUMAN RESOURCES

Cornell employees may be interested in a three-week course in Personnel and Human Resource Studies offered by the School of Industrial and Labor Relations and Cornell's Summer Session. Taught by Professor William J. Wasmuth, the class will be held June 11 - June 27 on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6-9 p.m.
Case studies, incidents, and role plays will be used to focus on how to effectively manage human resources. Behavioral theories will be applied to real-life situations that involve issues such as keeping lines of communication open, resolving bottlenecks in the workplace, handling disagreements to avoid "blow-ups," coping with organizational politics, and understanding the relationship of morale to productivity.

To register for ILR 361 Managing Human Resources, call or write Valerie Sellers, Division Registrar, Summer Session, Ex-tramural Study, and Related Programs,
Box 36, B12 Ives Hall, 256-4987.

Select Benefits

formation about all benefits that the endowed and statutory units of Cornell provide for employees. One of the sessions was held from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. and the other from 1:00 p.m. until 3:00 p.m.

This is part of a continuing education program by Cornell University to inform employees about the advantages of participating in such an expanded benefits program. Employees at the Station were especially pleased to have key personnel from the Ithaca campus take the time to come to Geneva to explain this new program first hand to them.

Dedicated Service Award

Many individuals at Cornell University contribute to the success of their department and the University through the use of talents that may not be recognized in their official job description.

Do you know someone who takes particular pride in their work, who exhibits a willingness and cheerfulness in the dispatch of their duties, who provides service beyond the call of duty, and who makes life at Cornell a rewarding experience for those with whom they come in contact? Networking is looking for special people you feel should be recognized for their special contribution. The Dedicated Service Award is open to any Cornell employee, regardless of rank.

Nominate someone today by filling in this form and please note that you should accompany your briolot with a paragraph explaining why you wish to nominate this person and a list of signatures from other department members supporting your candidate. If your candidate is selected, we will be in touch with you to supply additional information.
