Fingers of flame that pierce solid rock

YES, through a dramatic new process known as jet-piercing . . . holes can now be burned straight and true through solid rock! The harder the rock the more efficient the operation! A special combination of oxygen, fuel, and water does the job . . . and in a fraction of the time required by the old drill attack.

This process is of particular significance to the steel industry today. Why? Because government surveys show that America's reserves of top-grade iron ore—source of steel—are fast being reduced. But there remain almost inexhaustible beds of the once scorned low-grade iron ore called taconite.

The extremely hard and dense nature of taconite makes usual mining methods too costly and impractical. But the jet-piercing process—with 1/10 the equipment and at a reasonable cost—will burn holes straight into the solid taconite so that it can be blasted into lumps of usable size.

Also, destructive abrasion from the sharp-edged rock on loading and crushing equipment is being better controlled by machine parts made from extra-hard alloy steels. And to concentrate the iron content of the ore, new chemical processes can flush away much of the "waste" matter—thus leaving an ore 30% richer, for more efficient smelting.

The people of Union Carbide created the jet-piercing flame process as well as many of the alloys, chemicals, and other materials essential to today's mining efficiency. And UCC stands ready to help solve problems in other fields of American enterprise . . . wherever better basic materials and better processes are needed.

"My only regret is that I didn't investigate these opportunities earlier"

SOMETIMES it takes a while to get your bearings. In my case, for instance, I worked six months in a bank, a year with a casualty insurance company, and after four years in the Navy I put in 12 months working in an office with my father. I was dissatisfied with my career, and convinced that I was not cut out for office work.

About this time a friend of mine began talking to me about his long experience in the life insurance business. He was getting out of life, and out of his work, exactly what I was looking for. So I decided to make a four-month study of his business.

This convinced me that life insurance offered the kind of life and earnings I wanted, and that my friend's company, the New England Mutual, was ideal. Its policies are unusually liberal, and it has back of it the prestige of being the first mutual life insurance company chartered in America.

I signed up. I took the company's thorough training course. And now — my time is my own, which means I'm working harder than ever before, but it doesn't seem that way because I'm getting so much satisfaction out of my work. I have time to contribute to my home town through civic work, and there is still time left for golf and tennis. And my earnings, which are in direct proportion to the effort I put in, are considerably higher than when I worked for someone else.

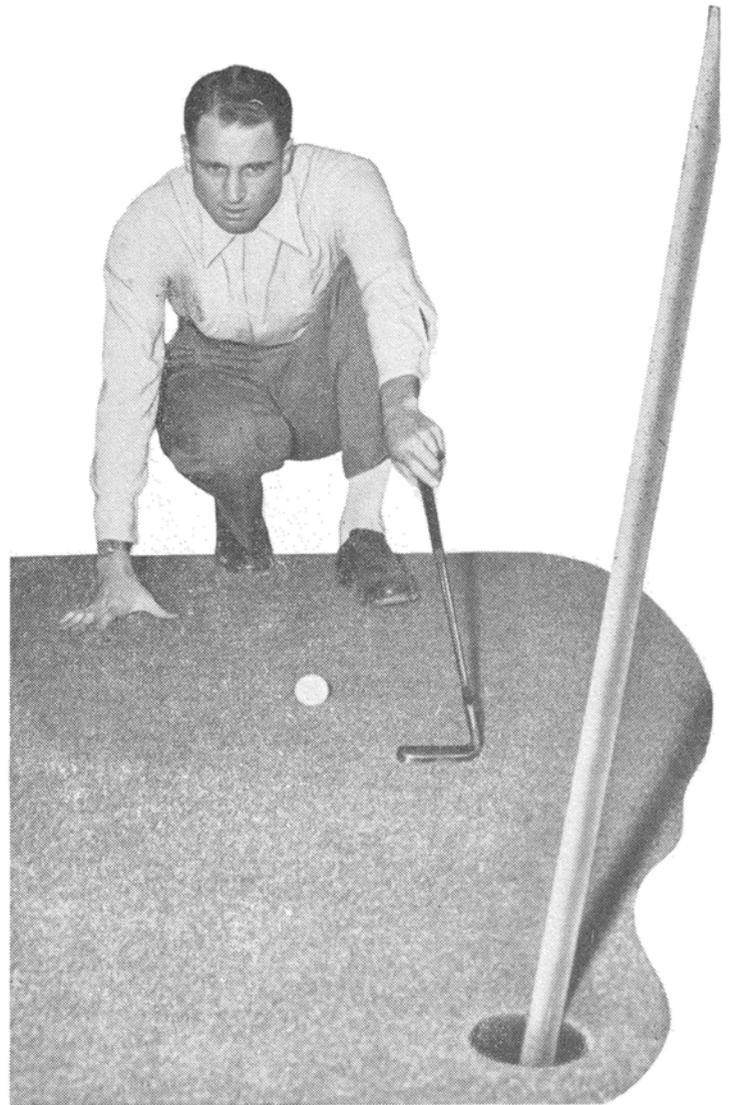

I have only one regret, and it is that I did not investigate earlier the opportunities offered by the life insurance profession.

Recent graduates of our Home Office training course, although new to the life insurance business, earn average first-year commissions of $3600—which, with renewal commissions added, brings the total yearly income average to $5700. From here, incomes rise in direct proportion to each individual's ability and industry.

If you'd like information about a career that gives you a business of your own, with no slow climb up a seniority ladder and no ceiling on earnings, write Mr. H. C. Chaney, Director of Agencies, 501 Boylston Street, Boston 17, Mass.

HOLD IT! We want you in the picture

WE WANT YOU in the picture whether you're one of the 25,000,000 people in the Prudential family or not. As The Prudential enters its seventy-fifth year, our portrait, to be complete, should include just about everyone in America.

For seventy-five years, The Prudential has provided life insurance for people in all walks of life. And while providing a measure of security for millions of families, it has helped all America to grow and prosper.

Since 1875, millions of dollars paid in to The Prudential by its policyholders have been invested in America. Almost every person in the United States and Canada has benefited in some way by The Prudential's investment program. Money has been invested in local, state and national developments. There have been thousands and thousands of Prudential loans to farmers, businessmen and homeowners.

Prudential loans helped the railroads knit the continent together . . . helped public utilities reach out to every corner of the land . . . and are now helping to relieve the post-war housing shortage.

And the interest earned on these investments has enabled The Prudential to provide life insurance protection for American families at a far lower cost than would otherwise be possible. ★

Chancellor Edmund E. Day Retires From Active Service to Cornell

Callers from all levels of the University and from Ithaca came to the President's office in the Administration Building, January 31, to express their good wishes and esteem to Chancellor Edmund E. Day. Many telegrams and letters conveyed the same sentiments of alumni and other friends. He completed that day his official duties at Cornell which began when he was inaugurated as the fifth President, October 8, 1937.

President Day resigned as head of the University for reasons of health, at the Commencement meeting of the Board of Trustees, last June 13, and was immediately elected the first Chancellor. His official activities since July 1 have been principally for the Greater Cornell Fund, in relation to the State University of New York and State Education Department, and handling the University's relations with The New York Hospital in the operation of the Medical College and School of Nursing at the Medical Center in New York City.

Resigns As Chancellor

New York City newspapers, January 8, carried announcement from Ithaca that Chancellor Day had written to members of the Board of Trustees saying that he would retire January 31. "It has been my own thought from the outset," he wrote, "that the [Chancellor] appointment should be viewed as a temporary one. Already, I am persuaded that the time has come for me to seek relief from heavy administrative responsibilities, even of the limited sort imposed by my present position. I have therefore regretfully come to the conclusion that I should bring my formal service with the University to an end, and I hereby tender my resignation."

At the same time, it became known that members of the Board of Trustees had individually subscribed the cost of a new home for the former President and Mrs. Day which will be built for the University and leased to them. It is understood that it will be erected on Kline Road, east of the Campus, just across from the University Golf Course clubhouse. A Christmas Eve telegram to Chancellor and Mrs. Day from Trustee Arthur H. Dean '19, "on behalf of the entire Board of Trustees," disclosed the plan and said: "This has been made possible by funds contributed to the University for this purpose by your many friends and admirers of the Board, all of whom salute you for your magnificent guidance of the University in the war and post-war years and the significant contributions you have made to the cause of education and the principles by which we live."

Sixty-six last December 7, Chancellor Day would normally have retired under the University by-laws, July 1, 1951. Commenting on his decision, he said: "While I believe it advisable to withdraw at this time from active participation in the administration of the University, I do so with feelings of regret. One cannot be associated with Cornell as long as I have been without developing a sense of very strong attachment and affection. It is a great institution and Cornellians are a great company. There is a vast potential in Cornell. Its ideals, traditions, and aspirations give it extraordinary opportunities for effective service to the American people. It has been an exceptional privilege to work with the fine scholars and scientists who make up the University's Faculty. The generous and understanding support of alumni has been highly gratifying. The character of the undergraduate body and the manner in which it has developed responsible and effective leadership have been among the most rewarding aspects of my whole experience at Cornell. I am deeply appreciative, too, of the fine cooperation from the people of Ithaca. Mrs. Day and I are very happy that we will be able to carry on as members of this community and continue to enjoy its friendly atmosphere."

The Board of Trustees at its meeting,

Chancellor Day Leaves Office—The University's fifth President and first Chancellor, Edmund E. Day, receives the good wishes of his secretary, Frances P. Eagan '26, and his stenographer, Amy M. Hughes, in his office in the Administration Building, January 31, as he leaves his official duties. Miss Eagan has been his secretary through the twelve years of President Day's administration which ended last June and Miss Hughes was Presidential stenographer also for Presidents Jacob Gould Schurman and Livingston Farrand.

January 28, accepted Chancellor Day's resignation "with regret" and adopted this resolution:

From 1937 to 1949, as fifth President of Cornell, Dr. Day brought to the service of Cornell great vision in academic problems and an extraordinary understanding of the special and very great opportunities and responsibilities of Cornell under the complex conditions of our modern society.

During his term as President of Cornell, the whole world experienced the shock and dislocations of World War II. It was an experience that could have disrupted the educational development of any university and that did adversely affect many institutions of higher learning both here and abroad. That Cornell came through the war years without losing momentum or sacrificing any of its foundation principles is chiefly due to the qualities of mind and spirit and character that Edmund Ezra Day brought to the Presidency of Cornell.

But he did more, much more, for Cornell. New Schools and Colleges, the expansion of curriculum and research into academic territory that previously was unknown and unexplored, a greatly enlarged student body and Faculty, and several notable new building programs, all speak more loudly than words and in more enduring language the tribute we pay to his leadership.

His sympathetic comprehension of the forces that shape the University, and the State and Nation of which the University is a part, his understanding of students and sincere concern for their problems, his unswerving devotion to duty as he saw it, and his untiring efforts and selfless expenditure of himself, all have won for him the grateful appreciation of this Board and the affectionate esteem of Cornellians.

May he live long and enjoy to the full the new-found leisure he has so well earned! We who have been privileged to serve Cornell under his Presidency are the wiser for having known him and worked with him. We shall miss him. We wish him God speed!

As the Trustees were accepting Dr. Day's resignation in New York City, he was speaking at a symposium in Buffalo of the State University of New York on "Functions of the Modern University," with Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of University of Chicago, Presidents James B. Conant of Harvard, Harold E. Stassen of University of Pennsylvania, James L. Morrill of University of Minnesota, and Alvin C. Eurich of the State University system. Day summarized the conclusions of eight earlier panel discussions, of which one on agricultural and rural life was led by Director Halsey B. Knapp '12 of the Agricultural and Technical Institute at Farmingdale and one on business and labor, by Dean Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, of the State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell. At public hearings in Albany, earlier, Chancellor Day had criticized the projected "master plan" of the State University for proposing to set up new four-year liberal arts colleges in the State.

During the twelve years of President Day's administration, the University enlarged from about 6300 students to more than 10,000 and from a Faculty of about 600 to more than 1,000. He instituted numerous administrative reorganizations and was instrumental in the Greater Cornell Fund campaign which at the year's end had brought more than three-fourths of a first objective of $12,500,000 to meet the most urgent needs of the University. Meanwhile, the annual unrestricted Alumni Fund increased from less than $87,000 to more than $400,000. During his administration, four professorships were endowed; the Schools of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, Business and Public Administration, Nutrition, Graduate School of Aeronautical Engineering, and the Newman Laboratory of Nuclear Studies were established; the Aeronautical Laboratory in Buffalo was acquired; and the New York Hospital School of Nursing was affiliated with the University. Ten major buildings were erected on the Campus; two others, Statler Hall and the Agriculture and Home Economics Library building, are under construction; and additional buildings valued at some $15,000,000 are projected. Besides his direction of war training and research at Cornell, he was chairman of a committee of the American Council on Education which coordinated and directed planning for the training of men for the armed forces in all colleges and universities.

Has Distinguished Record

A graduate of Dartmouth in 1905, Dr. Day was instructor in economics and received the MA there in 1906 and the PhD at Harvard in 1909. He went to the Harvard economics department in 1910 and left as professor in 1923 to organize and become the first dean of the school of business administration at University of Michigan, later becoming dean of the University. For ten years before he became President of Cornell in 1937, he was in New York City, first with the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, then as director for the social sciences of the Rockefeller Foundation and for seven years also as director of general education for the General Education Board.

He was a member of the temporary commission appointed by the Legislature to survey the need and functions of a State University of New York; has been president of the New York State Citizens Council, Association of Land-grant Colleges and Universities, and World Student Service Fund; chairman of the American Council on Education and board of trustees of Associated Colleges of Upper New York; a director of the National Bureau of Economic Research and of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; and a councillor of the National Industrial Conference Board. He was chairman of a board of inquiry, appointed by the Governor, which last summer settled a strike of workers at Bell Aircraft Corp. in Buffalo.

Dr. Day holds fifteen honorary degrees. Awarded the LLD at Princeton in 1947, he was cited for his "effective application of abstract theories in the world of practical affairs." He is the author of books on economics and has written and spoken extensively on the function of education in our democratic society, especially emphasizing the critical responsibility of education in preserving and strengthening the traditional American freedoms.

Statler Club Gets Members RECEIVES GIFT FOR LIBRARY

A gift of $10,000 from Professor Walter F. Willcox, Economics, Emeritus, toward endowment of a library for the Statler Club was announced at a meeting of the University Faculty, January 18, by Professor Arthur J. Keeffe '24, Law. He characterized Professor Willcox as "the man in this Faculty most responsible for this Club" and read from a letter written to the organizing committee in 1945 in which the donor described the benefits of such a club and proffered his gift.

"The most permanent and vital part of a university is its faculty," Professor Willcox said. "The success of the institution is best indicated by the quality of its teachers and the facilities afforded the faculty for work towards university ends, not only in their special fields but cooperatively.

"When I became a member of the Faculty of Cornell University more than half a century ago, such cooperation was secured because the University was then governed mainly by its one Faculty which threshed out University problems in weekly meetings somewhat after the fashion of the New England town meetings familiar to my boyhood. With the rapid growth and departmentalization of the University, Faculty influence has probably decreased as opportunities for the interchange of views among its members have diminished.

"A Club including the large majority of the members of the Faculty would contribute to fostering common interests, developing a common opinion, and strengthening the feeling of group responsibility for the life of the institution. As a small library, including newspapers and magazines as well as books, is an important part of a Faculty Club, I ask that the sum be used so far as practicable in maintaining such a library."

Professor Howard B. Adelman '20, Zoology, and Stephen A. McCarthy, Director of the University Library, have been designated by the organizing committee for the Statler Club to make plans for its library and are selecting its contents.

The Statler Club is expected to occupy its quarters in Statler Hall in May. The organizing committee has announced that the Club charter has been approved by State officials and that final details of decorating the Club rooms are being worked out with the Hotel Statler Studios by Professors Thomas W. Mackesey, Architecture, and Howard B. Meek, Hotel Administration. A letter soliciting their active charter membership was mailed to all members of the University Faculty, January 16. Ten days later, it was reported that 37 per cent of the expected early quota of dues had been received from 31 per cent of the expected prospective members. Charter members will meet February 16 to elect officers and adopt by-laws. After that meeting, applications will be received for associate membership from those of the staff who are not in the University Faculty and for affiliated membership from alumni everywhere and non-Cornellians who are residents of Tompkins County. Dues for non-resident alumni are proposed at $25 a year; for affiliated members (not included in the University Directory) who reside in the County, $50 a year. Initiation fee of a year's dues will be waived for members who join before July 1, 1950, and the first year's dues will be paid to July 1, 1951. Proposed dues for active members range from $10 a semester for professors and administrative members of the University Faculty to $7.50 a semester for assistant professors. Associate membership for non-Faculty staff members is proposed from $7.50 a term to $5 a term for assistants.

Hawaii Elects

Cornell Club of Hawaii met in Honolulu, January 12, to elect officers and enjoy films of last season's football "highlights." Charles E. Cassidy '24 was chosen president for 1950, and Frederick W. Koch '40 is secretary-treasurer. George C. Wallace '31, past president, heads the scholarships committee and Clarence K. Lum '23, Kent W. Longnecker '36, and Edgar A. Kudlich '40 comprise the activities committee.

Magazines Quote Berry '04

Reader's Digest for February contains "Seed Catalogue Contagion" by Romeyn Berry '04. It is condensed from a chapter in his book, Dirt Road to Stoneposts, published last June by Century House, Watkins Glen. In American Home for February, Jean Brown writes "Cooking's a 'Natural' with the Berrys," in which she describes the culinary and other house-keeping exploits of the master of Stoneposts and Mrs. Berry (Hester Bancroft) '22. Three recipes from the Berry file are printed and their outcomes illustrated.

Now, In My Time!

By Romeyn Berry

At Ithaca, the talk now dwells with increasing anxiety upon the selection of the sixth President. The main difficulty is, of course, that the man capable of performing with equal success all the functions heretofore regarded as belonging to the headship of Cornell has been found not to exist.

Very well, then. If we can't get all the qualities, skills, experiences, and demonstrated abilities we'd like to have in the new man—and we can't—it would seem wise to settle promptly for a sixth President likely to do the main job adequately, and one with sufficient humility and sense to delegate to competent assistants (presently here and in abundance) those functions of the office that the assistants can do better, given trust, backing, and authority.

What is the main job? It is, we suggest, to revive and maintain on this Campus a climate favorable to the growth of new ideas, independent thinking, eager teaching, sound scholarship, and a feverish urge to blaze new trails into the wilderness of the unknown; a stimulating climate in which the academic amenities are observed and an honest man will be self-impelled to do his best in his own niche, assured of the approbation of his colleagues, and the sympathetic appreciation of the University, coupled with all the material help it can give him within the limits of its resources.

Fame and prestige? That would be a matter of some public curiosity for about ten days following the announcement of the selection. After that, the stature of the man will be measured alone by what he does and says as President of Cornell. No record of success in unrelated activities, or at other places, will do him any good in that office if he enters it ignorant of the academic mind and without full appreciation of what universities are for, and what the peculiar genius of this one is.

Money getting? That's an important consideration, to be sure, but not one that should be permitted to determine the selection of the sixth President. Money getting is the responsibility of the Trustees and they cannot escape it by delegation. If they choose to deputize another University officer to act in their assistance, well and good. But not the President. He's the captain of the ship and his place is on the bridge, not down in the hold concentrating on the coal supply. Nevertheless, a scholarly skipper with a tongue in his head and a twinkle in his eye has been known to pick up a load of coal at times and in unsuspected places.

Background? It is not essential that the new man shall be a graduate of the University; but his luck in avoiding initial gaucheries, his chances of ultimate success, will be greatly increased if he starts with some knowledge of the place and its people, acquired as a student or as a teacher. Here, it is not quite enough for the leader to accomplish worthy ends; he must also accomplish them by methods that will not too rudely violate the ancient customs of the manor.

And what of the man himself? The one necessary quality in a university president, for which there is no substitute, is complete intellectual honesty. A president can do most anything else to his faculty and students except fool them!

With anxiety and alarm, we have heard it seriously suggested that universities having become vast and complicated business enterprises, an executive of business experience is now required to direct their destinies and stabilize their finances, leaving the educational and scholarly aspects of the task to deans functioning as shop foremen. That shocks the Campus dweller. To him, it's tantamount to suggesting that a symphony orchestra which finds difficulty in balancing its budget would do well to get an experienced box office man to mount the podium and wield the baton.

Oh, well then, you go ahead and pick one yourself! But we hope the selection can be made as quickly as is consistent with caution. Interregnums are a bad thing in a university. The place marks time. People are reluctant to start new projects, or go on with old ones, until they find out what the new man may have in his mind. And there's always the danger that the groups charged with the responsibility of the ultimate selection might go stale, after a prolonged search for the non-existent or the unattainable, and end it all by picking somebody on the basis of his easy and immediate availability. That's been known to happen, and it isn't a very good way to pick presidents.

University Graduates February Class of '50 In Last Mid-year Commencement

Final mid-year Commencement exercises of the University were held in Bailey Hall, February 1, for Seniors estimated to number about 450. Approximately two-thirds of this number marched to the center section of the auditorium, garbed in caps and gowns, where they were flanked by friends and relatives, lending a festive air to a gray winter day. The conferring of degrees was a token ceremony, since examinations continued until Commencement day. No graduate students took part in this Commencement.

After the academic procession from the lobby, of Faculty members to the stage and Seniors to their places, the assembly sang "America," led by Professor Thomas B. Tracy '31, director of the Glee Club. The Rev. Edward L. Christie, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Ithaca, pronounced an Invocation. Degrees were conferred by Acting President Cornelis W. de Kiewiet, who recited thirteen academic titles as candidates were presented by officials of their various Colleges.

Professor David Daiches, English and chairman of the Division of Literature, delivered the Commencement address. He urged the graduates to "carry over into later life the habits of mental acuity you have developed in college" and spoke of the importance of applying ideas and concepts to problems outside of the academic disciplines in which they are learned.

He warned that it is wrong to think of civilization as a fixed order to which we must conform, that "we must not take civilization for granted," for "we are civilization." Asserting that we are capable of shaping society, he described the responsibility of a college graduate as that of maintaining an attitude of combined "critical and humane intelligence." Critical intelligence, he said, prevents "complacency, provincialism, and intellectual hardening of the arteries." Cautioning that critical intelligence must be combined with humane intelligence, he offered the corollaries that "Humanity without critical intelligence may lead to mere sentimentality" and "Critical intelligence without humanity can result in mere philosophic pedantry." An attitude combining the two should result in the "constant awareness, the sympathetic understanding of real values" which lead to a richer life.

In conclusion, Professor Daiches quoted from "The Altars," by the modern Greek poet, Palamas. He asked the graduates to remember the last line as a guide: "Be a plowman, planter, guardian."

After the Commencement address, Acting President de Kiewiet, in his closing remarks, told the graduates that they were among the last students to acquire their educations here "while one of the most distinguished men Cornell has ever known" was associated with the University. Referring thus to Dr. Edmund E. Day, he described the former President and Chancellor as "industrious, generous, courageous, and above all, loyal; a person who has faith in Cornell and in society."

All rose to sing the "Alma Mater" and for the Benediction by the Rev. Christie, the ceremonies closing with the "Evening Song" played on the Bailey Hall chimes by Professor William W. Austin, University Organist.

Arts and Sciences graduates were presented for degrees by Dean Leonard S. Cottrell, Jr.; candidates for Bachelors of Science in Agriculture, by Director of Resident Instruction A. Wright Gibson '17; in Home Economics and Hotel Administration, by Dean E. Lee Vincent; in Industrial and Labor Relations, by Dean Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30; Doctors of Veterinary Medicine, by Dean William A. Hagan, MS '17; Bachelors of Architecture, by Assistant Dean Thomas W. Mackesey; and candidates for Engineering degrees, by Dean S. C. Hollister.

Chief marshal of the academic procession was Lieutenant Colonel Philip B. Stiness, USA, of the Department of Military Science and Tactics. Class marshals were Jacquelin L. Bash '48 of Flushing and James W. Hopkins '47 of Birmingham, Mich.

Mid-year Commencement exercises began in 1943, during the war-time acceleration program, and have been continued to accommodate returned veterans. It is estimated that only about 200 Seniors will graduate in February, 1951, and most of them will be completing their courses then by choice or for other reasons than war service.

Concerts Enjoyed

The last concerts of the term were given in Bailey Hall by Benno Moiseiwitsch, Russian pianist, in the third of the University concert series, January 17; and the University Orchestra with Professor Robert L. Hull, PhD '45, conducting and Maurice Wilk, young American violinist, as soloist, January 15.

Moiseiwitsch showed throughout his program that unusual versatility which has enabled him to perform twenty different piano concertos in a single season. He played Beethoven's Sonata in C minor, Op. 13 (Pathetique), Schumann's Kreisleriana, a group of Chopin works including six etudes and Scharzo in B minor, and Moussorgsky's Pictures from an Exhibition, which comprised the part of the program after intermission.

Maurice Wilk, who previously appeared on the Campus as soloist with the Bach Aria Group, performed the ever-popular Mendelssohn Violin Concerto. Professor Hull is to be commended for the competent accompaniment which his eighty-two musicians provided for Wilk's fine, sensitive playing. The orchestra also gave creditable performances of the music of Weber, Stravinsky, Copland, and Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Buffalo Clubs Stage Play

Dramatic Club performances of "The Winslow Boy" at Amherst High School, just before the Christmas recess, is reported by the sponsoring Cornell Club of Buffalo Women and Cornell Club of Buffalo as "an outstanding success, socially and financially" for the scholarship funds of the two Clubs. The play was enthusiastically reviewed by Jacqueline Taylor in the Buffalo Evening News. She said, "The Cornell Clubs of Buffalo can feel proud of bringing the Cornell Dramatic Club . . . for a fine performance . . . The cast as a whole was as good if not better than those of some touring companies sent from New York . . ."

The same production had been well received in three performances in the University Theater in Willard Straight Hall early in November. The entire cast and technical staff, with properties, were taken to Buffalo by bus and truck, accompanied by Professor Walter H. Stainton '19, executive director of the University Theatre. They stayed at the Sheraton Hotel, where the general manager is A. Wright Gibson, Jr. '42, and were guests of the Clubs at a reception there after the performance. Many Buffalo Cornell families entertained in their homes and at the play, making the evening an important social event of the season.

General chairmen of the arrangements for the Clubs were Allen W. Carpenter '16, James W. Oppenheimer '32, and Mrs. Edwin M. Miller (Virginia Sturtevant) '39.

The Chapman Print Collection

By PROFESSOR ROBERT P. LANG, Fine Arts

No reproduction can do justice to the incisive line of an engraving, the bloom of a mezzotint, or the velvety black of a drypoint burr. These special sensory qualities can be enjoyed only in original graphic work. That's one of the reasons why the Chapman Print Collection is an art resource of special importance at Cornell. Part of the collection came to Cornell during the war years. In 1943 and in 1945, the late William P. Chapman, Jr. '95 of Scarsdale gave some of his prints to the University; the remaining portion of the collection, the harvest of more than forty years of collecting, was received as a bequest after his death in March, 1947.

With more than 3,000 examples of graphic work included in the Chapman Collection, ranging in date and style from Durer to Toulouse-Lautrec, there are prints to suit every taste and to illustrate every period of art history. There are etchings, woodcuts, lithographs; Japanese prints in color; and a group of photographs illustrating the beginnings of interest in that medium as an art form. Most of the prints are brilliant impressions. Some examples are present in several states, so that one can see how the artist's concept developed.

Chronologically, the collection begins in the early sixteenth century with an unusually fine group of Durer engravings and woodcuts. Among the engravings are the "Melencolia" (1514) from the F. Locker collection, and excellent impressions of "St. Jerome in his Cell" and "St. Anthony." There are five woodcuts from the Large Passion and the Apocalypse.

No print collection would be complete without a Rembrandt. In the Chapman Collection we have three of the Dutch master's portraits and figure studies, including the self-portrait, "Rembrandt Leaning on a Stone Sill" (1639). The seventeenth century is also represented by three etched portraits by Van Dyck, remarkable for their directness and simplicity, and other prints by Callot, Claude Lorrain, Nanteuil, Hollar, and Ruysdael.

The Chapman Collection is strongest in nineteenth-century work. Of the French school, there are lithographs by Delacroix and Daumier. Notable among architectural etchings is the work of Meryon, the solitary genius who died in a madhouse but whose prints, published for a few sous, now bring thousands of dollars. His "L'Abside de Notre Dame" and "La Galerie," evocative of the Gothic spirit in stone, are in the collection.

Whistler is especially well represented. Many of the sixty-nine rare etchings and lithographs which survey his development from the "French Set" of 1858 to the Amsterdam series of 1889 are signed with his butterfly monogram. In these prints, Whistler often used as a subject the docks and fishing boats of the Thames, or the Venetian lagoons at varying hours of the day. Many of the Whistlers were acquired from famous collectors; some impressions were inscribed by the artist for his friend, E. G. Kennedy, compiler of the authoritative catalogue of Whistler etchings.

Among Americans, the etchers John Taylor Arms, F. W. Benson, and Kerr Eby are represented by large selections, but many Cornellians will be even more interested in the collection of early twentieth century photographs, including several New York scenes by Alfred Stieglitz, whose "291" gallery was a rallying point for aesthetic rebels of the period.

As yet, Cornell has no museum in which these prints may be housed and exhibited. The Law School has given them storage room in the vault of Myron Taylor Hall, where they have been arranged by the curator, Robert P. Lang, assistant professor of Fine Arts. The collection is used as source material in courses in Graphic Arts offered in the College of Architecture, and can be seen on application to the curator.

Contribute to Farm Paper

Faculty and alumni of the College of Agriculture are well represented among the contributors to a special 100th Anniversary Issue of The Rural New Yorker, for January 7, 1950.

Professor Liberty Hyde Bailey, former Dean, writes of his own "Early Days with 'The Rural,'" and William I. Myers '14 and Professor William B. Ward, Extension Teaching and Information, describe the "New York State College of Agriculture," with pictures. Professor Frank P. Bussell, PhD '19, Plant Breeding writes on "Small Grains As They Were and As They Are." Professor Frank B. Morrison, Animal Husbandry, tells of "Past and Future in Livestock Nutrition." Professor Albert Hoefler '16, Extension, describes "4-H Clubs in New York State," and Professor Joshua A. Cope, Forestry Extension, writes on "Christmas Trees for the Rugged Spot." Contributors now and formerly at the Geneva Agricultural Experiment Station are former Director Ulysses P. Hedrick,

"Agriculture in New York State;" Professor George L. Slate, Pomology, "Strawberries: A Garden Favorite;" and Professor Harold B. Tukey, now head of horticulture at Michigan State College, "100 Years of Farm Marketing."

Jared Van Wagenan, Jr. '91 recalls "Memories of the Farmers' Institutes." Professor Stevenson W. Fletcher, PhD '00, retired dean of agriculture at Penn State, describes "Agriculture in Pennsylvania," and Thomas B. Charles '15, former head of poultry at University of New Hampshire, writes on "Poultry Over the Years." Halsey B. Knapp '12, director of the State Agricultural and Technical Institute at Farmingdale, writes on the "New York State Agricultural Society," with a picture of Earl B. Clark '14, president since 1947. Louis Bromfield '18 writes on "Farming: The Greatest of Professions." Malcolm B. Galbreath '26, director of the State Agricultural and Technical Institute at Morrisville, describes "New York's State Schools of Agriculture," and Monroe C. Babcock '30 hatcheryman, writes on "Preventing Fowl Leucosis."

Veterinarians Return

Forty-second annual Conference for Veterinarians of the Veterinary College, January 4-6, brought a record attendance of 412 persons for lectures, demonstrations, and discussions of the newest professional developments. They came from seventeen States, Canada, England, and Italy, and included 349 Cornellians. Besides members of the Veterinary Faculty, the speakers included Drs. Erwin V. Moore '17, Assistant State Commissioner of Agriculture; Clarence P. Zepp '19, president, American Veterinary Medical Association; Joseph B. Engle '26 of Summit, N.J., Frederick W. Schutz '31 of Brewster, and William F. Tierney '35 of Sennett.

Veterinary College Alumni Association at its annual meeting elected Dr. Engle, president, succeeding Dr. Henry P. Noonan '19. Dr. Engle thus becomes a director of the Cornell Alumni Association. Dr. Clayton E. DeCamp '22 of Scarsdale was elected vice-president, and Professor Stephen J. Roberts '37, Veterinary, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Veterinary Alumni Association.

At the Conference dinner in Willard Straight Memorial Room, Dr. Engle presented to the University for the Veterinary Alumni Association a portrait of the late Professor James N. Frost '07, Veterinary. It was accepted by Acting President Cornelis W. de Kiewiet. Professor Denny H. Udall '01, founder, and Professor Pincus P. Levine '31, former editor of The Cornell Veterinarian, spoke in observance of the fortieth anniversary of the publication. Dr. Zepp spoke on "The Duties and Value of Veterinary Organization."

Cornell Day April 29

Cornell Day for prospective Freshmen will be revived at the University, April 29, after a lapse since 1942. The Alumni Association committee on secondary schools, headed by George Munsick '21, has written to all Cornell Clubs explaining that, unlike the Cornell Days before the war, this one will be for juniors in the schools who have not yet made their choice of a university.

Clubs were invited to designate alumni "chauffeurs" who would bring a limited number of selected boys to the Campus for the week end, to see the University. It is expected that the boys will be housed and fed in fraternities, taken on Campus tours by undergraduate guides, and they and their "chauffeurs" will have opportunity to see the season's only crew race on Cayuga Lake, with Syracuse and Boston University, a lacrosse game with Syracuse, tennis matches with Colgate, golf matches with Bucknell, and a Freshman baseball game with Colgate. Engineering College Council will stage its "Engineers' Day" then, and other Colleges will arrange demonstrations and exhibits of their work. A Cornell Day rally will be run by students in Bailey Hall.

The number of sub-Freshmen will be limited to about 200 secondary-school juniors. Cornell Clubs which had indicated by late January that they would bring boys are those of Albany, Buffalo, Elmira, Rochester, Schenectady, Syracuse, Westchester; Bergen County, Essex County, Lackawanna, Trenton, and Union County, N.J.; Penn-York, Lehigh Valley, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and York County, Pa.; Chicago, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, Delaware, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Western Massachusetts, and Washington, D.C.

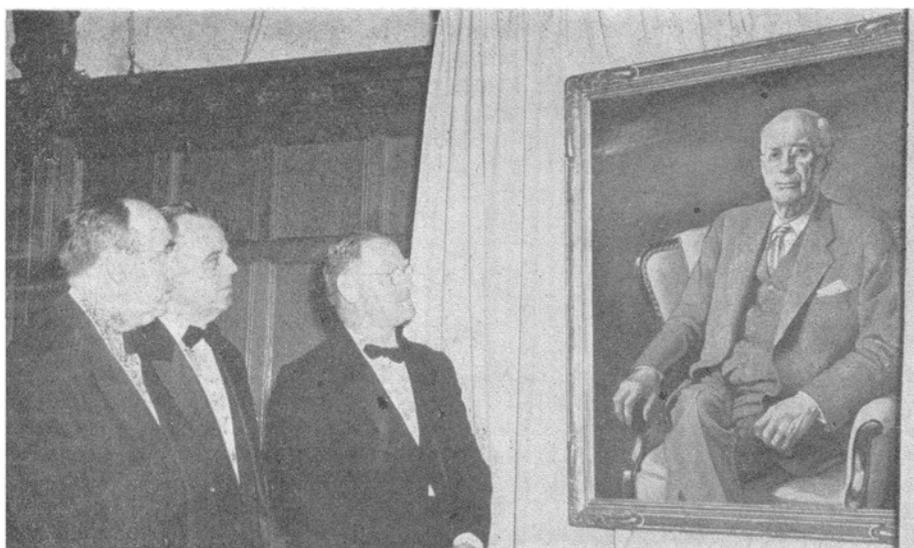

General chairman of the Cornell Day program is R. Selden Brewer '40, Alumni Field Secretary. Robert W. Storandt '40, executive secretary of the secondary schools committee, is handling arrangements with the Clubs.

Cornell Day was an annual event for nine years, starting in 1934 and through 1942. It was suspended in 1943 because of the war. Since then, admission to colleges and universities has been advanced, the committee explains, so that now most school seniors have not only applied, but many have been accepted, by the end of April. Because of this change, the Cornell Day this year will be for boys who will be ready for college in 1951; and because accommodations on the Campus are still limited, the total number is set at 200 and Clubs are asked to bring boys who have not yet made their choice of a college.

Class Secretaries Plan

Fifty-two Class secretaries, Reunion chairmen, and delegates attended the midwinter meeting of the Association of Class Secretaries, beginning at luncheon at the Cornell Club of New York, January 28. That morning, representatives of most of the women's Classes scheduled for Reunions next June 9 and 10 met with Assistant Alumni Secretary Pauline J. Schmid '25 for a "workshop" on Reunion planning and organization.

At the general session, with Charles E. Dykes '36 presiding, Max F. Schmitt '24, chairman of an Alumni Association committee on Class organization, summarized a report which his committee will make to the Alumni Association. Hosea C. Ballou '20, Class Secretaries' Association member of the committee on Alumni Trustee nominations, outlined the work of that committee. Special guest was John T. McGovern '00, member of the American Olympic Committee and known as "Cornell's international ambassador of sports." He spoke of the University's fundamental contributions and of its world-wide influence, especially as typified by its athletic relations.

The Association voted to award a third trophy for attendance at Reunions, beginning next June. Two cups have been offered to leading Classes for many years. One will continue to be awarded to the Class which has the largest percentage of its total living members registered at its Reunion in Ithaca. Cups will also be awarded, respectively, to the Class which has the largest number of men registered and to the one with the largest number of women members at Reunion. Following a questionnaire sent to Class secretaries concerning the yearly scheduling of Classes for Reunions, a committee was appointed to make recommendations as to the grouping of Classes for Reunions after this year. Harry V. Wade '26 is chairman, with H. W. Peters '14, Dorothy Peets '29, Raymond W. Kruse '41, and Elizabeth S. Miller '47.

The Association elected Frederic C. Wood '24, president, and William G. Rossiter '37, vice-president, and re-elected Alumni Field Secretary R. Selden Brewer '40 its secretary and Frances W. Lauman '35, treasurer. Mrs. Thomas A. Scanlan, Jr. (Florence Burtis) '26 was re-elected to the executive committee and to serve, with Wood, as a director of the Alumni Association. Wade was also re-elected to the executive committee and Dykes was elected a member.

Hospital Opens Clinic

The Vincent Astor Clinic was opened at The New York Hospital, January 3. At brief opening ceremonies, Dr. David P. Barr '11, professor of Medicine at the Medical College and physician-in-chief of the Hospital, explained that the Clinic will provide complete diagnostic services, but not treatment, for private ambulatory patients. William H. Jackson, vice-president of The Society of the New York Hospital, said that it should eliminate need for hospitalization in many cases.

Operated by members of The New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center staff, the Clinic is named for Captain Vincent Astor, USNR (Ret.), whose donation financed the reconstruction of two wings of the Hospital where it is housed.

I&LR School has received requests for its publications from ten foreign countries. They are of interest to labor, management, and the general public.

No President Selected

The University Board of Trustees at its meeting in New York City, January 28, received no recommendation of a new President from the committee of Trustees and Faculty members appointed last June to consider candidates. Professor Arthur E. Sutherland, Jr., Law, secretary of the committee, said after the meeting that the committee is still receiving and still welcomes names of possible candidates. It will give full and searching consideration to all persons suggested to it by alumni, members of the Faculty, or others interested, he said.

Chairman Neal D. Becker '05 of the Board of Trustees, who is also chairman of the committee, said in New York that the Board is "in no hurry" to elect a President; that "we have a good Acting President [Professor Cornelis W. de Kiewiet, History] and are taking our time."

January 10, the Ithaca Journal had quoted Professor Sutherland as saying that the committee would not be ready to recommend the election of a President to the Board of Trustees at its January 28 meeting. Six days later, however, the Journal reported on its front page that it had "learned from authoritative sources today that Arthur H. Dean ['19] . . . is the top candidate for the presidency of Cornell University. Dean's name will be presented to the University's Board of Trustees at its meeting in New York City Saturday, January 28. It is expected, these sources said, that he will be named successor to Edmund Ezra Day, who resigned the presidency last June and became Cornell's first chancellor." This rumor was repeated in New York newspapers the next morning and attracted considerable attention.

Professor Sutherland immediately issued a statement, dated January 16, saying: "The committee appointed from the Board of Trustees and the Faculty to consider the selection of a President of Cornell has fixed its next meeting for January 27 in New York. Thus far, the committee has made no recommendation to the Board of Trustees."

The Associated Press reported from Ithaca, January 19, that Dean had wired Professor Sutherland that he was not a candidate. Dean's telegram said: "Please convey renewed assurances of esteem in which I hold members of your committee, and of the tremendous importance of the position for which you were considering me, but obligations and commitments which cannot be put asunder will not permit me to be a candidate."

Dean is a member of the New York City law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell. He was appointed to the University Board of Trustees by Governor Thomas E. Dewey in 1945 for a five-year term and has been chairman of the executive committee since July 1, 1948. He is also vice-chairman of the board of trustees of the State University of New York. Dean entered Arts and Sciences in 1915 from Ithaca High School, was out for two years, but returned in the SATC in 1918, and received the AB in 1921 and the LLB in 1923.

The committee appointed at the Commencement meeting of the Trustees last June, when President Day resigned, has as Trustee members Becker, Jacob G. Schurman '17, vice-chairman, Maxwell M. Upson '99, Mary H. Donlon '20, William D. P. Carey '23, and H. Edward Babcock; with Deans E. Lee Vincent, Home Economics, and Leonard S. Cottrell, Jr., Arts and Sciences, and Professors David P. Barr '11, Medicine, Forrest F. Hill, PhD '30, Agricultural Economics, and Sutherland. It has received a large number of names of proposed candidates, has held numerous meetings, and will continue its survey and welcome additional names, Professor Sutherland indicated.

The recent episode recalls a premature announcement of the fourth President of Cornell, nearly thirty years ago. President Jacob Gould Schurman had resigned after Commencement in 1920 and Dean Albert W. Smith '78 was Acting President while a committee was searching for a successor. It was publicly reported to at least one Cornell Club, and the rumor was widely circulated, that James Parker Hall '94, then dean of the law school at University of Chicago, would be the next President. But President Livingston Farrand was inaugurated October 20, 1921.

Announce Summer Session

Preliminary booklet on the 1950 Summer Session, July 3 to August 12, lists some 300 courses to be offered and contains general information and a card requesting the complete Announcement and application blank, which will be ready after March 1. Professor Frederick H. Stutz '35, Education, is Director of the Summer Session. The Preliminary Announcement and further information may be obtained from the Summer Session Office, 245 Goldwin Smith Hall, Ithaca.

College of Home Economics during the last eight months has been visited by seventeen professional women from nine foreign countries who came to learn about courses and teaching methods for application in their homelands. They came from England, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, New Zealand, Germany, Venezuela, Israel, India, and Japan. Among the visitors was the dean of the college of literature of the Japanese Women's University in Tokyo.

Lead Basketball League

The basketball team had attained twelve victories and three defeats as the second term started, February 6. Cornell held first place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League with three wins and one loss. Columbia and Princeton were tied for second with two wins and a loss.

Cornell's League defeat was a nightmarish one at the hands of Dartmouth in Hanover, January 7. With two seconds to go, the Varsity's one-point lead appeared safe. On a Dartmouth out-of-bounds play, however, the ball was passed to their captain, Emil Hudak, who blindly heaved it over his head from beyond mid-court. The timer's buzzer sounded while the ball was in the air, but it swished into the basket and hung there as a symbol of another upset victory by Dartmouth over a Cornell team. Dartmouth had led by 2 points at the half. Walter S. Ashbaugh '51 was high scorer for Cornell with six field goals for 12 points. In this series that dates back to 1901, Dartmouth has won forty-three times and Cornell, thirty-six.

The current crop of Varsity basketball players was never hotter than in the first half against Syracuse in Barton Hall, January 11. Hitting on 42 per cent of their shots from the floor, the team piled up a 42-18 lead in the first twenty minutes and went on to defeat Syracuse, 67-56. Syracuse did not score from the floor until more than eleven minutes had elapsed. Their candidate for all-America honors, Jack Kiley, was held to a single 2-pointer by the tight defensive play of Roger W. Chadwick '52 and Lawrence J. Goldsborough '52. Ashbaugh was high, again with 12 points. Ten Cornell players scored, three hitting double figures.

A good second half gave Cornell a 69-49 victory over Columbia in Barton Hall, January 14. Ahead 28-22 at the intermission, the Varsity put the heat on in the last half to ring up the first victory of a Greene-coached team over the New Yorkers. Ashbaugh hit eight times from the field and twice from the foul line for the night's high total. He was ably assisted by Paul J. Gerwin '51 with 16 and Fred J. Eydt '52 who had 14.

Georgetown cancelled its game scheduled in Ithaca, January 18. January 21, Cornell journeyed to Hamilton to chalk up its second victory of the season over Colgate, 61-57. The two wins bring the series margin since 1902 to twenty-four games for Cornell to twenty-one for Colgate. Cornell was behind 12 points at one time in the first half and at intermission was still behind, 31-24. Scoring 13 successive points after the half the Varsity went out in front to stay. Gerwin led with 15 points.

Clearly showing the effects of the examination period lay-off, Cornell nosed out Fordham, 50-48, in Ithaca, February 1. Although Fordham scored eighteen times from the floor compared with fifteen for Cornell, they failed to hit consistently from the foul line, missing seventeen of twenty-nine chances. The home team was successful on twenty of twenty-eight, and that was the ball game. Fordham held a 4-point lead at the half. Gerwin tallied 16 points to lead the scoring.

A gala Junior Week crowd of more than 7,000 persons saw the Varsity defeat Pennsylvania, 54-35, in Barton Hall, Saturday afternoon, February 4. Pennsylvania scored but eight field goals, four in each half, and were behind, 30-15, at the half. The Cornell defense was so tight that the visitors were forced to long shots, and they made good eight of sixty-three tries from the field. Cornell was successful on twenty of seventy-three. Coach Greene used eleven players, ten of whom scored, led by Ashbaugh's 16 points. In this series, Pennsylvania leads with fifty-six victories to Cornell's thirty-five. Penn won the Junior Week game last year, 45-43.

Junior-Varsity Loses

The Junior-Varsity team lost to Syracuse for the second time in the preliminary to the Cornell-Fordham game. The score was 52-50 in two minutes of overtime. Franklin S. Bennett '51 scored 14 points for Cornell.

Freshman Take Two of Three

The Freshmen defeated the LeMoyne College yearlings, 75-57, in Syracuse, January 6. Todd L. Kolb '53 tossed in 25 points. January 11, the Syracuse freshmen defeated Cornell, 52-44, in a game played before the varsity contest between the same universities. Kolb again led the scoring, with 16. David R. Bennett '53 sank a long set-shot with fifteen seconds to go, to give Cornell a one-point lead over the Ithaca College freshmen, January 14 in Barton Hall. Kolb made good, seconds later, a "sucker-shot" that brought the final score to 62-59.

Track Team Breaks Records

Six records fell when Cornell opened its indoor track season in Barton Hall against Dartmouth, January 21, with a 62-51 victory. Meredith C. Gourdine '52 was the star of the meet with three first places, two of which were record-breaking performances. He set a new meet and Bacon Cage record in the running broad jump with a leap of 23 feet 6½ inches. His second meet record was in the 75-yard low hurdles which he won in 0:08.2. He also won the 75-yard dash. Robert C. Mealey '51, running the mile for the first time, set a new meet record of 4:31.6. The other Cornell record-breaker was Arthur W. Gardiner '52 in the shotput with a heave of 48 feet 8¾ inches. Gardiner also won the 35-pound weight throw with a toss of 52 feet 6¾ inches. Other Cornell winners were Charles H. Moore, Jr. '51, with a 0:50.9 quarter-mile; Henderson J. Cleaves '52 in the two-mile run; and the mile relay team of Richard F. Reid '50, Harold K. Chadwick '52, Robert F. Kahrs '52, and Moore.

Dartmouth had two record breakers. Nelson Ehinger wiped out the Barton Hall record of Paul Robeson, Jr. '49 in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 5¾ inches. Peter McCreary set a new meet record and tied the Barton Hall record when he ran the 75-yard high hurdles in 0:09.2. Captain Robert G. Hunt '50 was out of the meet with a leg injury.

This was the first meet since Louis C. Montgomery became head coach. He succeeded Coach John F. Moakley, who is serving as advisor.

Mealey, Moore, Gourdine, and Chadwick represented Cornell at the Washington Evening Star invitation meet January 14 in Washington. As a relay team, they won a special Ivy League mile race. Moore won the 600-yard run, beating such stars as Herb McKenley, George Rhoden, and George Guida. Mealey defeated Mal Whitfield, the Olympic 800-meter champion, and others to take first place in the 1000-yard race. Mealey and Moore were both nipped at the tape in their respective events in the annual Millrose Games in Madison Square Garden, January 28. Cornell was third in the mile relay, which was run in heats and decided on time. NYU set a new Millrose record of 3:19.5.

Moore won the 600-yard race at the Boston AA Games, February 4, in the sensational time of 1:21.1. This was the fastest Moore has ever run the distance and set a new Cornell record. Mealey was third in the 1000-yard run, which was won by Roscoe Brown of the Pioneer Club in 2:11 flat, the fastest time ever run in Boston.

Wrestlers Lose

The wrestling team has suffered two more trouncings, losing to Penn State, 32-0, January 14 at State College, and to the US Military Academy, 27-3, in Barton Hall, January 21. Barton Treman '52, William J. Bartels '50, and Bruce Allen '51 were thrown in the Penn State match and Captain Robert S. Stedje '50, George E. DeCoursey, Jr. '52, Earle Wilde '50, and Charles T. Taft '50 all lost decisions. Peter G. Bolanis '51, outstanding Cornell 128-pounder, was unable to make the weight and forfeited but threw his opponent in an exhibition bout. The Junior Varsity wrestlers lost to Penn State by the same score.

Captain Stedje was the only Cornell winner in the match against the Army cadets. Wilde, Herbert B. Pusch '52, Frederick W. Trojan '52, and Davis lost decisions. DeCoursey, Murray E. Miles '52, and Bartels were thrown. Bolanis and Taft were kept out by injuries sustained in practice sessions with members of the Freshman squad.

Freshmen Win Again

The Freshmen continue to give Cornell followers of wrestling hope for the future. They defeated the Syracuse cubs, 25-11, at Syracuse, January 7. Cornell lost 5 points because of being unable to enter a man in the 121-pound class. Robert A. Spillman lost a decision in the 128-pound class as did Heavyweight Lester D. Simon. Captain William R. VanGilder, Frank Bettucci, Paul Mobius, John R. Arnold, and Donald G. Dickason all scored falls.

January 11, Ithaca College frosh were shut out, 36-0. Spillman, trained down to 121 pounds, and Simons won on points and Richard J. Delgado, VanGilder, Bettucci, Ehret B. Page, Arnold, and Dickason scored falls. VanGilder, Bettucci, Arnold, and Dickason have won by falls in all four of their matches and Page has thrown his opponent in his three.

Swimmers Undefeated

The swimming team defeated the US Naval Academy, 39-36 at Annapolis, Md., January 7; Penn State at Ithaca, 53-22, the next Saturday; and Pennsylvania, 52-23, in the Old Armory pool, January 21, bringing its season record to four straight wins. Winners against the Navy were Bruce R. Campbell '52 in the 220-yard and 440-yard freestyle races; Robert A. Cornetti '51, 100-yard freestyle, and John K. Howell '51 in the 220-yard breaststroke. Also a winner was the 300-yard medley relay team composed of David N. Epstein '51, Howell, and Cornetti.

Against Penn State, Campbell won the 220-yard freestyle; Cornetti, the 50-yard freestyle; Captain David H. Blauvelt '51, diving; Epstein, the 150-yard backstroke, and Richard F. Tucker '50, the 200-yard breaststroke. The 300-yard medley relay team of Howell, John M. Farrell '52, and Loren F. Kahle, Jr. '50, and the 400-yard freestyle team of Campbell, Cornetti, Richard B. Sager '51, and Warren R. Leach '52 both outswam their rivals.

Campbell was again a double winner against Pennsylvania in his favorite freestyle events. Blauvelt took the dive, Epstein the backstroke, and Howell, the 200-yard breaststroke. The 300-yard relay team and the 400-yard freestyle quartet, with Henri M. Van Bemmelen '52 swimming in place of Sager, were both winners.

Fencers Start Well

In its first meet of the season, the fencing team downed the strong swordsmen from the US Military Academy, 14-13, in the tower room of Barton Hall, January 14. Outscored, 5-4, in both the epee and sabre events, Cornell won in the foils, 6-3, to take the meet. Richard I. Dudley '50 was a triple winner for Cornell. The victory was not assured until Richard A. Smith '51, sabre expert, scored a win in the next-to-last match.

Polo Team Plays

A team of Dr. Arthur B. Christian '38 of Asheville, N.C., Dr. Stephen J. Roberts '37, Veterinary, and Varsity coach, and Sergeant Frank H. Page, retired, beat the Varsity team, 21-15, in the Riding Hall, January 7. Fred G. Palmer '51 was high student scorer.

The following Saturday, Cornell suffered its first intercollegiate loss of the season, to Yale, 13-11, in the Riding Hall. Varsity players never overcame the 4-1 lead which Yale piled up in the first chukker. Captain Willard I. Emerson, Jr. '51 led the Cornell scoring with 5 goals. When Williams College players did not appear January 21, the Varsity team defeated the Junior-Varsity, 18-12.

February 4 for Junior Week, Cornell defeated Bishop's Hollow Polo Club, 14-9, in the Riding Hall. Palmer and Edward Grano, Jr. '52 shared scoring honors, with 5 goals each. Captain Emerson, son of Willard I. Emerson '19, was in the Infirmary after an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Sports Shorts

The Board of Physical Education and Athletics authorized cancelling the schedule of hockey games and announced that intercollegiate matches would be abandoned until such time as the University has an indoor rink with artificial ice. The weather last winter and this has made practice and games here impossible. Hockey started at Cornell in 1896.

Lack of snow this year has also made skiing impossible, resulting in cancelling all scheduled meets. No outdoor lessons had been possible through the first week in February in the proposed ski school.

Edward T. Peterson '48, former Varsity basketball center, is playing an important role in the success of the Syracuse Nationals of the professional Basketball Association. The Nats have won twenty-five of twenty-nine games and are making a runaway in their league. Big Pete is scheduled to sing between the halves of the Syracuse-Boston Celtics game in Syracuse in March. He will be accompanied by Yale's Tony Lavelli, an accomplished accordion player. When Lavelli signed to play with Boston, it was in his contract that he would play his "squeeze box" between the halves of games in which Boston participated.

William T. Kirk '52, placekicker of the Varsity football team, will shortly defend his Varsity bowling championship. Competing last April as one of fifty bowlers in the individual championship match run by the Department of Intramural Sports, he had high score of 552 pins knocked down in three games.

Letters

Subject to the usual restrictions of space and good taste, we shall print letters from subscribers on any side of any subject of interest to Cornellians. The ALUMNI NEWS often may not agree with the sentiments expressed, and disclaims any responsibility beyond that of fostering interest in the University.

"...As a Gentleman Should"

To the Editor:

The rather detailed account of the demise of Mummy Club in the January Alumni News is, above all, rather amusing in several respects. Having been a member of Mummy Club during the quoted times of stress (1916), I have discovered after reading the article that in the eyes of the Sun, Widow, Era, and the Senior societies, I was a bum. Not having been present when my name must have been voted on, I now consider myself as having been most fortunate to have been elected to Sphinx Head, along with about ten other Mummy members that year.

I have also learned for the first time, according to the records just dug up from the local morgues, that Mummy Club encouraged drinking and was unwholesome for athletes. Gib Cool never drank in his life; Charlie Barrett, a few beers at a sitting; and Murray Shelton was almost totally abstemious. They were all-Americans, if my memory serves me right, and there were other fine performers in track and crew whose names have been lost in history.

I well recall the attacks of the Sun in those days on both Mummy and Majura. . . . However, I am aware of the decline of both clubs after two wars. The ritual of Mummy Club was lost and the songs went to war and never returned. Perhaps they have outlived their usefulness in an ever-changing world, and I take no issue with the Faculty in banning them. They just fell apart of their own lack of purpose. In my time, they had arisen from the underground, where they survived for several years, because of their strength and vitality of purpose.

No action of the Faculty, however, will ever prevent the reunion of the Mummies of 1916-18 each year in Ithaca. We shall always return and renew friendships which have been, through the years, the most binding influences we took away with us when, according to the script, Cornell said, "Farewell, you bums!"

I got over my disgust when I read the sage and consoling words of Rym Berry, several pages further on. Time mellows many things, including one's sense of reason. Thanks, Rym!

And now, I wonder whether I have been donating to a lesser rather than a Greater Cornell. On second thought, I think I'll take a stiff highball in memory of the Club that taught me to drink, as a gentleman should!

West Coast Now Believes

To the Editor:

Yes siree, now I see what you mean! All season, the Alumni News has been convincing distant alumni that there is a football team at Ithaca. But we Cornell fans of the Kaw and Pfann days are "from Missuori," and month-old reports of games are unconvincing.

Today here in Pasadena I tuned in the East-West game from San Francisco, and the truth of the Alumni News preaching was evident. During the greater part of the game, half of the East backfield was composed of Pete Dorset and Hillary Chollet. Catapult Dorset ran the team and threw one touchdown pass, while Slingit Chollet threw another touchdown pass and managed several interceptions. Conservatively, they outshone the Notre Dame "greats." The announcer, explaining why the Notre Dame boys were dropping passes, said: "Dorset throws them like bullets!"

And to make it perfect, the East team was dressed in Red and White! Yes siree, now I see what you mean!

American Dairy Science Association will hold its forty-fifth annual meeting here, June 20-22. Some 1,500 delegates are expected to attend the first meeting held at Cornell since 1934. General chairman is Professor Kenneth L. Turk, PhD '34, head of Animal Husbandry.

"Straight to the Country" was the title and theme of a very pleasant all-day party and demonstration which occupied Willard Straight Hall and intrigued hundreds, Friday, January 13. Staged by the boys and girls from far above Beebe's waters, under sponsorship of the Ag-Domecon Council, it was like a miniature preview of Farm and Home Week, arranged for the rest of the Campus.

A gleaming new Farmall Cub tractor occupied the center of the lobby, with a scale model dairy barn and representation of a farm pond at one side and at the other, an exhibit of eggs hatching that played all day long to crowding neck-stretching spectators. Here a long combination incubator and brooder with a glass top contained, standing on end, one egg for each day of the hatching process, from one to twenty-one. The shells had been chipped off at the top, to show the whole sequence, starting with mere streaks of blood reaching out from the nucleus and continuing through the formation of a pulsating but still shapeless embryo into the infant chick, convulsively working its way out of the shell. In the brooder compartment was a covey of baby chicks, some not yet dry, peeping and scurrying among a dozen eggs from which others were emerging.

Other exhibits and stunts were spread out in the Memorial Room, with a particularly beautiful arbor gracing the far end. This and shadow-box displays along the wall were contributions of the Floriculture Club and were left up for a dance in the evening.

The Poultry Club displayed pictures of its judging team and its coach, Professor G. O. Hall, PhD '26, and bragged that between 1924 and 1948 Club teams had won ten firsts, four seconds, three thirds, one fourth, and one seventh in their Intercollegiates. The Round-up Club ran a "Guess or Judge" contest, with four pictures each of Duroc swine, Holstein cows, Percheron horses, Hereford bulls, Hampshire sheep, and cuts of beefsteak; spectators were invited to grade each class. Other attractive exhibits were arranged by the Future Farmers of America, Cornell Countryman, Student Agricultural Agent Club, and Kermis.

To test the visitor's knowledge, the 4-H Club offered an electrical quiz board on which, if he punched the right button, a melodious chime would strike; a mistake actuated a derisive buzzer. Two amusing possibilities: "The 4-H Club is a Syracuse fraternity?" and "The 4-Hs stand for Horses, Hogs, Hens, Hares?" The Vegetable Crops Club had a similar contraption titled, "How's Your Vegetable I.Q.?"—Get Your B.S. in Five Minutes." Sample questions. "A tomato is: Fruit, Vegetable, Berry, All Three?" "What kind of seed is dependable for germination for one year only: Sweet Corn, Pea, Parsnip, Cabbage?" (Correct answers are Nos. 4 and 3, respectively.)

In the afternoon, the Home Ec girls got a chance to show their stuff. In a style show, Dress Design students modelled their own handiwork to the accompaniment of a running patter from a mistress of ceremonies. In your behalf, I braved the predominantly feminine South Parlor audience and took in the show, bolstered by the company of Foster Coffin '12 and rewarded by free tea and cake, courtesy of Willard Straight. Apparently, free Oolong is served frequently Friday afternoons, because several male students who know their Campus dropped in after the style show and demonstrated that they could juggle tea cups.

Topping off the evening was a Country Garden Dance (also free) in the Memorial Room. Entertainment was promised, so I slipped over to see the three acts: A boy acting out phonograph records as though he were the singer, a girl with a split personality, and a quartet wearing brilliant red ties and giving out with some old harmonies of my youthful days. I didn't see any dancing, as the party adjourned to the Ivy Room for intermission refreshments just then, but I was told that the square dances were particularly well received and enthusiastically rendered.

All in all, it was a very successful day. It served nicely to emphasize the width and depth of student life at Cornell and to demonstrate the value of a student union such as Willard Straight Hall.

Costa Rica soil conservation chief, Oscar Vargas, recently spent ten days at the University. He came on a United Nations fellowship to study the work of the Air Photo Research Laboratory of the School of Civil Engineering.

Marxist Discussion Group here has disbanded to merge with the recently-formed Labor Youth League, which has succeeded American Youth for Democracy. The political ideology of the new group is similar to that of its predecessors.

A Leader Retires

Deserved and widespread tribute was paid to Chancellor Edmund E. Day when he resigned his official duties at the University. Editorials in the New York Herald Tribune, New York Times, Ithaca Journal, and other newspapers cited his many accomplishments for Cornell through twelve-and-a-half years as President and Chancellor, and his public leadership as a statesman of education. The many tributes at his retirement echo the sincere appreciation and good wishes of all his friends at this and other universities and among Cornellians everywhere.

But little has been said of one important aspect of his leadership at Cornell: his remarkable enlistment of alumni interest and activity for the University. President Day recognized the importance of well informed, intelligent alumni. His able guidance cleared the channels for making alumni capabilities effective, with resulting benefits to the University and new personal satisfaction to hundreds of Cornellians.

Dr. Day's first public statement after his election was to Cornell alumni, in the Alumni News of November 12, 1936. Also before he took office, he visited a number of Cornell Clubs and, as always later, was received with enthusiasm as a great Cornellian and an inspiring leader. Through the years, he probably met and talked to more alumni than any other President. Often he was provocative and challenging in what he had to say, and his ideas bore fruit.

Shortly after he was inaugurated, President Day suggested the desirability of coordinating and "streamlining" the alumni organizations for greater effectiveness.

By June, 1939, with his advice and counsel, they were amalgamated in the present Cornell Alumni Association, which brings together all the varied alumni activities in a cohesive, working organization. From his experience as a class agent for Dartmouth, he took active interest in perfecting the organization and methods which brought the number and amount of annual contributions to the Cornell Alumni Fund to rank with the leaders in the country. Development of Cornell Club relations with local schools and prospective students; codification of Alumni Club Scholarships; fostering College alumni associations and perfecting the Class organizations, both as undergraduates and alumni; participation of all groups to stimulate Alumni Trustee nominations—all received his active support.

President and Mrs. Day often entertained groups of alumni in the President's House, notably at Reunion parties for the elder Classes. He advocated "freedom with responsibility," and as an aid to student self-government, he was instrumental in starting the Interfraternity Alumni Association. His annual Reports to the Alumni, mailed to all Cornellians since 1944, were a welcome innovation; and he approved and made possible the Letter from Cornell.

With President Day's encouragement, the reorganized Alumni Association shortly acquired the Alumni News, thus putting ownership of the paper in the official over-all alumni organization. Its circulation and influence has since markedly increased. The News has always had his constant interest and support. Even in occasional disagreement, he recognized that the News must represent the alumni, never becoming merely a mouthpiece for the University administration. He knew that thus the University would benefit.

All Cornellians join in saluting a great President and a wise Chancellor, and wish him and Mrs. Day every happiness in his retirement.

Cornell Plantations

The Cornell Plantations, Winter issue, contains an appreciation of the late Professor Willard W. Rowlee '88 as a "Plantations Pioneer," written by his former student, Professor E. Laurence Palmer '11; an extract from a letter written by Rowlee in 1907-8 about a gift made by the Cornell Alumni Association of Brooklyn for preserving the beauty of the Campus gorges; and an extract from Jacob Gould Schurman's President's Report for 1915-16 on "Preservation of Natural Beauties."

Professor Walter C. Muenschler, PhD '21, Botany, reports on Bergen Swamp in Genesee County as a haven for rare plants, and on the venerable red oak tree, more than 200 years old, which was taken down on the site of the new Agriculture Library building. From the late Professor Walter King Stone is an essay on "Sled Runners;" Professor Ralph W. Curtis '01, Ornamental Horticulture, Emeritus, writes on "Woody Weeds;" and Professor William C. Baker '98, Drawing, Emeritus, describes the Cornell Plantations and similar projects as "Sanitorium." Jay L. Hench '07 writes of "Woodcock and Willow."

NROTC Students Do Well

Third-year students in the Cornell Naval ROTC led all others of fifty college units in Naval Science tests given by the Navy Department in 1949. Average grade reported to Captain Charles W. Gray, USN, commandant at Cornell, for the twenty-three Cornell third-year students was 92.87, compared with a national average of 62.34.

In second-year competition among fifty-one units, sixty-seven Cornell students ranked next to the top with an average of 124.64, compared with a national average of 113.28. In first-year tests, the Cornell group of 114 students average 103.93, compared with a national average of 99.02, for thirteenth place among forty-four units.

Sage Chapel Choir has been complimented for its Christmas concert, broadcast December 20, by James Fassett, supervisor of music for CBS and announcer for the Sunday afternoon New York Philharmonic program. In a letter to Joseph Short, assistant manager of Station WHCU, which broadcast the program over a CBS network, Fassett congratulated the Choir and said that its concert had also been praised by an expert choirmaster. The choir was under direction of Professor Donald J. Grout, Music, with accompaniment by Professor William W. Austin, University Organist.

"We The People" radio show had as its guest, January 20, Prudence Allen '48, daughter of Professor Arthur A. Allen '08, Ornithology, and Mrs. Allen (Elsa Guerdrum)'12. Her article on old New York State marriage superstitions in the New York Folklore Quarterly attracted newspaper attention and resulted in the radio invitation. Her material was taken from the folklore collection of Professor Harold W. Thompson, English.

Instrument which received the first telegraph message, "What hath God wrought!" was loaned by the University for the Samuel F. B. Morse Memorial Exhibition of Arts and Sciences, January 19-February 28, at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City. Usually displayed in Sibley Library, the instrument was given to Cornell by Hiram W. Sibley, son of the founder of Sibley College.

Seventeen European hotelmen visited the University, February 3, as a part of a study, sponsored by the Economic Cooperation Administration, of American methods of hotel management. They were addressed at luncheon in Willard Straight Hall by Acting President Cornelius W. de Kiewiet and toured that building, Martha Van Rensselaer Hall, and partly-completed Statler Hall under the guidance of Professor Howard B. Meek, Hotel Administration.

Annual meeting of the Empire State Chapter, Soil Conservation Society of America, on the Campus January 30-31, attracted ninety-three registrants. Speeches on the economic aspects of soil and water conservation, general theme of the meeting, were given by Hugh L. Cosline '18, associate editor of American Agriculturist; John W. Corncross '25, Rutgers University agricultural economist; John L. McGurk '44 and Jerome K. Passto, MSA '46, Agricultural Economics; and Kenneth C. Beeson, PhD '48, director of the US Soil and Nutrition Laboratory. Chapter chairman is Arnold J. Baur, PhD '33 of Ithaca; secretary-treasurer is Rodman F. Fellows '35 of Trumansburg. Program chairman for the meeting was George C. Moore '37 of Penn Yan.

Colgate's campus fund campaign received help from Cornellians this year. Ten students traveled to Hamilton to entertain at a "kick-off" rally, January 11. They were Stuart Raynolds '50, juggler; Ann Gleason '53, vocalist; Carol Friedman '53, pianist; and a dancing chorus of seven girls. Their appearance was sponsored by Willard Straight Hall and arranged by Director Foster M. Coffin '12, Assistant Director Edgar A. Whiting '29, and Kenneth S. Jaffe '51.

Ithaca elected a new mayor, January 10, in a special election called by Governor Thomas E. Dewey. He is Stanley C. Shaw, Republican, forty-four-year-old veteran of twelve years in the State Assembly. Shaw defeated Edward A. Richardson '31 to succeed Bert T. Baker '97. The special election was made necessary by the death of the mayor-elect Lee H. Daniels, Democrat.

Florist's short course given January 18 and 19 by the Department of Floriculture and Ornamental Horticulture, brought 300 growers, three from California. The course was directed by Professor Kenneth Post, PhD '37. Speakers included M. Truman Fossum '40, assistant secretary of the Society of American Florists; John L. Brookins '41 of Orchard Park, and Paul E. Newman, PhD '37, of Olean.

WIDOW COVER for its Junior Week issue is a reproduction of one used for that event in 1905. It is a drawing of a girl of that period by Andre Smith '02, who made the cover design used by the Alumni News for many years. On Campus news stands, the Widow cover attracted favorable comment, especially from members of the University who knew the Widow when it was vibrant with the talent of Romeyn Berry '04, George Jean Nathan '04, and Kenneth Roberts '08. New Widow editor is Whitney L. Balliet '51. Barnard Tilson '51, son of Howard Tilson '17, is managing editor; William V. Joy '50, son of S. Alden Perrine '20, assistant managing editor; and Murray R. Wigsten '52, son of Frank M. Wigsten '22, and St. Clair McKelway, Jr. '52 are associate editors. Business manager is William C. McNeal '51.

Market investment experience was gained at no cost last term by students of Professor Edgar A. Parsons, PhD '49, I&LR. In his course, "The Corporation," each member of the class received an imaginary credit of $10,000 to invest on the stock, bond, or curb exchange. Unfortunately, to Professor Parsons' way of thinking, the students were dealing in a generally rising market. One "investor" realized a profit of $1,500 during the trial period, October 7-January 12, and almost all of the others showed over-all gains. Instead of learning a healthy respect for the capriciousness of the market, the students were disappointed because they had not been playing for keeps.

Two Cornellians were among sixty-four polio victims, past and present patients at Ithaca Reconstruction Home, who took over the programs of University radio station WHCU and the Rural Radio Network, January 27, in its fourth annual "Operation Polio" for the March of Dimes campaign. Frank M. Reynolds '44 of Trumansburg and Abraham Hertzberg, M AerE '49, of Buffalo returned to participate. M. Elizabeth Day, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund E. Day, helped with a broadcast from the Reconstruction Home.

Ithaca banks have re-elected Cornellians among their officers. President of the Ithaca Savings & Loan Association is Harry G. Stutz '07; treasurer, Professor Carl Crandall '12. The directors include Joseph J. Driscoll '15 and Harold A. Pratt, MS '21, and James F. O'Connor '30 is attorney. Directors of the First National Bank include board chairman, Professor Harold L. Reed, PhD '14, Economics, Trustee H. Edward Babcock, Dean Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, Industrial and Labor Relations, Henry A. Carey '12, Douglas G. Gillette '12, Leon C. Pritchard '12, Charles H. Newman '13, and James R. Robinson '10. Professor Sherman Peer '06 is vice-president of the Tompkins County Trust Co. and Charles E. Treman, Jr. '30 is vice-president and trust officer.

Professional basketball game between the Syracuse Nationals and the Wilkes-Barre Barons attracted 2,800 persons to Barton Hall, January 27, and raised $1,487 for the March of Dimes campaign. The Nats, whose roster includes Edward T. Peterson '48, former Varsity center, defeated the Barons, 70-65, in a tight, hard-fought game that ran to five minutes overtime. The game was sponsored by the Tompkins County chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Class of 1913

M. R. Neifeld, Correspondent

15 Washington St., Newark 2, N. J.

Re Class '13 dues for 1950, Don Beardsley quips:

Reserve cash for the Class is kept leaner
By each parsimonious Thirteener.

Confucius say that three things are most difficult: rewarming the ashes of a cold love between a woman and last season's hat, rekindling a man's appetite for last night's cold Welsh Rabbit, and re-knotting the ties that bind a grad to Alma Mater.

Your correspondent had a brilliant inspiration—a flash of sheer genius. A column about all the Joneses in 1913 will be something different. Although they all spell the surname alike, one Jones stands out from the others—in first name, in occupation, in family, in hobbies, and in many ways. Ditto Allen; ditto Smith; ditto Brown; ditto Johnson; ditto '13-er Vets; ditto '13-er Medics; ditto '13-er highbrows, PhDs, professors, deans, and other literati.

With us to think is to act. So we appealed: "Drop me a line right away about what you are doing or are going to do, or what has happened to you or yours in business, in civic life, in family life, in social life, or about anything that is . . ."

We have a passion for mathematical exactness, for accounting accuracy. We report the box score of returns, to wit: 1 Allen out of 5, 1 Brown out of 5, 1 Jones out of 5, 1 Johnson out of 5, 2 Smiths out of 12, 3 Medics out of 13, 3

Vets out of 13, 3 highbrows et al out of 24, and 0 out of 4 Docs (nature unknown).

Confucius was a wise man.

Neill Houston says:

Examine your excuses,
For not paying Class dues-es.

Sidney Edlund of New York City has carved an interesting career in the field of management counselling with emphasis on marketing problems. Sid has been general sales manager of William A. Rogers, Ltd., silverware; president of Pine Bros., Inc., glycerine tablets; president of Life Savers, Inc., the candy that made the hole famous; and now is senior partner of Sidney Edlund & Co.

In 1935 he founded the Man Marketing Clinic whose purpose is to teach people gratis how to pick and land jobs. The New York clinic is under the auspices of the Sales Executive Club. Similar clinics have been established elsewhere by universities, chambers of commerce, YMCA's, service clubs, advertising clubs, by the Army Air Corps, and other groups. Pick Your Job—and Land It, a Prentice-Hall book, written by Sid and Mary, his wife, describes this work. Tim, the older of their two children, is presently a Mechanical Engineering Junior at Cornell.

Sid wants to know:

Breathes there a grad so bereft of ardour
Who won't put 5 bucks in '13's larder?

Hornblower & Weeks, New York City securities firm established in 1888, announced the admission of seven new general partners as of the first of the year. Among the new members of the concern were Ralph Hornblower, Jr. and Henry Hornblower II, grandsons of Henry Hornblower, founder of the business, and our own Tristan Antell. Tris has been head of the firm's research department since 1942. Apparently, Tris has been doing so well financially as an employee, that the other partners found it more economical to pin a rosette on him, give him a key to the private place, paint the word "partner" on his office door, stick his name on the company letterhead, and let him share the losses.

However, the other prerogatives and emoluments can soften the assumption of entrepreneurial risks of plus or minus in substitution for payroll security. Almost at once, the new partner got himself a free trip to Florida, organized by Florida Power Corp. to show that both the corporation and the Florida territory it serves are sound investment possibilities. Tris is probably the only New Yorker who had never been to Florida before. The event has been recorded for all posterity and Tris has been immortalized by the pictorial department of LIFE in an issue of the magazine last December.

Then days later, Florida Power Corp. announced that its offering of 242,000 additional common shares through rights issued to its stockholders had been oversubscribed.

The new member of the Wall Street elite cautiously forecasts:

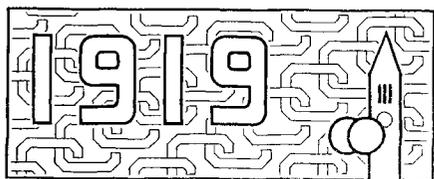

Classmates who don't pay dues-es
Won't make '13's Who's Whos-es.

'14—On his farm, "Hayfields," near Churchville, Thomas E. Milliman has in five years of "breed-blending" notably increased the production and butter-fat content of market milk in his herd of seventy-five dairy animals. New York State average for mature cows is about 60 per cent of the Hayfields herd production. Young bulls bred at Hayfields are leased free to farmers who wish to build up production of their herds.

His work often takes him out of Ithaca and to Washington, D.C., for conferences with the heads of national farm organizations and with various officials of the Department of Agriculture, and for occasional calls on congressmen and senators. Shack writes: "In servicing our farmer members, we find that purchasing in world markets, processing in mills, and distribution of many farm-needed items (particularly feed) through some 650 retail units either owned by farmers or affiliated with GLF—this operation requires continuous two-way flow of information between Ithaca headquarters and Washington. That's my main job." In 1948-49, GLF dollar volume was $142,199,000.

Class Dues Statistical Department: Through January 19, 223 Classmates had paid their current annual dues of $5. Of these, 21 have subscribed for the first time this year. As of January 26, 1949, only 164 men had paid their dues. But 102 who paid dues during the fiscal year ending June 30 last have not yet paid this year. At least 50% of those who have not paid must do so in order to get our loyal Class underwriters off the hook this year. If YOU are in this category, grab your check-book and mail your five bucks to our suffering Class treasurer, Morse G. Dial, 30 East Forty-second Street, New York 17.

January 12, Don Blanke, Ho Ballou, Russ Iler, Ben Fishman, Nat Baier, Ed Cadiz, Irv Fletcher, Kelly Sachs, Jack Solomon, Phil Munesteri, Spike Livingston, Joe Diamant, Bennie Benisch, George Rogers, and Stan Smith got together at the Cornell Club of New York for a progress report. Another will follow March 16 and another April 20. New faces will be welcome at these pre-Reunion get-togethers.—Stan Smith

'20 Women—At a luncheon at the Hotel Barbizon in New York City, an informal Reunion committee was formed with Agda Swenson Osborn (Mrs. Robert C. Osborn) of Ithaca as chairman. directly from her. Alice Callahan Jensen is in charge of costumes and will welcome suggestions for costumes cheerful, inexpensive, and "adaptable to various figure types," as the fashion ads say. An extra attraction, because this is a very special Reunion, will be a Friday evening picnic or buffet for which Anita Wolff Gillette is chairman; so do plan for three days (June 9, 10, and 11) instead of the short week end on the Campus. The hostess committee in Ithaca will be headed by Alberta Dent Shackelton, so you are assured of the warmest welcome in the place where each and all of us truly belong. Olive Monroe Kinne of Chappaqua and Alice L. Smith of Hartford, Conn., are area co-chairmen. Marcia McCartney Howell of New York City is in charge of publicity.—M. M. H.

'24 ME—A patent for a device which will increase the safety of airplanes in flight has been granted to Professor Andrew J. Fairbanks, associate head of the department of aeronautical engineering at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy. Developed during the war in conjunction with W. & L. E. Gurley Co., Troy, and now assigned to the Civil Aeronautics Administration for general public use, the device is called a "stall warning indicator." One of the commonest causes of crashes, particularly in private airplanes, is the "stall." The device consists of a tiny vane about one-fourth by one-half inch in size which projects through the front of the wing. It is so located that the flow of air at the surface of the wing will actuate the vane before the airplane reaches a dangerous attitude. The vane then causes a warning signal in the cockpit of the airplane and the pilot may then avert the stall by using power rather than nose-up to maintain his height.

Three good reviews of three good books

The Saturday Review of Literature

A History of American Literature: 1607-1765

By MOSES COIT TYLER

"In the guise of literary history, Tyler really wrote something larger, more comprehensive, than literary history. He did it with learning, eloquence, judgment, and unfailing humor; to which was added a skill in illustrative quotation which makes his volumes incomparable anthologies as well as histories. Master of rounded periods, he was also master of the short, sharp, telling phrase, and expert in the description of style—as may be seen in his dealings with Cotton Mather, Thomas Hooker, and many others. He is endlessly quotable."

Economic Security and Individual Freedom: Can We Have Both?

By ALBERT LAUTERBACH, Sarah Lawrence College

"Mr. Lauterbach shows that the alternatives are not inevitably on opposite sides: it was the depression which in Germany led to oppression, so that preventing the first helps avert the second, if—"Mr. Lauterbach's filling out of the if-clause is, like the rest of his book, very lucid, deliberate, and undogmatic. He takes up all the main arguments for and against the main proposals, and concludes in favor of a mixed economy, but one mixed in accordance with forethought based on existing knowledge, rather than compounded of stopgaps and self-defeating expedients."

Psychiatry: ITS EVOLUTION AND PRESENT STATUS

By WILLIAM C. MENNINGER, M. D.

"In addition to summarizing the history [of psychiatry], this book outlines the tremendous possibilities for increasing mental health through broad application of the findings of psychoanalytic psychiatry. The volume consists of three chapters originally presented during the fall of 1947 as the Messenger Lectures on the Evolution of Civilization."

As we write this ad, Fall Term examinations are just ending and we are preparing for the rush at the opening of the Spring Term. If you were here in the thirties or forties, you will remember the crowds in our Book Department, but we've been able to help this condition a little by operating a second store at Barton Hall during the first week of each term. And we have hopes for a larger store some day soon, so that we can serve Cornellians quickly and in comfort.

We don't have anything new to offer this month. Cornell Beverage Glasses are best-sellers at this time of year, and we have all sizes: 3½ ounce, 6½ ounce, 9½ ounce, 12 ounce, and 14 ounce— together with a matching Cocktail Shaker. Our stock of Cornell Records has been replenished and we can supply the two new double-face, twelve-inch recordings by the Glee Club in a shipping carton for $3.00.

Perhaps we should mention Cornell Sweat Shirts again; they're appropriate for cool weather wear. We have them for children and for adults: $1.50 in children's sizes, $1.75 in adult sizes, prepaid.

By Bill Knauss, Acting Class Secretary
409 E. Cedar St., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Have just come back from the winter meeting of Class secretaries in New York. I mention this because Class organization was one of the topics discussed and it's something that our Class needs to think about. Have the ball rolling on several ideas and expect something definite will crystalize around Reunion time.

The important thing now is that this June is our Five-year Reunion; so let's get on the stick and plan now to attend. Still several months off but not too soon to fix it with the boss so you can be on hand for the entire week end which begins Friday, June 9. Come on you guys, let's set a new record for a Five-year Reunion Class. Tom Jackson is Reunion chairman and is getting things in shape fast. You'll have a letter from him soon, possibly before you see this in print. BE THERE IN JUNE! THIS MEANS YOU!

Well, time and tide have reaped a greater toll on our waning bachelor ranks. The pony express brings word that John Keenan, Jr. took the plunge in October and that after a honeymoon in Bermuda, they've settled down in Montclair. Our source of info gives as his only known occupation 'husband.' Doc Robert Shigley writes that he is still horsing around, having moved again, now being at Kansas State College in Manhattan, Kans., where he is an assistant professor of surgery and medicine in the vet school of that institution. Bernie and Ethel Handelman ('46) Mayrshon took a brief respite from exporting food, which business he is in, and exported themselves to Europe last April on which continent they had an enjoyable stay. Then in August, they were blessed with the arrival of a bouncing baby daughter, Janet Laurel. Get a baby sitter for her now and see you in Ithaca come June!

Win Wright is still with National Gypsum at their New York gypsum and paint plant as an assistant plant engineer; writes that he engineered his third son in December, and that he now owns his abode at 54 Ruby Street, Elmont. Give an assist on the family to his wife, the former Eunice Eddy '46. Got back to Buffalo for a brief visit Christmas night but though I saw a slew of Cornellians didn't see any '45-ers. Did hear though that Jim Barry is a salesman and director of Barry Food Products, Inc., which makes prepared flour mixes and other bakery products. A stint at Penn's Wharton School got him his MBA last February and he, too, got hypnotized by the altar and walked the last mile in June. We bachelors are a dying race. Down at 515 Walker Avenue in Baltimore, Joe and Betsy Ross ('46) Davis cheered at the arrival of their first tax exemption in December, a daughter Cynthia.

Charlie Holmes the last we heard was with Merck & Co. in Rahway, N.J. Really cleaning up as district sales manager for Scott Paper Co. in Hartford, Conn., is Doug Brown; industrial sales, that is. He's a benedict of over two years already. Scotty Edwards, instead of just going to Europe for the summer as we last reported, decided to stay for a year instead and with good reason: he was awarded a Fulbright scholarship to study at the Ecole des Mines in gay Parie for a year. Congrats, and count on giving us a full report when you return. Down Dallas way is W. A. Lincoln who is with Chance Voight Aircraft. He writes "Recently—third child a son—Reed Nicholas Lincoln—Cornell 1960. Child prodigy in the making, no doubt, eh?"

And last but not least, who is going to be first to give us a positive 'yes' on Reunion? Let's hear from you at the above address and I'll forward the news on to Tom.

'45, '44 BS—A son, Stephen Wayne Phelps, was born December 20 to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Phelps (E. Louise Flux) of 1300 South Walnut Street, San Gabriel, Cal. The baby joins a sister, Andrea, who is about sixteen months old.

'45 AB—Mary Jean Hall, daughter of Dr. Perry O. Hall '18 of 88 Fairview Avenue, Jersey City 4, N.J., is engaged to Ronald E. Dinsmore, a student at the school of commerce of New York University. She is a copy writer in the foreign advertising department of Colgate-Palmolive Peet Co. Dinsmore served in the Army Air Forces during the war. He attended Wake Forest College where he played varsity basketball, and has played varsity football at NYU.

'45 AB—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Mitchell, Jr. (Ruth Schlau) of 3 Adrian Street, Rochester 13, have a daughter, Diana Ruth Mitchell, born September 29. This is their first child.

Distinctive Styles in Custom Clothing

Here in Ithaca many Cornellians, both alumni and undergraduates, have come to recognize the value of our wide selection of attractive patterns in fine domestic and imported woolens. They appreciate the "luxury" of custom clothing at the low prices our Ithaca location makes possible. Their response has been so encouraging that we now plan to display our suitings in New York City in the near future. We are confident that the many Cornell alumni in the Metropolitan Area will be interested in the unusual value we offer. The date and place will be announced in a later advertisement in the Alumni News.

... and the fastest, most comfortable
way to the West Indies
is by luxurious 4-engine Clipper*!

● Colorful Cuba! British Colonial Jamaica! The U. S. A.'s own Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands! Historic Haiti and the Dominican Republic! It takes you only a little time by Clipper to reach the isle of your choice. Yet the moment you're there you feel a great big difference in climate. Official weather charts show that February temperatures consistently range between 70 and 80 on the balmy side of the Gulf Stream.

Only Pan American offers daily service to all major islands in the West Indies. For reservations, call your Travel Agent or the nearest Pan American office.
