THE number of degrees to be granted at the forty-sixth Commencement next June is 884, according to the present count. There will be 778 first degrees conferred, as follows: Bachelor of Arts, 155; Bachelor of Laws, 43; Bachelor of Science, 175; Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, 47; Bachelor of Architecture, 15; Civil Engineer, 125; and Mechanical Engineer 198. The 106 advanced degrees will be: Doctor of Medicine, 20; Master of Arts, 20; Master of Science in Agriculture, 16; Master in Forestry, 2; Master in Landscape Design, 2; Master of Civil Engineering, 6; Master of Mechanical Engineering, 8; Master of Architecture, 2; Doctor of Philosophy, 30. The foregoing figures are approximate, for they are all subject to change before June.

PROFESSOR FREDERICK VONDER LEYEN, of the University of Munich, non-resident lecturer at Yale, delivered a lecture on "Das Deutsche Maerchen" under the auspices of the Deutscher Verein last week. He declared that the fairy tale, as developed by Jacob and Hermann Grimm, is capable of scientific and scholarly treatment. He discussed the history and origin of the fairy tale. Professor von der Leyen left Ithaca for the west to lecture at the Universities of Chicago, Wisconsin, and Minnesota.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN went to Princeton, N. J., last week, and on Thursday and Friday evenings he delivered the Stafford Little Lectures on Public Affairs. His subject was "The Balkan Situation." The Princeton University Press will publish the lectures in book form, uniform with former Stafford Little Lectures delivered by President Cleveland, Joseph H. Choate and Elihu Root.

IMPROVEMENTS to Ithaca's street railway system are actually beginning. The first work to be undertaken is the double-tracking of the Tioga Street line, from State Street to Fall Creek. The company expects to have that job done by May 23, in time to use the increased facilities in the transportation of the crowds that will be here on Navy Day. Ten new cars have been ordered and they are to be delivered before May 23. The company's plans for further early improvement include double-tracking on State Street. That work was done by the old company and the receivers from Eddy Street to Geneva Street, and it will be continued to the Inlet.

FOR the first time since 1905 the headquarters of the American Economic Association are located at Cornell. Professor A. A. Young, of the department of economics, is the new secretary and treasurer, and Professor W. F. Willcox the vice-president. The business of the association, which enrolls at present about 2,600 members, is now carried on through the office of Professor Young in Goldwin Smith Hall. From 1893 to 1905 the headquarters of the association were in Ithaca, Professors J. W. Jenks, C. H. Hull, W. F. Willcox and F. A. Fetter serving successively as the secretary. Since 1905, the secretaryship has been held at Harvard and Princeton. The change in location does not affect the publication of the American Economic Review, which the association will continue to publish in Boston.

JOHN HUSTON FINLEY, President of the University of the State of New York and State Commissioner of Education, addressed a large gathering at the Agricultural Assembly last Thursday night. As Dr. Finley was engaged to speak only a short time before the assembly was held, he did not have time to prepare a speech on any particular subject. He spoke on the importance of agricultural education and of his own great interest in it, especially in the work of the College of Agriculture, in offering opportunities to the farmers of the state to avail themselves of an agricultural education.

A THEFT of several suits of clothes from the Alpha Tau Omega house during the spring vacation produced some excitement for the Ithaca police. They discovered the theft before the owners of the stolen property did, and arrested

Clarence Kenyon, 25 years old, of Ithaca, charging him with the crime. He was taken to the city court one morning last week for arraignment. Before court convened he found an opportunity to open a window and escape. Next day he was traced to a house on Third Street. The sheriff and the chief of police went after him. He got away again and led them a chase across the flooded flats to the lighthouse. There he started to swim across the cold Inlet, but thought better of it and was retaken. He is now in jail awaiting the next session of the grand jury. The stolen property was recovered.

PROFESSOR J. A. WINANS, of the department of oratory, was re-elected president of the Eastern Public Speaking Conference at the annual convention of that organization held at the College of the City of New York last week. The department was also represented at the convention by Professor G. B. Muchmore. Delegates from all of the large eastern universities were present.

CLINTON D. SMITH '73, the first president of the Agricultural College of Brazil, was the principal speaker on Brazilian Night, last Saturday, at the Cosmopolitan Club. Other entertainment was provided by Brazilian students.

THE NINTH ANNUAL BANQUET of the Cornell Club of Oswego County will be held at the Hotel Pontiac, in Oswego, next Saturday night. President Schurman has accepted the club's invitation to address it.

FIFTY-TWO FRATERNITIES AND CLUBS will fight for the championship of the Interfraternity Baseball League this spring. The teams have been divided by the committee into nine leagues, the play in each league beginning April 22. Winners in each division will receive a silver cup, and will compete in a series for the championship of the entire league, the winner to receive a large silver cup which has been offered by the A. J. Reach sporting goods company. The schedule comprises 127 games and will last until May 12.

President's Address

The Functions of His Office—Some Figures Concerning Athletics

In his address to the Cornell men of New York City at the smoker given Saturday evening last at the Aldine Club President Schurman, besides dealing with the University matters which he had already presented at other alumni gatherings, called attention to two subjects which he had not previously discussed.

One of these has to do with the problem of raising funds for the privately endowed universities of America. Cornell University is now engaged in an effort to improve its business organization. The question was whether it were possible in this organization to make better provisions for the purpose of systematically raising funds to increase the endowment or income of the University. In the case of the small colleges and demoninational universities this business was left largely to the president, but in the case of the larger universities the president already had so many other functions that it was impossible for him to undertake this additional task, even if it were supposed that any president had the qualifications for it. No American university had in recent years received larger gifts than Columbia,—a circumstance due primarily to the fact that Columbia was located in the largest and richest city of America. It was especially interesting, therefore, to note that the right relation of the president to the problems of raising money for his university had never been more correctly described than in the Columbia University Quarterly as follows:

Inquiry made of the president of our own university would, we are confident, reveal the fact that no appreciable portion of his task is the getting of money and that no important fraction of his time is devoted to that end. Inquiries made of the presidents of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell and Johns Hopkins Universities would have much the same result. The presidents of state universities do, it is true, have to urge the claims of their institutions upon the attention of successive legislatures, but this is only just and due to the tax-paying public.

The fact is that the wise president knows that the best way to gain help for his university is not to ask for it, but to aid in building up an institution that deserves it. Occasionally, it will be wise to bring a specific and pressing need to the attention of some one person, but such occasions are ordinarily few and far between. To assert, or to assume, that the college president spends much or all of his time in work of this sort, is a ludicrous travesty upon his real duties.

"A few years ago," President Schurman said, "there was raised for Harvard University over two million dollars as a professorial salary fund. The president of the university had nothing whatever to do with the raising of this fund. Indeed, President Eliot told me that he had never at any time asked for a cent for Harvard University. The money was raised by a committee of which an alumnus was chairman, and half of the two million dollars was raised in this City of New York by the active co-operation of a sub-committee of two alumni. Whether it would be possible for Cornell University to supplement the activities of the Cornellian Council by a similar effort of this kind it is not for me to say. It is, however, important for all the alumni and friends of the University to take home to their hearts the lesson that if the endowment of the University is to be increased—and an increase is very greatly needed—it is through and by them the work must be done, as it is done at Harvard, Columbia, Yale and elsewhere. Will not Cornell men endorse the sentiment which the Harvard Committee expressed to the Harvard alumni in their appeal for the professorial endowment fund:

"The time has now come when the sons of Harvard may rally to her help and in grateful love make her the gift of an endowment of at least $2,500,000, to increase the present totally inadequate amount available for the salaries of the teaching staff of the College."

The other matter to which the President referred had to do with the danger of athletics usurping too large a portion of the energies and interests of Cornell undergraduates. There were two ways of studying this question. First, a comparison might be made of the number of intercollegiate contests at Cornell as compared with those of other large eastern universities. And for that purpose three large typical eastern universities had been selected and they had kindly furnished answers to the questions addressed to them. An accompanying table (Table I) shows the number of intercollegiate contests in all sports, both major and minor, at Cornell and at these three leading eastern universities.

This table shows that we have fewer major sports or contests at Cornell University than the other three universities have. The proportion of the total major sports or contests played away from home in the four institutions is as follows: Cornell, 44%; University No. 1, 43%; University No. 2, 58%; and University No. 3, 37%.

It will also be seen there is no great difference between the total number of minor sport contests, University No. 3 ranking the lowest with 53 and Cornell next with 62. On the other hand the table shows that Cornell plays more minor sports games away from home than any one of the other three universities, the proportion being as follows: Cornell, 63%; University No. 1, 53%; University No. 2, 55%, and University No. 3, 39%.

The grand totals for all sports show that Cornell has a few less contests than the other universities cited. The total for Cornell is 135, of which 71, or 53%, are played away from home. But these 71 contests include 18 played in baseball, lacrosse and association football during the Easter recess, and there are three crew races at Poughkeepsie after the year is closed. None of these contests therefore interfere with academic work (in the sense that the students are not absent while the university is in session). This decreases the number of contests for which leaves of absence are required to 50, which is 37% of the total.

The second test is the scholarship of the men engaged in these intercollegiate contests. The other table gives instructive information on that point. President Schurman said:

"I have often in the past expressed my appreciation of the excellent influence exerted by Mr. Courtney in the maintenance of a high scholastic standing in Cornell University. And it is therefore with the greatest pleasure that I call attention to the fact that the average standing of the varsity crew men is the highest on this list. There is perhaps a fitness in the fact that the standing of the men in swimming should be equal to that of the oarsmen. No other record on the list is so high.

"If you ask me how this standing compares with the scholastic standing of students throughout the University as a whole, I am glad to be in a position to answer the question. And I can answer it with reference both to fraternity men and to non-fraternity men. In the present year there are about 1500 fraternity men in the University, and their average standing during the first term was 70.7%. The average standing of non-fraternity men for the same time was 74.2%. In both cases the standing is somewhat higher than the returns showed two years ago. Now it is very interesting to note that the average standing of the men engaged in these intercollegiate contests as shown in the table is higher than the average standing of fraternity men in the University, and of all the 51 fraternities in the University, including such organizations as Acacia, Alpha Zeta and the Telluride Association, there are none, except the three just mentioned, which have as high an average standing as the varsity crew."

TWO PRIZES AWARDED

Two University prizes were awarded in the past week, the Guilford Essay Prize, and the Morrison Prize for poetry.

E. R. de Lima '14, of New York, won the Guilford prize with an essay entitled "The Immigrant and American Labor," an argument for immigration restriction. De Lima is the son of E. A. de Lima, B.S., '86, president of the Battery Park National Bank of New York.

Paul B. Schumm '15, of New York, won the Morrison Prize for two poems, "The Captive" and "A Winter Walk." The latter is a description of nature, and "The Captive" consists of two sonnets. Schumm is the son of George Schumm, B.S., '81.

PROFESSOR KARAPETOFF concludes this week a series of four lecture-recitals on Chopin, given in Barnes Hall.

Business Administration

Meeting of the Trustees Committee Held Last Saturday

A meeting was held in New York last Saturday by the committee of the Trustees which is considering a revision of the business administration and methods of the University. The committee received with interest and appreciation suggestions and recommendations from alumni associations through delegates and communications.

Delegates were present from the associated alumni of Boston, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Cleveland, Wilmington and Ithaca, and from the Cornell Society of Civil Engineers. Communications were read from others and the committee now has a very comprehensive scheme for the betterment of Cornell's business administration. But so many details are yet to be studied by its members that it will be necessary to hold another meeting to draft a final report for presentation to the Trustees at their June meeting. This committee meeting will be held in Ithaca on Monday, May 25.

SMOKER IN NEW YORK

About four hundred men turned out for the old-fashioned Cornell smoker at the Aldine Club in New York last Saturday night. Everything went off very well and everybody seemed to be having a fine time. Music was furnished by a ducky band of mandolins, guitars, piano and drum, and as all the players were singers they made the evening go.

Eads Johnson was chairman of the reception committee. He had eight or ten men whom he dressed up in paper caps and they carried policemen's clubs. The crowd began to arrive shortly after eight o'clock, and about a quarter of nine the police corps, with the assistance of the drum, began ushering in prominent men, such as Bert Hanson, Bill Ricker, Frank Lehigh, and Trustees Edwards, Barr and Westinghouse. At about a quarter past nine President Schurman was ushered in. His arrival was greeted enthusiastically and three short yells were given with the assistance of a recent cheerleader. After the President's arrival "Alma Mater" was sung. Jack Westervelt, the president of the Cornell Club of New York, introduced the President, whose address was heard with close attention and with frequent applause.

Funds for Christian Association

Faculty Pledges $2,000 a Year—Solicitation of Alumni

The Christian Association has just made a special canvass of the Faculty for the purpose of obtaining pledges of money for the association's support during the next three years. Pledges amounting to $2,000 a year were obtained from Faculty members. The association regards this as a generous contribution. In the past the amount received from that source has been $500 a year.

At the same time the association has begun a canvass of alumni. Permission was granted by the Cornellian Council for direct solicitation of alumni for this purpose. Letters have been sent thus far to about 300 selected graduates, and already more than $300 a year had been pledged for the next three years.

Undergraduates have shown a willingness to contribute more largely to the association's support. Their contribution this year amounts to $2,800. The contribution of the students has doubled in the last two years.

The need of these larger gifts has been caused by the association's action in employing Mr. Charles W. Whitehair to serve for a term of years as its general secretary. A permanent secretary, with experience in such work, was needed to carry on the activities which had been undertaken. The budget of the association, therefore, will be increased from $4,000 to $6,500 a year.

The Cornell association is now trying, and has been trying for a few years past, to broaden its activities, to interest a greater number of students in its work, and to serve Cornell undergraduates in some of the ways which similar associations in other universities have found for themselves. Its ambition, for example, is to make Barnes Hall more useful, not only as a center of religious life, but as a common meeting place and general center of undergraduate life. It has lately undertaken several kinds of work such as have been carried on successfully by the Christian Associations of other universities.

It was with the purpose of extending and strengthening the work in all these departments that the trustees of the association determined to seek a mature, experienced secretary of demonstrated fitness, who should come with the expectation of remaining permanently. They chose Mr. Whitehair. He will begin his work here very soon. In the past the secretaries have been, for the most part, young men just out of college, most of whom were not expecting to make association work their life work. After finding in Mr. Whitehair a man whom they believe measures up to the requirements of the post, the trustees of the association made their appeal to the university community, with the gratifying results stated at the beginning of this article.

Mr. Whitehair recently returned from the general secretaryship of the Madras, India, Young Men's Christian Association. He is a graduate of DuPauw University, class of 1909. In college he was a leader in all forms of university activities, particularly athletics. He was president of his class, a member of the varsity football team, and field marshal of the annual college celebration during his junior and senior years; a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity; president of the University Christian Association and chairman of the Bible Study Committee. He acquired business experience in working his way through college and in the management of student enterprises.

Upon graduation Mr. Whitehair accepted appointment as student secretary of the college department of the Kansas State Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations, in which capacity he traveled among the colleges, aiding them in organizing and promoting their work. He gained wide experience in organization and intimate knowledge of association problems, and he won a place of large influence.

In January, 1912, Mr. Whitehair sailed for India, and he was fulfilling every promise of a successful career when called home for reasons of family health. He was national secretary of Young Men's Christian Associations throughout Southern India, and in this capacity he displayed ability, both financial and religious, in the direction of a large work. At the same time he served as general secretary of the Madras Association.

French Medals for Cornell

Society of French Architects Offers Two Prizes for Work in Design

Professor Georges Mauxion of the College of Architecture has received a letter from the President of the Société des Architectes Diplômés par le Gouvernement Français which is flattering to Cornell University. The French society, perhaps the most influential architectural association in the world, was organized not only to keep its members in touch with the work of the Ecole des Beaux Arts but to propagate the methods of that institution and to raise the standards of architecture all over the world. As one step toward the carrying out of this program, the Société des Architectes Diplômés has offered to Cornell two medals, one of gold and one of silver, to be given as prizes for student work. No conditions are imposed, and the College of Architecture will be able to organize the competition for these prizes in the way best suited to American conditions.

Cornell is highly honored and is most fortunate in being able to add these medals to the various prizes she is already offering as incentives to her students for their work in Design. Whether a special competition will be arranged for the medals or the medals will be awarded for the best thesis design of the senior class has not yet been decided. In either case the work required for the prizes will be in harmony with the ideal and methods of the French school, and a special name will be given the prizes. An effort will be made to express the obligation which American students feel toward France for the generous welcome she has extended to them, and for the admirable example in art—an evolution which would never have been possible except for the unselfish devotion of her great artists and their untiring efforts to improve and to raise the standards of the Ecole des Beaux Arts.

Fuertes Prize Speaking

Won by H. B. Pope of the College of Civil Engineering

Speaking on "The Development of the Water Power of Fall Creek," H. B. Pope '14, C.E., of Haddonfield, N. J., won the second annual Fuertes Memorial speaking contest held in Sibley Dome Friday night. The prize was $100. The second prize of $20 was won by B. P. Goldman '14, M.E., who spoke on "The Stumpf Una-flow Steam Engine."

Pope outlined in a thorough manner a plan to utilize the water power of Fall Creek, by means of two dams, one to be located just below Varna and the other further up the stream. By means of this system of reservoirs, Pope declared, sufficient power could be generated to supply all the needs of the University, the city lighting and trolley systems, and numerous manufacturing plants.

He began by pointing out the fact that the University power plant at present does not furnish enough power to supply the need of the University alone during the summer months when the water in Fall Creek is unusually low. His plan is to store up water in the two reservoirs in sufficient quantity to supply all the University needs in time of emergency, generating enough additional power to sell municipal and manufacturing consumers at a lower rate than they are paying at present. The power house, which would be constructed at the foot of the Ithaca Falls, would connect by pipe with the Varna reservoir. With this construction Pope estimated that a head of water could be carried down to develop 4500 horse power net. The cost he figured at $1,200,000, and the annual expense, including interest, operating expense, and depreciation, $105,000. With this expense, he declared that the University could sell surplus power profitably for about one-half cent per horse power hour, which is less than half the average price of power in this locality.

The other men who took part in the contest were: Y. T. Chen '14, Warren Packard '14, S. A. Pope, '14, C. W. Worcester '14, and Adlai Coble '15.

Director Smith of Sibley College presided and the following men acted as judges: Professor I. P. Church '73, of the College of Civil Engineering; Professor Herman Diederichs '97, of the College of Mechanical Engineering; Professor G. A. Everett '99, of the College of Agriculture; Professor A. C. Phelps, of the College of Architecture, and Henry A. St. John, former superintendent of the Ithaca Board of Public Works.

The Fuertes prize in public speaking was founded by Charles H. Baker '86.

Association Football.—After losing every game played up to Saturday, the soccer team took a decided brace and tied Pennsylvania, the league leaders, on Alumni Field, each team scoring two goals. A new lineup was tried out and proved successful. Three sophomores, Dyer, Landres, and Montgomery, played their first game for the varsity, and acquitted themselves well. Pennsylvania scored a goal in each half. With the score 1 to 0 against them, the Cornell men came back strong in the second half, scoring two goals to their opponents' one.

Plans for Spring Day

A Moving Picture Show and Other New Features

Spring Day this year will depart from custom in some of its features. Some of the changes are designed particularly to interest the alumni who are expected to return. A moving picture show in the Armory will be a new departure which is planned to entertain the old grads especially. The films shown will be largely of an athletic character, showing various teams in games and in practice. Pictures of the crews in spring training will be a feature intended to show the development of the oarsmen up to the Spring Day regatta.

An official costume will be adopted, with which Cornell undergraduates will adorn themselves during the entire day. Special costumes will be provided for Yale and Princeton men in town for the ball game and the races.

The shows will be of a much more dignified nature this year, as most of the farcical entertainments characteristic of past Spring Days have been discarded for more talented exhibits. The committee plans to secure all the high class entertainers of the University to take part in the event. The carnival will probably be staged on the Armory Green.

THE office of the Secretary of the University is now equipped to furnish promptly information of various kinds not only about the University itself but about alumni organizations and about alumni generally. In the Secretary's office a complete list of alumni, with addresses, is kept up to date as thoroughly as possible. New addressing apparatus which the University has provided enables the Secretary to make corrections in this list with a minimum of labor, to address circulars to the alumni promptly, and to answer inquiries for information without delay. One list which the Secretary now keeps ready for instant reference is the list of local alumni associations and clubs and the names and addresses of their secretaries. Last year we published the list in this paper, but within a few weeks after its publication it had become incorrect. Changes are occurring so constantly in the list that it would have to be published in full almost every week in order to make it of service when it was needed. Its publication has not seemed necessary this year because of the fact that the University itself is ready to furnish a copy of it at any time. The Secretary asks us to say that any one who has occasion to communicate with the local alumni associations may obtain a correct list of their secretaries from him promptly and without charge. Inquiries should be addressed to The Secretary, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

THE CHEERLEADERS are trying to revive the "old yell"—the original, simple, snappy Cornell yell. At the baseball game last Saturday they succeeded in teaching the freshmen to give it down pretty well, in something like the fashion of the '80s and '90s. A large number of the freshmen had responded to an invitation to come to the field early and practice the old yell. Professor Durham helped to show them how it should be given. Before the game was over they were giving it correctly and were making more noise with it than the steel stand was making with the "three short ones."

RALPH NORMAN ANGELL LANE ("Norman Angell"), author of the "The Great Illusion" and managing director of the Paris edition of the London Daily Mail, delivered a University lecture last week on "America and International Polity." He urged the creation of a "world state," and depicted the futility of warfare. Besides arguing in general for world peace, he expressed himself as strongly opposed to United States intervention in Mexico. After the lecture Mr. Lane answered many questions put to him by persons in the audience.

WITH A SUM of $5,000 already pledged, the alumni pledge committee of the class of 1914 expects to finish its work this week. Although the subscriptions thus far have not come up to the record gift of the class of 1913, the committee has strong hopes of surpassing that mark this week.

BISHOP McDOWELL, of Chicago, will preach in Sage Chapel next Sunday.

Reunion Headquarters

Five Year Classes Asked to Share Quarters with Other Classes

Dr. Henry P. de Forest '84, president of the Association of Class Secretaries, has sent a letter to the secretaries of all the classes which are to hold reunions next June, suggesting a plan for the entertainment of members of non-reunion classes who are to be in Ithaca at that time. The plan is for each reunion class to ask the alumni of certain other classes to share its headquarters. In recent reunions this plan was adopted by some classes and it worked very well. The letter follows:

To Class Secretaries of All Classes Holding Reunions on Alumni Days, June, 1914:

Many plans have been proposed in times past to make our Alumni days at Ithaca at Commencement time more truly representative of all of the classes of the University than they have been up to the present time. The plan which was suggested several years ago of having class reunions arranged in groups of fives at irregular intervals has never been actually adopted, though the plan has much to commend it.

At the Midwinter Meeting of Class Secretaries which was held this year I ventured to suggest another plan which, seems to me, will enable all Cornellians to have class reunions at the orthodox five year intervals and at the same time make suitable provisions for visiting Alumni of all classes who may be present in Ithaca at Commencement time.

The plan proposed is to have each "Reunion Class" the center of attraction, as it properly should be, but to provide for the relatively few scattered representatives of other classes to formally invite any members of the two classes which immediately preceded the Reunion Class and the two which immediately followed it to look upon the headquarters of the Reunion Class as their own headquarters. Thus the Class of '84, to use my own class as an illustration, plans to invite any members of the classes of '82, '83, '85, and '86 who may be present in Ithaca on Alumni Day to be present at the Reunion Dinner of the Class of '84 and to feel that they are both by courtesy and by right expected to be active participants in Reunion Celebrations.

As a matter of fact, while we were in the University we oftentimes had quite as many intimate friends in the two adjacent classes on either side as we had in our own. At any rate, this plan seems a feasible one and if you as the representative of your own class will inaugurate this custom at the coming Commencement, I feel sure that in the future subsequent classes will be inclined to follow our example and each year those of us who can go back to Ithaca on Alumni Day will feel sure of a cordial welcome at some Class Headquarters even though it is not our own reunion year. I would greatly appreciate it if you will reply to me at once telling me of your acceptance and making any suggestions which may occur to you to make the coming Commencement an enjoyable and memorable one.

Cordially yours,
HENRY P. DE FOREST, M.D.,

POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA
TICKETS

Owing to the large demand for tickets to the Poughkeepsie Regatta, mail orders will be received and filed according to date, when accompanied by checks. Seats are $2.50 each. If the tickets are to be mailed, order must be accompanied by 14 cents for postage and registration. Make checks payable to the Cornell University Athletic Association.

The above will apply to undergraduates, as well as graduates.

OBSERVATION TRAIN TICKETS FOR THE NAVY DAY REGATTA

Tickets for the Navy Day Regatta (Princeton-Yale-Cornell) will be sold this year by mail order, and all mail applications will be filled before the seats are put on public sale. These applications for tickets will be filled in the order in which they are received. You can either mail or leave in person your order with check at the Athletic Office any time from now on. The earlier your application is filed, the better seats will be allotted you.

The same holds true in regard to seats for the Poughkeepsie Regatta.

Next Saturday's Game Cancelled

The team from the North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College has cancelled the game which was scheduled to be played on Percy Field next Saturday. Instead there will be a match game between two Cornell teams.

In the two games of the last week Dr. Sharpe has kept up the competition for places in the outfield and at third base, making work with the bat the chief test of a player's merit. The team has done well against the pitchers it has met thus far.

Cornell 10: Tufts 7

The team started badly in the game with Tufts, but did some hard hitting in the third and sixth innings and came out ahead. Rain during the last half of the contest caused a great deal of loose fielding.

Traub began the game as Cornell's pitcher, but he had no control. After hitting the first batter and passing the next two he gave place to Bryant. With the bases full and nobody out, Bryant caught the man on third napping. Then he gave another pass and filled the bases again. The next batter was out on a foul fly to Schirick. Then came a fly to right field which should have retired the side without a score, but Grossman dropped the ball and two runs came in. Unearned runs in the second and third innings gave Tufts a lead which they maintained till the sixth.

In that inning Cornell obtained five hits, including two three-baggers, and Tufts contributed two errors. Baugher began the inning, and was safe on a misjudged fly to center field. Taber sacrificed, and Ludwig was put out, but Sutterby singled to left and Baugher scored. Bryant then singled, making his third safe hit of the game. Schirick drove the ball to deep center for three bases. Donovan was safe on an error at first. Bills tripled, and came home on Gordon's single. Baugher, who had started the inning, ended it with a fly to the left fielder.

Passes by Bryant assisted Tufts to runs in the seventh and eighth, and a two base hit and muffed fly gave them another in the ninth. Loose fielding was chiefly responsible for two runs which Cornell added to her score in the eighth. The score:

Cornell 13: Niagara 2

The Niagara team came to Ithaca without much previous practice. For five innings the contest was even. But the visitors could not hit Russell, and in the last three innings Cornell made ten hits off Sheridan, which difference made the final score very uneven.

Russell's pitching was the remarkable feature of the game. He gave only four safe hits, and struck out fourteen men. In the third, fourth and fifth innings, seven of the nine put-outs were strike-outs by Russell, and in the seventh he struck out three men. His weak innings were the first, in which Niagara made two hits, and the eighth, in which he passed two batters and was hit for one single.

Three base hits—Donovan, Blake. Two base hit—Adair. Sacrifice hit—Hobson. Stolen bases—Donovan, Bills, Hobson, Taber 2, Fitzgerald. First base on balls—Off Russell, 2. Hit by pitched ball—Fitzgerald, by Russell; Bills, by Sheridan. Struck out—By Russell, 14; by Sheridan, 2. Left on bases—Cornell, 6; Niagara, 4. Passed balls—Sheridan, 2. Umpire—Donohue.

An encouraging feature of the game was the improvement in batting shown by Taber and Adair. Each of them hit safely three times, and one of Adair's drives was good for two bases.

Donovan made an acrobatic steal home in the seventh inning. He was on third, and Hobson, on first, started a steal. Donovan had a good lead, watching his chance, but the pitcher intercepted the throw from the catcher and Donovan was unable to get back to the bag. The pitcher, the catcher, the third baseman and most of the other players surrounded him and chased him up and down the base line, but he took advantage of one poor throw and squirmed across the plate.

Eleven Cornell men went to bat in the eighth inning and seven of them scored. Hits were made in that inning for a total of seven bases, and errors by Niagara fielders helped in the run getting.

For the Pennsylvania Relays

A Four Mile and a One Mile Team Picked to Represent Cornell

Final trials at Percy Field last Monday were the basis on which Coach Moakley picked the Cornell entrants in the Pennsylvania Relay Carnival to be held next Saturday. The four mile team, which will compete against the invading Oxford four and the pick of the American teams, will be composed of C. L. Speiden '15, D. F. Potter '16, C. F. Souder '16, and H. E. Irish '16. These four men finished in the order named in the race Monday. Speiden finished seventeen yards in the lead, in 4:39, the slow time being partly accounted for by the muddy track. Potter and Souder finished only one fifth of a second apart, and Irish, the third sophomore to make the team, was a fairly close fourth.

The one mile team will be composed of D. S. Caldwell '14, J. S. Lewis '16, A. F. VanWinkle '16, and A. B. Mehaffey '15. The first three men have been picked for some time from their showing in the indoor meets and the early spring tryouts. Mehaffey won his position in the quartet by defeating four other contestants in a quarter mile race Monday. His time was 54 seconds. Caldwell is easily the best of the four, having a record of 49 3-5 seconds in the quarter. VanWinkle is good for about 51, while Mehaffey has done about 52. Lewis has never been carefully timed in the 440.

Coach Moakley has no strong hopes of winning either of the relay races in view of the fact that the Cornell runners are nearly all untried men. He concedes the four mile race to the Englishmen on the basis of their past performances. The main purpose in sending the teams is to develop the men by giving them the experience needed for the intercollegiates.

About a dozen men will be picked this week to represent Cornell in the sprints, hurdle, and field events. It is certain that Captain A. M. Shelton '14 will be entered in the hurdle, and H. H. Ingersoll '15 may run in the 100 yard dash.

Lacrosse.—Cornell easily defeated Hobart at Geneva Saturday by a score of six goals to two. The game was a practice match and does not count in the league standings. Cornell scored three goals in each half, while Hobart made one.
