THE FINISH OF THE DECORATION DAY RACE

Brilliant Regatta Week

Junior Crew Defeats Penn in Exciting Race—Large Crowds Attracted by the Regatta

Regatta week, revived after a lapse of two years, was in many respects the climax of the season's calendar, athletic as well as social. It brought the final home game of the season, and the only home regatta; to the great majority of undergraduates, who do not stay in Ithaca for Senior week, it brought the final social functions of the year. Many grads. were attracted to Ithaca, as always, by a desire to see the team and the crew and the University itself, in action, rather than wait until Commencement time, when the works are closed down for the season.

The week was a success from every point of view. Cornell triumphed on diamond and water under favorable conditions as to weather and in the presence of a large and happy throng of spectators. The regatta concert of the Musical clubs at the Lyceum theater on Tuesday evening was the most largely attended in the history of the affair, while the Navy ball which followed was thoroughly enjoyable.

The concert opened the program of the week. The playhouse was packed to the doors with a brilliant audience of students and their guests, assembled to hear once more the band of musicians which had won triumphs in the past few months at Princeton and Harvard and in many a city of the South and Middle West. The program contained several brand new numbers and the audience showed its appreciation by repeated encores; but the clubs apparently had not yet recovered from the strain of the trip to Cambridge, for their form was by no means up to the usual high standard. The Mandolin club's new medley, "A Grand Old Rag," arranged by George L. Coleman, '95, was well received, as were also the bass solo, "I Dreamed a Dream," by Edward A. Steele, '06, who succeeded C. E. Tourison as Glee club leader, and the quartet's new jingle, "Plinky Plunk," the words of which were written by Romeyn Berry, '04.

As the curtain fell on the last strains of the "Evening Song," most of the audience repaired to the Campus to continue the evening's pleasures at the Navy ball. The big hall was tastefully adorned with the Red and White of Cornell and the Red and Blue of her rival on the water, while from the center of the ceiling was suspended an eight-oared shell. The floor was comfortably filled with some three or four hundred dancers, who glided gaily on till well into the morning.

Regatta day dawned bright and warm, and early in the forenoon the crowds began to pour into the city by carriage and train and motor car. Special trains came in from various points in the vicinity and by noon several thousand strangers had gathered in the city.

Percy field was thronged for the Pennsylvania game in the afternoon. The stands were filled one by one and then the crowd overflowed in a huge semi-circle around the track. The bleachers were alive with a merry throng in which waving banners mingled with the bright gowns of the ladies to give color and animation to the picture. When Captain Welch's team scored its three runs in the third inning and a victory was virtually assured, the enthusiasm of the crowd knew no bounds. From that moment every face bore a smile that only broadened as the afternoon wore on.

THE REGATTA

It was not yet four o'clock when the game was finished and the crowd streamed from the field to the observation train at the Inlet. The twenty-nine cars which composed the long train were gradually filled and promptly at 5:15 p. m. the start was made for the lake shore. As the train glided around the curves, the passengers rose and waved their greetings from car to car, and the brilliancy of the picture in all its dazzling color will not soon be forgotten.

The four crews which were to take part in the preliminary race—two Freshman eights and two from Cascadilla—were ready when the train arrived at the starting point and in an instant they were off. The first Freshman boat soon pulled away from its rivals, but the contest between the second Freshmen and first Cascadilla crew was a pretty one throughout. The prep. school lads were in second place at the mile point, but just then No. 1 caught a large sized crab and the shell almost came to a standstill. The crew soon recovered and redoubled its efforts, with a stroke of more than 40 to the minute, but although they regained some of the distance lost, they crossed the line four lengths behind the second Freshmen, who were in turn a length and a half behind the first boat.

Once more the long train steamed down to the starting point, which this time was farther down the lake, as the preliminary race had been only a mile and five-sixteenths in length. Pennsylvania had chosen the inside course, and the crews lined up for the start. As the pistol flashed, both boats got away in excellent form, with Penn a few feet ahead. After the first few strokes, Coxswain Rankin dropped the Cornell stroke to 32, at which it staid throughout the race, without a single spurt until the final twenty strokes that carried the shell over the line. Penn was rowing a 34 stroke, and the two boats sped along for a quarter mile with scarcely a yard's difference between them. Then Cornell began to pull away, and slowly, almost imperceptibly the nose of their shell crept ahead of its rival.

At the mile Cornell led by half a length, but the victory was not yet assured, and the thousands of spectators on the observation train and the fleet of excursion steamers watched every sweep of the blades with breathless interest. It was one of the prettiest races ever seen on Lake Cayuga.

As the crews entered the narrow channel between the long rows of pleasure craft that lined the last half mile, Cornell was almost a full length ahead. Then Penn began to spurt, but without avail. Still pulling its slow, steady stroke of 32 to the minute, the Red and White boat slowly drew away. Finally as it swept on to the finish, Stroke Holt called for the final twenty, and with a splendid burst of speed the Cornell shell shot over the line a winner by a length and a quarter. The official time was: Cornell, 11 minutes, 12-5 seconds; Pennsylvania, 11 minutes, 5 seconds.

The two crews rowed as follows:

Cornell:—Bow, T. Earle, '08; 2, T. H. King, '07; 3, T. G. Remsen, '08; 4, C. J. Goodier, '07; 5, J. M. Acklin, '06; 6, L. R. Gracey, '08; 7, T. W. B. Welsch, '08; stroke, J. W. Holt, '08; coxswain, G. W. Rankin, '07.

Pennsylvania:—Bow, J. W. Hendrie; 2, Philler; 3, Dodge; 4, D. Hendrie; 5, Lavery; 6, Townsend; 7, Scheling; stroke, Emig; coxswain, Moore.

At a meeting of the Athletic council held Monday evening, May 21, the election of George Tandy Cook, '08, as captain of the football team for 1906, was ratified. Fencing and wrestling insignia were awarded. H. Heckheimer, '06, captain of this year's fencing team, was awarded a "C" for his work in this branch. The election of a faculty adviser for the Minor Sports association was deferred until the next meeting. No final action was taken on the election of athletic managers or the ratification of the football schedule for next fall.

Palo Alto Relief Work

Prof. G. H. Marx, '93, Describes Situation
—“Joe” Beacham Commended

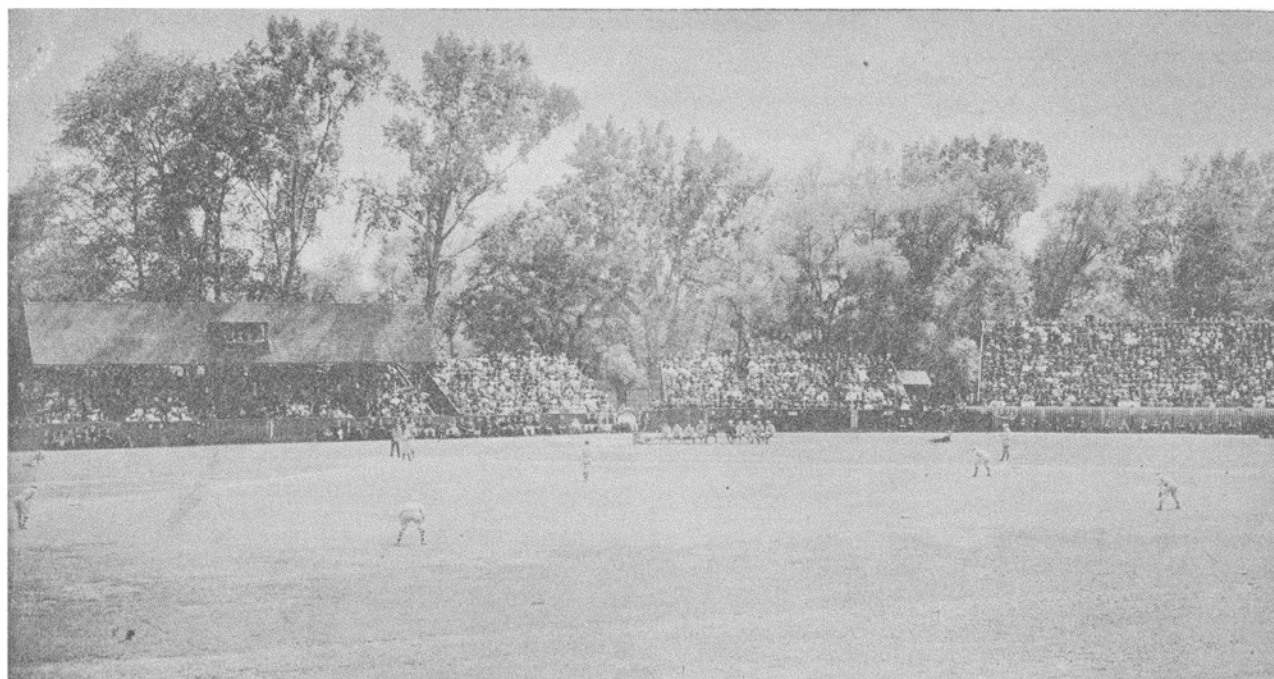

In view of the large number of Cornell people at Stanford University, the following letter, dated May 23, from Professor Guido H. Marx, '93, to a classmate in Ithaca, will be of interest:

“Thanks for your kind wishes. Beyond four chimney tops knocked off my house, we suffered no damage from the shock. In general it may be said that well designed and constructed buildings on solid (i. e. not ‘made’) ground suffered very little damage—with the exception of brick buildings laid in lime mortar.

“The older University buildings are damaged very little or not at all; the recently constructed ‘show’ buildings are pretty badly rattled down. As the latter were either not in use or can be repaired temporarily, work can go on this fall as usual.

“Locally we have not been troubled about our slight injury, but have been very busy looking after and aiding in many ways the San Franciscans whose city was just about wiped out by the fire which followed the earthquake. Citizens, students and faculty, grasping the situation, at once organized a very effective relief service, so that next to the U. S. Army, Palo Alto was first on the ground with supplies and a competent staff of workers. General Funston, whose prompt and effective action cannot be too much appreciated and commended (his own word is that he ‘broke every military rule and regulation’ and I might add many civil laws also) put us in charge of a large territory: everything south of the Valencia street station to the county line.

“We organized relief stations at Colma, Ocean View and Valencia street and kept them going until the Red Cross society was ready to take them over. Besides taking care of hundreds of refugees here in Palo Alto, we sent up to our relief stations 10,000 gallons of milk (1,000 gallons a day on the average, partly sterilized and bottled for hospitals and infants—kept up until the milk dealers were in a position to resume their routes), 70,000 loaves of bread, 1,000 grain sacks of clothing, all assorted ready for distribution and including over 100 complete infant outfits, hundreds of dollars’ worth of drugs and hospital supplies, and tons of baked beans, crackers, canned goods, boiled eggs, dried fruits, etc., etc.

"As I was in charge of our local camps and meals for refugees as well as the supplies for San Francisco, I had my hands pretty full, and for two weeks following the shock never got more than three or four hours of sleep in the twenty-four. Although we have still about twenty-five students assisting the Red Cross in San Francisco, our work has practically come to an end.

"Cornell folks will be interested to know that General Greeley highly commended the signal service work (electric wiring and establishing telegraphic connections and maintaining same under great difficulties) of Lieutenant Beacham, formerly a football captain at Cornell.

"Very truly yours,
"G. H. MARX."

Team Ends Season Well

Defeats Penn, Andover and Harvard—
Deshon Pitches Each Time

The concluding week of the baseball season brought three victories—over Pennsylvania, Andover academy and Harvard. Of the three, the Andover game was perhaps the most important, for Andover has beaten Yale and is generally acknowledged one of the strongest teams on the diamond. The Cornell team has lost but three games this season—two with Princeton and one with Yale. Just where the team will be ranked among the college nines by the newspaper experts remains to be seen, but it will undoubtedly be near the top.

Next year the team will have no such aggregation of veterans as started the present season, for Captain Welch, Umstad, Preston, Braman and Champaign will all be lost by graduation.

CORNELL 3, PENNSYLVANIA 1

The Varsity team won the game with Penn on Decoration day by bunching its hits and by the effective pitching of Deshon. The total number of safe ones secured by each side was the same, and the number of errors charged against each was the same, but the visitors distributed their hits over six innings, while the Varsity bunched three in the third inning. These with the help of a brace of errors, gave three scores and a lead which was never threatened throughout the game.

In the third inning, Brown started the ball rolling by a single to left field which bounded over the fielder's head and allowed an additional base. Welch tapped the ball to the infield, and Thomas failed to catch Brown at third. Deshon flied out, but Heilman drove out a timely two-bagger which scored Brown and Welch, and came in himself on Champaign's hit to the outfield.

CORNELL 2, ANDOVER 1

The strong Phillips-Andover academy nine was defeated in an exciting contest at Andover, Mass., on Friday last. Deshon pitched a splendid game for Cornell, keeping the six hits well scattered.

Cornell was the first to score, getting one man around the bases in the fourth on a three-bagger followed by a single. Andover tied the score in the seventh on two hits and an error, but the Varsity scored the winning run in the next inning on a combination of hits and bases on balls.

CORNELL 5, HARVARD 4

The climax of Deshon's remarkable work in the box for Cornell this season came in the Harvard game at Cambridge last Saturday, when the little pitcher was sent in to replace Umstad in the fourth inning and saved the day for Cornell. This made the third game Deshon had pitched in the space of four days—an extraordinary record.

Umstad started the game, but was in poor form and in three and a half innings allowed six hits. Cornell had scored three runs in the first by a cluster of four hits and clever base running, but Harvard tied the score in the second and went the visitors one better in the third.

In the fourth Stephenson opened up with a three-bagger over center field, and Coach Warner called Umstad to the bench, sending Deshon in. The little Nicaraguan steadied the team immediately. Stephenson was caught trying to steal home, and the danger of a score was past. During the remainder of the game Deshon allowed only four hits and by timely strike outs kept the Crimson from again crossing the plate. Timely hitting, combined with the "squeeze" play, brought Cornell two runs and victory in the sixth inning.

The Cornell fielding was excellent throughout, so that the ten hits credited to Harvard, netting a total of 15 bases, only yielded four runs. The score:

Special Rates to Ithaca

Reduced Fare From All Parts of Country at Commencement Time

Arrangements have been made whereby persons attending the 1906 Commencement, who purchase tickets at points within the territory named below, may secure reduction of two-thirds of the railway fare on the return journey by complying with certain conditions. These conditions are as follows:

1. A certificate of the standard form, called the "association's certificate," must be obtained from the ticket agent at the starting point, at the time when the "going-ticket" is bought, showing that a first class full tariff fare to Ithaca has been paid.

2. Certificates are not kept at all stations. Agents at all important stations and coupon ticket offices in the states named below are supplied with certificates. If the ticket agent is not supplied with certificates and through tickets to Ithaca, he can give information of the nearest station where they can be obtained. The applicant should purchase a ticket to such station and there secure the authorized certificate with a through ticket (not a round trip ticket) to Ithaca.

3. "Going tickets" must be bought between June 14 and June 19, inclusive; except that at points remote from Ithaca, where the authorized transit limit is more than three days, tickets may be bought earlier than June 14.

4. The certificate must be delivered to the secretary of the Commencement committee, Mr. A. L. Andrews, Barnes hall, for endorsement immediately on arrival in Ithaca. It will be validated by the authorized agent, June 19, 20, 21. The agent will not be in Ithaca at any other dates. Twenty-five cents will be collected with each certificate to pay the expenses of the agent.

5. On presentation of the certificate duly endorsed, the ticket agent at Ithaca will sell the holder a continuous passage ticket to the point at which the certificate and the "going" through ticket were secured, by the route over which the "going journey" was made, at one-third the highest limited fare by such route. The final date for exchange of certificate is June 25.

6. No reduction will be allowed unless the fare one way exceeds seventy-five cents, nor unless the authorized certificate is obtained at the time of purchase of the "going ticket." Receipts for fare paid will not be accepted in lieu of certificates.

7. The certificates are not transferable, and return tickets secured upon certificates are not transferable.

8. It must be understood that persons availing themselves of this reduction in fare should apply for certificates and tickets at least thirty minutes before departure of trains.

The foregoing plan of reduction in fare, called the "certificate plan," has been granted in the territory covered by the New England Passenger association, the Trunk Line Passenger association (including Canada east of Toronto), the Central Passenger association, and the Southeastern Passenger association.

Persons outside the territory above specified may secure a substantial reduction by purchasing a ticket to some important station within the territory of reduction and there purchasing a through ticket to Ithaca and securing the authorized certificate from the ticket agent. (See condition 1 above.) On the return from Ithaca the reduced rate will be available to the point at which the authorized certificate was secured.

Excursion rates to St. Louis, Chicago, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington and New York city can sometimes be advantageously used. All are advised to make inquiries of ticket agents in advance in order to learn of such opportunities.

Further particulars will be furnished on application to the Registrar, David F. Hoy, Cornell University, Ithaca.

Mr. Hoy announces that if this special rate is to be retained year by year, it is necessary that all who attend Commencement, whether Cornellians or not, whether using certificates or not, register their names in the visitors' book at Barnes hall.

Victories Celebrated

A celebration of Cornell's athletic victories this spring was held on the Library slope on the evening of May 30. More than 2,000 students were present and joined in the cheering and the singing to the accompaniment of the chimes.

Cheer leader C. Martin, '06, acted as toastmaster of the celebration. A platform was improvised, with a huge packing box as a basis, near a great bonfire which had been built by the Freshmen at the foot of the slope.

The first speaker was J. B. Philips, '06, captain of the track team. He was followed by "Jack" Moakley, who was cheered to the echo, and who proved once more that he can make a good speech as well as turn out the premier track team of the Intercollegiate. He said he hoped to be present on many more similar occasions, and urged a continuance of the faithful work which had made this celebration possible. He told several interesting anecdotes of the Intercollegiate meet, alluding to the slight attention paid to Cornell's chances before the races, and the surprise which followed.

Other speakers were Captain Welch of the baseball team and Dean Smith of Sibley College. Professor Smith predicted that baseball and football will follow in the path of crew and track at Cornell, and that the University is entering upon a period of universal athletic victory.

Several members of the Pennsylvania crew and baseball team were present, and one of their number, J. C. Snook, made a short speech of congratulation. C. H. Tuck, '06, addressed the Freshmen, who had assembled to burn their caps, urging them to keep up the hard work which has brought success during the past year.

Sibley Change Works Well

A year ago the entrance requirements to Sibley College were increased owing to the constantly growing number of candidates seeking admission. In addition to the elementary requirements, the candidate must now offer advanced mathematics, two advanced languages, German, French, Spanish or Latin, or some one language and advance credit in other subjects.

These additional entrance requirements obviated the necessity of giving instruction in foreign languages to Mechanical Engineering students.

Taking advantage of these changes, the faculty framed a new course, which went into operation in part last fall and will be put into operation in whole next fall. It has proved a working success. Under this plan, physics and descriptive geometry were made Freshman subjects and physical laboratory, kinematics and Junior drawing were made Sophomore subjects. Similarly certain Senior subjects were shifted to the Junior year. This made it possible for the faculty to offer, besides an additional number of general electives, special advanced courses in mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, naval architecture, marine engineering, railway mechanical engineering, applied physics, chemical engineering and mining engineering, in addition to the regular course, so that students could specialize in one of these branches.

In the future, therefore, the graduate of Sibley will be a mechanical engineer with a specialty along some one of the above mentioned lines. This means that the Senior in Sibley college today does work which was done formerly only by graduate students. It also means that the graduate of Sibley is from six months to a year in advance of the graduates of other technical schools of this country. This is a direct result of the fact that the entrance requirements to Sibley college are higher than those demanded by any other technical school.

The reading room which is being planned for the new Goldwin Smith hall is designed to relieve the congestion of students in the library. The members of the faculty of Arts have been asked to send in lists of books which they consider necessary for the new reading room.

At a mass meeting of the students held in the Armory last Saturday, more than $1,000 was subscribed as a token of esteem for Trainer John F. Moakley. This amount will form the nucleus of a fund which will be used either to purchase a residence for Mr. Moakley and his family near the Campus, or some other appropriate object.

SOME TROLLEY FACTS

During the recent discussion of the street railway question by the alumni and undergraduates, a number of misapprehensions have arisen. The ALUMNI NEWS has investigated the matter and has ascertained certain facts which in fairness to the trustees should be understood by all Cornell men.

The street railway was originally allowed to cross the Campus about the year 1895, against the wishes of a large number, if not a majority, of the Board of Trustees. It was only in response to a petition signed by a very large majority of the faculty and students, asking that the trolleys be permitted to enter the Campus, that the permission was finally granted.

No trustee of the University is connected directly or indirectly with the Ithaca Street railway company, as officer, director or stockholder.

The executive committee, which is composed of the local trustees, has never at any time in its history acted on any matter connected with the street railway, such action always having been taken by the full board. This was the case when the recent permission was granted on April 28 at the regular meeting of the full board.

The only exception to the above statement was at a meeting of the executive committee held May 15 last, when upon a motion by C. H. Blood and C. E. Treman, the trustees representing the alumni on the executive committee, the following resolution was adopted:

“Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to notify the Ithaca Street railway company to take no action in regard to the change of the location of its tracks upon the Campus until after the next meeting of the full board.”

Thus the whole question is held in abeyance until the June meeting of the full Board of Trustees, at which time it seems probable that the action taken by the board at the meeting on April 28 will be rescinded.

We regret very much a recent article in the Cornell Widow in which the motives of the Ithaca trustees were impugned, and the impression given that these men were directors of the Ithaca Street railway company and as such were not disinterested in their vote upon the trolley question.

We need hardly say that we are not influenced in this matter by any connection with the Cornell Board of Trustees or by pressure from any person or organization whatever. Our attitude throughout the trolley agitation is proof enough of that. We have said from the outset, and we reiterate it now, that the Quadrangle must be protected, even at the expense of removing the car tracks from the Campus altogether. But we regret to see the protest become hysterical. We believe that the Cornell Board of Trustees, like most other human institutions, sometimes errs in judgment. That, however, in no way justifies an attack on the loyalty and good faith of men who are giving their best thought and effort to the service of Cornell University.

Alumni Team Picked

Captain Clyde P. Johnson, '95, of Cincinnati has selected the members of the Alumni baseball team which will cross bats with the Varsity on Alumni day. The batting order of the team will be announced in next week's NEWS.

The approaching game is the subject of a great deal of interest and speculation among the “fans” of Ithaca as well as among the undergraduate body. All the members of the Varsity team will remain in Ithaca to take part in the game, and their supporters among the students are backing them heavily to win in a walk.

Those who have seen the list of former stars that are to be assembled by Captain Johnson, however, assert that the pride of the Varsity men is going to take a fall. Indications point to one of the hottest games of the season.

The game will be called at 3 p. m. on Wednesday, June 20. If it proves feasible, the contest will be held on the new Alumni field.

Victorious Cornell

(Washington Times.)

For the second time Cornell has won the intercollegiate. The championship in track athletics again goes to the Cornellians. Last year their victory over the best college athletes of the East surprised the sons of Yale, Harvard and Pennsylvania. Cornell had proved herself a conqueror on the water, but collegians had no reason to consider her a formidable rival on the cinder path. This year, despite her triumph in the last contest, Cornell was not even alluded to as a “dark horse.” Yale and Harvard were picked to fight it out for first honors.

More important than the victory was the manner in which the championship was earned. Cornell won because her athletes possessed the greater endurance and stamina. The points scored were in the events that test the very heart of a man.

The credit for the great victory belongs in good measure to “Jack” Moakley, the trainer of the Cornell team. This is the second championship that he has succeeded in bringing to Ithaca. Moakley is a firm believer in cross-country running, and the athletes who made such a remarkable showing in the middle and long distance runs were developed in the rough, pace-killing sport of running cross country. This is one of the secrets of Cornell's success.

The other secret, and the one that means most for the University, is the wonderful spirit with which the sons of Cornell go into a contest. It is a never-say-die spirit, an obstinate disinclination "to know when you're licked." The result is that the Cornellians are never beaten until the worsted is breasted. For this spirit some of the younger alumni of Cornell are largely responsible. And no other man to such a degree as the chairman of the alumni athletic committee, Edward R. Alexander, a former athlete, who, since his graduation, and despite the handicap of a successful business career, has been working with undergraduates, as well as alumni, to foster the true spirit of collegiate athletics—sport for sport's sake.

C. U. C. A. Conference

EDITOR CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS:

Sir:—There have recently appeared in the columns of the ALUMNI NEWS letters mentioning the desirability of holding a C. U. C. A. reunion during the coming Commencement week. Since everyone appears to consider this a good idea and in order to bring the matter to a head, I take the liberty of announcing that a meeting of all C. U.

C. A. alumni, and others interested, will be held in Barnes hall on the morning of Alumni day, Wednesday, the 20th of June, at an hour and room to be announced by bulletin. The president of the association, Mr. Conger, and the general secretary, Mr. Thayer, will be present and ready to answer any questions regarding the work of the past year or plans for the future.

Reunion Notices

'96—Last Call—'96

Reunion only a few days away and you haven't bought that ticket to Ithaca.

Perhaps you have a pass, so come a few days before and get acquainted.

Come surely on June 20. No excuses accepted. We're planning a jolly, good old time, such as we used to have.

Brass band, parade, banquet and all that.

We'll have the band meet you at the train, if that'll be any inducement.

When once you see the old hills again, you'll feel so young, you'll have to wear a '96 badge or have the wife and children along to stop the undergrads from rushing you as a Freshman for their frats.

Fact! Don't believe it? Well, come and see.

Davy Hoy will be glad to see you, too, but you don't have to see him, unless you want to, and we won't have any 3 1-2 hour class meeting.

Just all fun, friendship and frolic.

Next time you hear from me I hope it will be in shaking hands together in dear old Ithaca.

C. R. WYCKOFF.

The Gathering of the Clans

"Well," says Farmer Morse of Long Island to Merchantman Ryon, late of everywhere, and now of Syracuse, "be yew goin' down to the huskin' bee at Ithaca about a fortnight hence?"

"Well, I guess yes for mine," was the quick metropolitan reply to the query of the ruralite. "I will be there with the bells on for sure. When the horn blows, me for the big tent at Zinck's, for I am very reliably informed that it is going to be a grand show from start to finish, when the 1903 bunch heaves in sight."

"Gee," said the Long Islander, "yew certainly dew seem a mighty bit wrought up about it, but, mark my words, you pesky city chaps'll have to be a pretty frisky lot of colts if you want to outshine our delegation when we arrive in town, lickity-split, fresh from the farm. Crops will be all in by that time, and I won't care what happens. Them's my sentiments."

"Oh joy! It will be a grand and joyful time for us all, I know, for all the jolly boys will be there," murmured Clay B., clapping his hands.

"Sure I will," replied Kyd Lawson. "I'll take a part of Broadway with me in my new airship. But don't bother me now. I will be back in a few minutes. I must get my nails manicured before I start."

"It is a very sad thing," said "Rube" Brown, "that there will be one thing missing from the picture, as George Western Electric, Library Bureau, Goldfield Brady has hiked to the mining center of the West, which is more than forty-five minutes from State street, and therefore, he does not expect to be on hand for the doings."

"Pshaw!" says George "Cos," "why that is only a looking distance. I have run that far in one game, chasing Jerry Chase's wild throws to third. I guess he's not as wild now, since the matrimonial knot has been tied."

"Well, so long, boys," said the plating expert, "I will leave Syracuse early and drift into Ithaca for a few days at least."

The above conversation was overheard recently by the undersigned, and is the first definite information received at headquarters, which indicates the general uprising in all sections, and the assembling of troops for the battle of Ithaca, to be fought on June 18-21, 1906, between the united forces of the class of 1903 and all those who oppose them in having one great, grand, glorious gathering.

'86 Memorial Prize

The contest for the '86 Memorial Prize in declamation, held in the Armory Friday evening, May 25, was won by Francis Lammerts Durk, '07, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who spoke on "The Orator's Cause." Honorable mention was given to J. W. Todd, '06, whose subject was "Modern Greed." The standard of the stage was high this year, and the contest was noteworthy for the earnestness and sincerity of the speakers.

The twelve speakers on this year's stage were as follows: H. W. Gillett, '06; H. H. Halsey, '06; J. W. Todd, '06; H. F. Schnirel, '06; Miss M. F. Yeomans, '07; L. M. Baker, '07; F. L. Durk, '07; D. T. Smith, '07; D. H. Wareham, '07; H. J. Roig, '07, and R. J. Bantel, '08.

The judges were: Hon. Sherman F. Moreland, '02, of VanEtten, leader of the Republican side of the New York state assembly; Rowland Davis, '97, of Cortland, and Herbert Blanchard Lee, '99, of Buffalo, who was the winner of the Woodford prize in oratory in his Senior year.

Cornell Obituaries

BRUCE H. CORMAN, '06

Bruce Hall Corman, a Senior in the electrical engineering course, died at the Cornell Infirmary on June 1. Death was due to a complication of pleurisy and pneumonia. He was 23 years old, and was just completing his course in the University.

He was well known among his classmates, and his sudden death came as a shock to his many friends in the University and in the city of Ithaca. The sturdy strength of his character, his honesty and ambition, had impressed everyone with whom he came in contact. He had earned his way through the University, building up an extensive electrical business in opposition to the union organizations of the city, and at the same time keeping a good standing in his University work.

He was the son of Dr. John W. Corman of Tonawanda, N. Y., and his body was taken to that city for burial. A delegation of Seniors accompanied the body to the station as a mark of respect.

The department of physics began to move into the new Rockefeller hall last week. The apparatus will all be transferred during the summer so that the building will be ready for use at the opening of college in September.
